Scores Hurt In Falls on Icy Streets Of District

Many Suffer Broken Arms and Legs; Morning 'Rush' Slowed to Crawl

Approximately 100 persons were treated for injuries yesterday when Greater Washington slipped and skidded through its iciest and riskiest morning of the winter.

Glazed streets and glassy sidewalks cut the customary work-bound rush down to an unsteady crawl, caused scores of minor accidents, threw bus schedules askew, and closed icy schools in nearby Maryland and Virginia.

A mild thaw, however, brought early relief, and by 5:14 p. m. the mercury hit a 10-day high point of 40 degrees.

More Rain Due Friday

Wednesday night's series of freezing rains and drizzles, which laid down Thursday morning's slick coating of ice, were not due to give a repeat performance last night.

The forecaster at 10 p. m. last night predicted a low of around 33 for early today, followed by some rain. A high of about 40 is expected later in the day.

The District Commissioners, taking cognizance of "treacherous" traveling conditions and numerous falls on slippery pavements, last night called on property owners and tenants alike to remove snow and ice from around their residences and places of business, or to sprinkle the areas with sand.

The hazardous road conditions balked the Greyhound bus runs between the District, Baltimore and Annapolis for several hours. Trains, trolley and planes were reported little affected by the ice.

Main highways leading out of Washington last night were said to be passable, but slippery in spots. An American Auto Association spokesman described yesterday's morning road condition as one of the worst ever.

Minor Auto Accidents

There were scores of motor mishaps in and around Washington, but all were of a minor nature. Most seriously hurt were pedestrians who slipped on the ice, many suffering broken limbs. Scores were sent to hospitals.

The District and Capital Transit sanding trucks—60 over a 24-hour period—put up a nightlong battle to prevent yesterday morning's arterial traffic snarl, but to no avail. Freezing rain began falling again at 3:35 a. m. and continued for nearly five hours, nullifying the sanding operations.

Capital Transit, which usually operates 18 or 19 sand trucks along its bus and street car routes, added an extra ten to meet yesterday morning's emergency.

The District sanitation department held 32 trucks and 90 men on the alert last night for a 2 a. m. call if needed. The division re-

Boy Tastes Iron Pole, Sticks to It for Hour

Beckley, W. Va., Feb. 12 (U.P.)—Fourth grader Teddy England was literally tongue-tied.

The curiosity that sometimes gets the better of little boys made him put his tongue against an iron pole while he was waiting for the school bus.

He couldn't pull it away from the cold iron.

It was almost an hour before someone suggested maybe warm water would loosen him. It worked.

Teddy suffered no ill effects.

Agnes S. Turnbull On Guest Panel at Book Luncheon

Agnes Sligh Turnbull, noted novelist and short-story writer, will be a featured speaker at The Washington Post's book and author luncheon February 18 at the Hotel Statler. Mrs. Turnbull wrote "The Bishop's Mantle," a current best seller, "The Rolling Years," "Remember The End," and "The Day Must Dawn," a Literary Guild selection.

Other luncheon speakers will be Charles Hurd, Michael F. Reilly, and James Warner Bellah. Tickets are now on sale at book and department stores.

Change Slated for Late Spring

Inverchapel, Envoy of Britain, Retires; Franks Named to Post

The retirement of Lord Inverchapel, the British Ambassador in Washington, was announced by the Foreign Office in London last night.

His successor will be Sir Oliver Franks, the 43-year-old Oxford professor who was chairman and guiding spirit of the 16-nation Marshall Plan conference at Paris last summer.

Franks is expected to assume his new post on Massachusetts ave. in the late spring, while Inverchapel will start a long-sought retirement at his estate in Scotland.

The change means that Britain is replacing her most seasoned career diplomat by the one man who probably knows more than any other about the problems of European economic cooperation.

Inverchapel had already reached the retirement age when he was appointed to succeed Lord Halifax in 1946. As Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, as he was known before being named to the peerage, he had served in some of the most difficult posts in the British diplomatic service, including Nanking and Moscow.

In recent months he has been increasingly anxious to retire, partly because he has spent nine years abroad without a spell of duty or leisure at home.

For Franks the Washington post will be his first diplomatic assignment. He was not trained for diplomacy or government service, but for teaching.

He taught philosophy for 10 years at Queen's College, Oxford; came to the University of Chicago as visiting professor in 1935, and then was appointed professor of moral philosophy at the University of Glasgow.

Early in the war, however, the British government called him into the Ministry of Supply, one of the key points in the British war production effort, where he showed outstanding talents as an administrator. He became permanent undersecretary, the chief nonpolitical official at the ministry, and had many dealings with his American counterparts after the United States entered the war.

As chairman of the Paris economic conference last summer he played a prominent part in drawing up the 16-nation report which has led to the European Recovery Program. He visited Washington last fall for consultations with American Government officials.

Franks was reluctant to become ambassador here, and wanted to go back to Oxford as provost of Queen's College. But the British government felt he was the only logical choice in view of his knowledge of European economic problems, and finally persuaded him to accept.

Scott for Mediation Board

Scheele Is Chosen to Succeed Dr. Parran as Surgeon General

President Truman yesterday chose Dr. Leonard A. Scheele to be Surgeon General of the Public Health Service. He will succeed Dr. Thomas Parran, whose term expires April 6.

Scheele is now an assistant surgeon general and director of the National Cancer Institute.

Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross, who announced the choice, said it was "heartily indorsed" by Parran.

President Truman announced he was nominating John Thad Scott, jr., of Texas for membership on the National Mediation Board.

The nomination is for a term ending February 1, 1951.

The board handles railroad and airline disputes.

Mr. Truman announced at his news conference that he had appointed Paul R. Rowen of Boston as a member of the Securities and Exchange Commission to fill the unexpired term of former Commission Chairman James J. Caffrey, who resigned.

Rowen, a graduate of Boston University Law School, has been regional administrator of the Boston SEC office since 1941. He previously served with the commission in various capacities.

Senate confirmation of his appointment to the $10,000-a-year post would bring the five-man commission to full strength. As soon as he takes office, the members will elect a chairman. The post is now filled temporarily by Robert K. McConnaughey.

Truman Sees Inflation Still Major Threat

Warnings Repeated In Urging Nation To Buy Treasury's New Savings Bonds

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman thinks that inflation still is a major threat to the American economy, despite the crash of grain prices in the commodity market and the consequent dip in food prices.

He said so yesterday in calling on the country to back up the Treasury's new savings bond drive which is to run from April 15 to June 30.

"Every dollar saved instead of spent is a dollar fighting against inflation," Mr. Truman said. "This will safeguard the Nation's economic strength."

Inflation Still Major Concern

A reporter asked if the bond drive meant that the Administration feels that inflation is the major economic problem, not deflation.

Mr. Truman said this was correct.

Replying to other questions at his news conference, the Chief Executive said that the drop in food prices was a step in the right direction but he added that he still was hopeful that Congress would act on his 10-point anti-inflation program with its proposals for stand-by price and wage controls.

Mr. Truman said he would continue to be hopeful of action on his 10-point program until Congress adjourns. He joined in the laughter that followed—laughter that seemed to be a recognition of the hopeless outlook for the program.

Sees Economy Still Threatened

"Do you feel," the President was asked, "that the danger of inflation is a major economic threat despite the break in commodity prices."

Mr. Truman said that he did.

He declined to comment in detail on the market drop until he knew more about it. He said that all agencies of the Government are keeping tabs on the situation, and trying to determine just what the drop means.

Replying to another question, Mr. Truman said he still thought his proposal for a $40 cost-of-living tax cut for every person was feasible.

On Capitol Hill, meantime, sentiment was hardening against the President's anti-inflation program, even among members of his own party.

Senator A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.), a member of the Banking Committeee, said that the market break proved that controls are not needed, and Senator Carl A. Hatch (D., N. Mex.) said that if prices level off where they are now, there will be no price controls at this session.

Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.), No. 1 Democratic apostle of economy, said the price trend called for close watching in connection with foreign aid, taxes and other budget questions.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States said in its weekly publication, Business Action, that the market break was a "read-

Taft Says Get 'Hard-Boiled' on Europe Aid; Dewey Would Scrap Truman Foreign Policy

Governor Would Use Marshall Plan to Spur 16-Nation Federation

Boston, Feb. 12 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York declared tonight that the foreign policies of the Truman Administration "should be thrown overboard—l o c k, stock and barrel."

Dewey

In a Lincoln Day address to top Massachusetts Republican l e a d e r s, Dewey u r g e d also that the Marshall Plan be used to promote a federation of free European nations as a prime step toward economic recovery and world peace.

He charged that the Administration had "no policy for peace" and that through "blundering and compromising" with Russia had abetted "the scheme of Soviet world conquest."

"Those are the policies which resulted in surrendering 200 million people in Middle Europe into the clutches of Soviet Russia and are rapidly delivering the 400 million people of China into the same hands," he asserted before the Middlesex Republican Club of Massachusetts.

Would Hinge Aid on Effort

The gathering is traditionally an outstanding Bay State Republican event of the year.

Dewey said our aid should be given in proportion to European effort to achieve unity.

He maintained that the 16 nations of western Europe should form a political, economic and military union, which he said was a prime requisite for economic recovery and world peace.

The New York Governor proposed specifically that the nations of western Europe stabilize their currencies, abolish customs barriers and form a military alliance.

A candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, Dewey said the Administration's foreign policies were "formulated wholly outside the area of bipartisan cooperation."

He claims to have instituted the bi-partisan policy in 1944.

He is here seeking support of Massachusetts' 36 delegates to the Republican National Convention and has scheduled conferences with party leaders during his overnight stay here. He hopes most of the delegates will swing to him after voting for one or more of the Bay State's favorite sons.

At a news conference before his

Stassen Sees Chance to Cut Food Bill 15%

Besides Senator Taft and Governor Dewey, many other Republican leaders spoke on Lincoln's birthday. Following are excerpts from some of their speeches:

Speaker Joseph W. Martin at New York: "The Republican Congress achieved the first balanced budget in all that time (16 years)."

Harold E. Stassen, at Philadelphia: "Wise policies in Government should stabilize food prices 15 per cent lower than the 'too high' levels of a month ago."

Senator Wherry, at Huntington, W. Va.: "One day the President goes to the left, the next day to the right, zigzagging back and forth . . ."

Carroll Reece, Republican National Chairman, at Indianapolis: The Administration has encouraged "policies and practices designed to elicit support from left-wing elements."

Senator Lodge, at Charleston, W. Va.: The Administration "since 1932 seems to have overlooked not one single opportunity to push prices as high as possible."

Senator Saltonstall, at Seattle: Congress "has no intention of turning on the faucet of American aid and leaving it running."

Ohioan Demands Program of 'Clear Economic Value'

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 12 (AP).—A "hard boiled plan" to give Europe only essential food and pump-priming industrial aid was advocated tonight by Senator Taft (R., Ohio).

Taft

The candidate for the Republican presidential nomination called for a cut in the proposed $6,800,000,000 Marshall Plan o u t l a y t h a t would limit assistance to European projects "of clear economic value."

At the same time, Taft declared in an address prepared for delivery before the Lincoln Republican Club of St. Paul that aid to China must be forthcoming immediately.

"It is futile to expend billions on a doubtful economic project in Europe to resist communism while practically inviting them (the Communists) to take over the western shores of the Pacific," he declared.

Taft voiced flat objection to what he said is the "New Deal" plan of inviting European countries to "add up their desired imports, subtract their possible exports and hand us a bill for the difference."

"In giving aid to Europe we should adopt at this time a practical and hard-boiled plan," he said.

Meat Cuts Lead; Some Figures Now Below Wholesale, Few Dealers Say

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Washington grocers have plunged into a price-cutting battle on many food items in the wake of slumping commodities in the Nation's markets.

The week-long race to mark down prices began Monday with limited price cuts in a few stores, gained momentum the next two days, and hit a climax in prices posted late yesterday.

Competition has now forced weekend prices on some foods to points below those at which they can be purchased on wholesale markets, several independent food merchants declared.

Chains Lead Spree

Leading the competitive price-cutting spree were independent super-markets and chain stores, with neighborhood stores forced to meet many of the price cuts to hold their trade.

Most of the price action centered on such staples as eggs, bacon, leg of lamb, smoked ham, steaks, beef rib roasts, flour, butter, shortening and lard. Markdowns varied on almost every grade and brand of merchandise, while prices of many other foods remained unchanged from a week ago.

Published price listings, effective late yesterday, today and tomorrow showed these price changes over last weekend:

One food chain cut its price for sugar cured, skinned hams from 69 to 57 cents a pound; a group of independent g r o c e r s lowered prices on another brand of ham from 63 to 59 cents, and grade A sliced bacon from 67 to 59 cents.

Another group of independents dropped the price of grade A eggs from 63 to 59, the same price set by some chains.

Lamb Prices Cut

Leg of lamb prices were several chains from 63 to 61 a pound; sausage meat dropped in another chain from 49 to 45 cents a pound.

Top grades of shortening, from $1.25 to $1.33 last week were down as low as $1.13. Butter, selling for 95 to 99 cents a pound in quater-pound prints last week, dropped to 89-91. Lard, at 29 to 31 cents a pound last week, was off to 23 cents in some stores.

Flour, $1.05 for 10 pounds in some stores last week, was down to 83 cents in several chains, while one independent super-market in the northwest section cut its price for five pounds of top grade flour to 39 cents.

Rib roast of beef, in the 70 to 80-cent bracket last week, dropped to 59 a pound in many stores.

At least until yesterday, however, the housewife—target of the price cuts—remained generally unimpressed, according to a spot check in shopping areas. Some acknowledged savings of "a few cents." Other shoppers commented that "prices are still too high."

Bad Weather Cited

Storekeepers pointed out that the bad weather yesterday cut down even the normal amount of trade, and hoped for spirited business today at the new lower price listings.

In Chicago yesterday, the National Association of Retail Grocers reported that a Nation-wide survey of independent retail food stores showed these basic price drops:

Flour, down 5 to 16 cents for 10 pounds; lard, 3 to 8 cents a pound lower; vegetable shortening, 2 to 4 cents lower; bacon, down 5 to 10 cents a pound; pork chops, 10 cents a pound less; beef cuts, down 3 to 8 cents a pound; eggs down 10 cents in some areas.

Two more soap manufacturers, Procter & Gamble and the Work Soap Co., yesterday joined Lever Bros. in announcing a reduction of 5 per cent in wholesale level prices. The United Press reported from Chicago that these savings were expected to be passed to con-

Contractors Adopt Building Dispute Plan

AFL Due to Approve Board to Referee Jurisdictional Rows

Dallas, Tex., Feb. 12 (AP).—The Associated General Contractors of America today ratified establishment of a national joint board for the settlement of jurisdictional disputes in the building and construction industry.

The action was taken at the group's twenty-ninth annual convention here.

The final step before the board becomes established is approval by the Building and Construction Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor. Spokesman for the contractors said such action is expected to be taken March 8.

The plan was submitted yesterday by Richard J. Gray, chief of the Building and Construction Trades Department of the AFL.

Under the plan all jurisdictional disputes not settled locally within 10 days would be referred to a five-man board in Washington.

Labor representatives would hold two positions on the board and management two. The fifth member would be an impartial chairman. The group would be known as "The National Joint Board for Settlement of Jurisdictional Disputes."

The general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, Robert N. Denham, commended the plan and said:

"I want to urge that every one of you either become an individual participant in it, or authorize those associations to which you belong to participate in it in your behalf."

Denham earlier said his agency "if it must" is ready to begin umpiring building industry jurisdictional disputes.

The plan was termed by Gray

Britain Plans Price Freeze Next Month

Industry Offered Chance to Submit Voluntary Slashes

By Jack Tait

London, Feb. 12 (NYHT).—Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced tonight the government will issue an order freezing prices. It is expected about March 1.

Sir Stafford said British industry had been requested to submit plans within a month for the voluntary reduction of prices and profits.

The freeze is to be an interim step in the program to peg living costs in the hope that unions will postpone claims for wage increases, Sir Stafford indicated.

The order will impose price ceilings at the level during the two months ending January 31 "on manufacturers' prices of all goods which come within the price control system and have not already got sufficiently close price control," Sir Stafford said.

In tonight's debate in the Commons on last week's white paper which set forth a wage freeze policy, Sir Stafford emphasized sacrifices must be accepted by employers if Britain is to avoid inflation. Sir Stafford repeated the plea of the white paper that labor forego wage increases for the time being.

Then he closed with this warning:

"What we are now asking of the nation is the supreme test of our democracy. No one can have any doubt as to the seriousness of the situation . . . unless we exercise democratic restraint, the sheer facts of the situation will demand compulsions which certainly this government is anxious to avoid. It is worth a great deal in the future to preserve in these difficult days our free bargaining ma-

Broun Award to Bert Andrews; Three Post Men Win Citations

Andrews Herblock Stokes Friendly

Bert Andrews, the New York Herald Tribune's Washington Bureau chief, yesterday was named winner of the American Newspaper Guild's 1947 Heywood Broun Award.

Honorable mention citations went to three members of the staff of The Washington Post, Herbert Block, Alfred Friendly and Dillard Stokes; to Edward J. Donohoe of the Scranton Times and Ralph Andrist and Ralph Backlund of radio station WCCO, Minneapolis.

Among eight other entries, "given serious consideration before final decisions were made," was that of Alan Barth, editorial writer on The Washington Post.

Judges Praise The Post

The American Newspaper Guild confers the Broun award each year for "the most outstanding journalistic achievement in the spirit of Heywood Broun."

The guild citation and a cash award of $500 went to Andrews for stories on the loyalty issue, starting with an article published on November 2, in the Herald Tribune, and also carried in The Washington Post. The story was a detailed account of the official record of loyalty proceedings against one Government employe. Speaking for the award judges, Louis Lyons, curator of the Nieman Foundation at Harvard University, described the loyalty series as "the most significant reporting, not merely of 1947 but for several years." Other judges were Robert S. Allen, Washington correspondent and author, and William L. Shirer, radio commentator and author.

Although he won the top award, Andrews is not a member of the American Newspaper Guild. The Guild changed its rules for the 1947 competition so that entries from non-Guild members could be considered.

Enlargement of the guild awards to include citation of an outstanding newspaper each year was urged by Allen in a separate statement. Had there been such an award in 1947, he declared, "The Washington Post would have won it by the unanimous vote of the three judges."

"In lieu of such an award," said Allen, "the judges wish to publicly acclaim The Washington Post for its exceptionally meritorious service in a wide range of activities. The record made by this newspaper last year is in the highest tradition of enlightened and courageous journalism and public service."

Allen concluded his recommendation of a general newspaper award by stating:

"The following are brief sum-

Army, Navy and Air Officials Told to End Public Feuding

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Secretary of Defense James Forrestal has ordered top officials of the Army, Navy and Air Force to stop feuding in public.

He has directed that no ranking service chief make a public speech or publish an article touching on "a controversial subject" without "prior submission to and approval by the Secretary of Defense."

The order, The Washington Post learns, also warns officials that they are bound to support President Truman's budget and must not lobby for changes favoring their branch.

Forrestal and other defense officials are said to be disturbed over a recent rash of speeches and articles which aroused bad feeling in the other services. They fear that the whole spirit of the unification program would be endangered if the public rowing continues.

Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz's final report to the Navy and a recent magazine article by Secretary of Air Force W. Stuart Symington are cases in point. Many airmen felt Nimitz claimed too big a role for the Navy in a ceived 130 calls yesterday for the sanding of side streets.

It nomrally takes the sanding crews four to six hours to make the rounds of the main thoroughfares, according to William Xanten, local sanitation division director.

"No city in the world could have coped with the morning's situation," he said.

Schools were shut down for the first time this winter in Fairfax County, Va., and in Prince Georges County, Md. Other counties in both States similarly gave their pupils a storm holiday. In Washington, both students and teachers showed up late for classes. Absences in the elementary schools was up by 60 per cent.

Thousands of Government workers showed up late to work yesterday morning. Buses ran behind schedule, and were doubly jammed because many persons who usually drive to work left their cars behind. Some 200 passengers on four buses were held up two hours trying to get out of Greenbelt to Washington.

Arnold Bus Lines was forced to cancel eight of its school buses, but kept all others on their runs, despite delays. A South Glebe rd. bus was stuck for nearly two hours just opposite the Army-Navy Club before getting through.

Snow Removal Law

According to a District law of 1922, it is the duty of residents here to remove snow from their sidewalks within eight hours of daylight after a snowfall. However, it is no criminal offense to leave the snow where it is. Under the law, the District government may go ahead and clean off the snow, then collect the cost plus $25 through civil suit. District officials confess they have neither the street cleaning nor the legal manpower to enforce the ordinance.

Traffic accidents were reported as follows yesterday:

Miss Mildred Astryke, 30, of 203 West Masonic View ave., Alexandria, suffered a sprained shoulder when her car ran into an AB&W bus which had skidded partially off the road at Russell rd. and Cedar st., Alexandria.

Rudolph Dillard, 34, of 475 N st. ne., was treated at Freedmen's Hospital for leg injuries suffered in a three-car collision in the 400 block of New Hampshire ave. nw.

Abraham Winklestein, 40, of 3143 Adams Mill rd. nw., was hurt in the right shoulder when a cab in which he was a passenger was in collission with a jeep at 15th st. and Florida ave. nw.

Astronomers Studying Mars For Life Data

Chicago, Feb. 12 (U.P.).—University of Chicago astronomers hope to find out by the end of the month — weather permitting — whether there is life on Mars.

The astronomers already are at McDonald Observatory, Fort Davis, Tex., training their telescopes on the planet.

During February, Mars is only 63 million miles away—comparatively close, astronomically speaking. In 1956 it will be only 30 million miles away.

Magnified 500 to 600 times by the 82-inch reflecting telescope at McDonald, Mars will appear about 4 times as large as the full moon to the eye. By using a device called an infra-red spectrograph, astronomers hope to learn whether water and green vegetation exist on the distant planet.

Dr. Gerard P. Kuiper, director of Yerkes and McDonald Observatories, already has discovered ammonia gas in the atmosphere of Mars. The carbon dioxide content, discovered by Kuiper in October last year, is about the same as the amount present on earth.

chinery, but its preservation depends on the degree of restraint which we as a nation can now exercise."

Some Labor members doubted employers would agree freely to reduce prices and profits. Conservative Party members criticized the government for urging this sacrifice on employers without taking action to slash its own expenditures and operational costs.

From the tone of some speeches tonight by Labor back-benchers the government faces a bitter fight within its own party unless it announces some hard policy to curb profits and dividends.

The price-freeze order is expected to be issued sometime after March 1, a Board of Trade spokesman said tonight. Price control at present in Britain covers practically all nonfood consumer goods. The principal items outside price control are jewelry, newspapers and tobacco.

Sir Stafford said he had received assurances from the Federation of British Industries "that they will do their utmost to assist in this way."

Green Contradicts Taft On Act's Effect on Reds

AFL President William Green said yesterday Senator Taft (R., Ohio) is wrong in saying the Taft-Hartley Act is driving Communist out of this country.

"Far from driving the Communists out of unions and out of the country, the Taft-Hartley Act gives them legal protection to carry on their nefarious activities without fear of reprisal," Green said in a statement.

Taft said at Gary, Ind., Wednesday that the Taft-Hartley Act is driving Communists out of American and into Canadian unions.

Liner Arrives With Cold Deck

Fun for Children

Ice Maroons Residents of High Street

The street called High was much too high for comfort yesterday.

Residents of the short block which runs off of Morris rd. se. found themselves virtually marooned on their high hill by the ice-covered street and sidewalk. Since their houses are heated with gas, they have no ashes to spread to prevent sliding.

Mrs. Horace L. Dawson, who lives at 2531 High st. se., said the street had been almost "impassable" for several weeks. Her husband, she said, fell when he attempted to get down the 45-degree hill and she hersalf also had fallen.

Mrs. Dawson's two children, Sandra, 7, and Darryl, 5, were forced to stay home from school because they couldn't keep their balance either going up or down. In midday the ice melts but it freezes up as soon as the thermometer falls at night.

Mrs. Dawson's mother, Mrs. Florence Smith of 1610 3d, came to the rescue yesterday afternoon. She comes to stay with the Dawson children each day, and has a difficult time getting down the hill at night, so she convinced her grocer to contribute some sawdust to the cause.

Eugene Scott, who lives at 2521, said his family too had experienced difficulty with the glassy surface. "You have to take it pretty easy going down," he warned.

His children, Florence Evelyn, 15, and Eugene, 14, don't mind the perilous incline at all, "it's fun to them," he noted ironically. Scott said the street had been icy ever since families had moved into the new development.

Later in the afternoon the District sanded the walks, but William Zanten, director of the division of sanitation, said the street was designated for sledding and would not be sanded.

Cattle in French Stockyards Seized

Paris, Feb. 12.—Cattle in all French stockyards was requisitioned today by government order.

Prices were too high, and the government was determined to keep prices down.

Cattle dealers will probably halt stockyard deliveries, but large stocks of frozen meats will keep butchers supplied until the cattle dealers begin to see things the government's way.

Kennedy Seeks Word on City's Oil Prospects at N. Y. Today

Washington's confused fuel oil picture may be brought into sharper focus today when District Fuel Oil Coordinator J. Thomas Kennedy meets in New York with representatives of major oil firms.

The men with whom Kennedy will confer are members of a special subcommittee on supply and deliveries of the Petroleum Regional Advisory Committee, which was formed at the suggestion of Interior Secretary Krug.

Kennedy said last night he hoped the meeting would accomplish two things:

1. Explain why there have been delays in fuel oil shipments to the District.

2. Outline what the prospects are for early relief.

Requests Pour In

Kennedy said hardship requests were continuing to pour into his office.

Yesterday's milder temperature and the prospect of more of the same today probably will ease to some degree the fuel oil and coal shortages.

As for coal, Patrick A. Deck, chairman of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association coal division, said requests for emergency supplies were still keeping M & M office busy. But, he added, all critical cases are being taken care of.

"The milder weather has helped some," Deck observed.

New gasoline and fuel oil supplies were expected here momentarily by the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey.

3 Barges on Way

Three barges, carrying 1,260,000 gallons of No. 2 fuel oil and 680,000 gallons of gasoline, left Baltimore Wednesday morning to make the long voyage down the Chesapeake Bay and up the Potomac River to Washington. It was hoped they would arrive by tonight.

"If the barges do not arrive by Friday night, or Saturday noon at the latest, we'll be right on the critical edge," a company official said.

A critical fuel oil shortage was reported in Loudoun County, Va., by William W. Cockerill, county farm agent. He said it was a "conservative" estimate that at least 75 familes in the county, the majority of them farm families, were completely without oil. Cockerill said he attempted to get in contact with Governor Tuck in Richmond yesterday to request aid, but was unable to reach the Governor. He said he would continue his efforts today.

Meanwhile, Florida municipal officials came to Washington yesterday to complain to the White House and Congress about fuel oil shortages and prices.

President Truman agreed to turn over to Attorney General Tom Clark for immediate investigation the group's charges of "scandalous prices" and "monopolistic practices" against the oil industry.

Denies Scarcity

Walter A. Shelley, Daytona Beach city commissioner, told the House Commerce Committee he did not believe there was an actual scarcity of fuel oil, adding: "We believe it is here and should be released for the benefit of the American people."

The Florida delegation urged both the President and the House committee to institute rationing and price control of oil.

Some oil production figures were made public yesterday by the American Petroleum Institute, which estimated the daily average gross crude oil production for the week ended February 7, 1948, was 5,332,575 barrels. There are 42 gallons to the barrel.

The institute said daily production for the four weeks ended February 7 was 5,328,300 barrels.

In the week ended February 7, the oil industry produced 15,476,000 barrels of gasoline, 2,468,000 barrels of kerosene, 7,870,000 gallons of distillate fuel and 9,154,000 barrels of residual fuel oil and had in storage at the end of the week 105,100,000 barrels of finished and unfinished gasoline, 11,119,000 barrels of kerosene, 38,538,000 barrels of distillate fuel and 50,257,000 barrels of residual fuel oil.

Rail Shipments To New England, N. Y. Restricted

The Association of American Railroads yesterday restricted freight movement into New York State and New England due to severe weather conditions.

It directed its members not to accept any freight shipments—except certain vital necessities—which will require movement east of Buffalo, N. Y., by way of the New York Central Railroad System or the Boston and Albany Railroad.

Exempted from the order are livestock, perishable freight, petroleum fuels and coal required to operate the railroads.

The association said the order is necessary because of long-continued bad weather and an accumulation of freight for the area which cannot be handled under these conditions.

The order is effective until 11:59 p. m. next Tuesday, when the association hopes the situation will have cleared up.

Senators Will Insist on Pledges From 16 Marshall Plan Countries

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

The 16 Marshall Plan countries will have to keep their promises to work together for economic recovery, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee decided yesterday.

The committee voted unanimously to write into the European recovery bill the pledges made by the western European countries at their Paris conference last summer. Among these were promises to increase their production, to put their internal finances in order, to reduce trade barriers and to make efficient use of all their resources.

Such promises, the committee decided, should be repeated in general form in a 16-nation agreement, and in more specific form in individual agreements between each of the 16 countries and the United States.

Two Safeguards

To make doubly sure that the promises will be binding, the committee agreed that the American administrator of the recovery program could cut off aid to any country:

1. If such a country did not adhere to its agreement with the United States, or diverted from recovery purposes any aid received from the United States, or failed to heed other steps taken to remedy the situation; or

2. If the administrator decided that "because of changed conditions, assistance is no longer consistent with the national interests of the United States."

The latter provision, apparently, was written as a safeguard in case any of the 16 nations fell into Communist control.

Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg explained that none of these provisions, or others written into the new bill today, would handicap the fundamental purposes of the European Recovery Program.

Statement of Policy

After all, he said, the entire effort was based on the assumption that the western European nations would cooperate among themselves.

Among the general purposes and principles to be stated in the new bill, said Vandenberg, would be this statement:

"It is further declared to be the policy of the United States that the continuity of assistance provided by the United States should at all times be dependent upon the continuity of cooperation among the countries participating in the program."

Asked whether still other goals would be held out to the Europeans, such as closer economic or political union, Vandenberg said, "I think there will be some underscoring of desirable objectives," but he was not ready to be specific until the committee had approved them.

Self-Help Stressed

The language written into the bill yesterday stressed again and again the need of "a joint recovery program," of "self-help and mutual cooperation," and of the establishment of a continuing organization of the 16 countries to achieve their recovery.

Another clause, added by the committee yesterday, called upon the Europeans to send the American administrator specific projects for boosting their industrial and agricultural production. It stated that these should include, wherever possible, projects for increased production of coal, steel, transportation facilties and food.

This was almost identical with a proposal made by the informal group of 20 Republican Senators who have been critical of the recovery program. Vandenberg was asked whether he had included it to satisfy the 20 Senators, but he answered that the committee had had many similar proposals.

Herter Committee Report

While the Senate committee was emphasizing European self-help as a condition of American aid, the Herter Committee of the House issued a staff study outlining what western Europe could do for itself. The study was described as a series of "suggestions" rather than as a formal recommendation by the committee.

"If the European Recovery Program is authorized by the Congress, it will face its severest tests in the Old and not in the New World," the report said. "The success of the program will in the last analysis be determined by what is accomplished in London, in Paris, in Rome and wherever the seat of the continuing organization of the 16 nations may be—not just by what happens in Washington."

The report suggested that the western European countries put new plants where they would do the most good to Europe generally, and integrate all their available supplies of raw materials, labor, power and transportation.

It proposed 16-nation cooperation, with American help, toward supervising and developing the resources of the Ruhr.

It suggested unification of European electric power and railway systems, joint development of colonial territories, common effort toward a customs union, and strong steps toward currency stabilization.

It proposed two conferences to help Britain out of its present economic troubles—the first, a meeting with non-European nations which hold frozen sterling balances; the second, a conference to bring the British Dominions actively into the work of European recovery.

Finally, the report declared a new meeting of the 16 nations was "by now overdue."

"Possibly the 16 nations have followe a cautious diplomatic policy in awaiting the decision of the American Congress as to the amount, kind and terms of American aid, it said. "Yet it is precisely the uncertainty regarding American aid which should have spurred the European nations to increased exertions of their own."

More Testimony Heard

Meanwhile, the House Foreign Affairs Committee heard a variety of testimony for and against the ERP.

Carl B. Fritsche, vice president of Reichhold Chemicals, Inc., of Tuscaloosa, Ala., urged that the World Bank handle all long-term loans for capital equipment, thus taking some of the load from American taxpayers.

Former Governor George H. Earle of Pennsylvania thought the Marshall Plan should be coupled with strong military guarantees against Russia.

Edgar Ansel Mowrer, writer on foreign affairs, warned against letting Germany grow strong and dangerous again.

Mrs. Katherine Lee Marshall, representing the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, supported the ERP but though it should be followed by a world conference for abolition of all armaments.

During her testimony Representative Chester Merrow (R., N. H.) said Russia now had "large numbers" of a big bomber type superior to the B-29. "If I had my choice between air supremacy and ERP I'd take air supremacy," said Merrow. "That's the only language some people can understand."

Five Satellites Of Soviet Plan Danube 'TVA'

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 12 (U.P.).—Five eastern European satellites of Russia are discussing a program of exploitation of the rich Danube River Basin, a well informed diplomatic source said today.

Yugoslavia and Hungry are leading the movement. Bulgaria and Romania are cooperating, it was said, and Count Michael Karolyi, Hungarian Minister to France, came to Prague to discuss it with Czechoslovak officials.

The porject calls for a TVA, on a smaller scale, to develop hydroelectric power on the Danube and its tributaries. The program would include expanded use of inland waterways, flood control, increased exchange of farm and mining products and expansion of industrial facilities.

The project, the informant said, will in effect turn back the clock to the days of the Emperor Franz Josef, when the Danube was developed by the Austro-Hungarian empire.

Captive Rebels Are Paraded In Salonika

Salonika, Greece, Feb. 12 (U.P.).—Frenzied Greeks jeered, pelted and jabbed 121 captured guerillas who were forced to march in an army victory parade through Salonika's streets today.

Had it not been for the display of modern war equipment, the spectacle might have come out of the third century B. C., when Alexander the Great sent back to Salonika—named after his sister—his conquered enemies chained to chariot wheels.

A shrieking crowd estimated at mire than 200,000 waited for hours to torment the rebels, who had shelled Salonika from a nearby hill Tuesday.

First came grinning soldiers, mounting Bren guns, toting tommy guns, on foot, on motorcycles and trucks.

The guerillas, weary from three days of fighting, straggled two and three abreast between army columns. They were pelted with rotten eggs, rolls of paper and bottles. Some Greeks armed with sharpened sticks prodded the rebels. The soldiers didn't stop them.

Leading the guerillas was a woman, dressed in khaki. She marched proudly, without flinching. At her side were two men. Blood ran freely from a gash on one's forehead.

Seriously wounded rebels were in a truck, but all who were capable of hobbling were pushed into the ranks for the 2-mile parade to "C" Corps headquarters. There appeared little doubt they would be executed. All were accused of bearing arms illegally—a capital offense.

London, Feb. 12 (AP).—Britain will reduce as soon as possible her occupation troops in Japan, it was announced tonight.

Greek Rebels Said to Plan Air Attacks

Athens, Feb. 12 (U.P.).—Reliable British sources quoted a captured Greek guerilla today as saying rebel air attacks on Athens and other cities are planned for March.

The announcement that Brig. Gen. William A. Matheny had been named chief of the air section of the U. S. Military Mission in Greece was regarded as significant. He is chief of staff of the U. S. 12th Air Force.

Greeks are concerned over possibility of a "big push" by guerilla forces in the Spring.

An informed source said today increased military assistance to Greece is under consideration in Washington.

More than 7000 persons were searched during a roundup by 2500 policemen in Piraeus last night and early today. No official reason was given.

Compromise Plan Stirs Hope For Solution of India Problem

Lake Success, Feb. 12 (U.P.).—The Security Council accepted with obvious relief today a surprise Canadian procedural compromise in the Kashmir deadlock between India and Pakistan.

At the suggestion of Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, of Canada, the council's February president, the delegates put off further debate on Kashmir until the Indian delegation can fly to New Delhi, consult the government, and return with fresh orders.

N. Gopalaswami Ayyanger, Indian special delegate and minister of state, arranged to go home at once. He said "All's well that ends well. The tension has been greatly relieved."

The council asked Ayyanger to return as quickly as possible but did not set a deadline.

Pakistan's charges against India will be taken up by the council next Wednesday. These include allegations that India committed acts of aggression against Pakistan.

General McNaughton said he thought up the compromise while stalled in his car last night in a snowstorm for two hours.

The Council decided to meet at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday to take up a report from its good offices committee which brought about a truce between Indonesia and The Netherlands after months of fighting.

Dewey Would Jettison Truman Foreign Plan

address, Dewey told reporters he would accept the presidential nomination if it was tendered him. But, he added, the pressure of his duties as New York State's chief executive made it impossible for him to campaign at the present time.

In his prepared speech, Dewey said:

"We must follow a new road," Dewey said. The first step, he maintained, must be the rehabilitation of Europe's productive capacity, especially in the Ruhr.

He recalled that four years ago he urged the Ruhr be internationalized and "started full blast as a servant of the people of Europe."

"Yet the Potsdam policies did the exact opposite," he said, "and Europe and America are suffering as a result."

Calls Unity the Greatest Need

Above all, he said, Europe needs unity.

"So long as Europe is divided into more than a score of weak nations it will be a continuing invitation for any aggressor," he declared. But, "joined in a great federation, a free Europe can become a bulwark for peace."

"The 16 nations involved in the European Recovery Plan, plus western Germany, have a population nearly twice that of the United States," the Governor noted. "Their peoples . . . are the very source of our Western civilization.

"They also have great material resources. The great lack is unity. The road to unity is long and difficult, but by cooperation and coordinated effort Europe can start on that road now."

Dewey said "the great purpose of European unity should be set forth specifically in legislation now before Congress.

"The amount of aid we give should then be specifically related to the progress made toward the goal of unity for free Europe, for only a Europe moving toward unity can achieve peace.

Favors Full Marshall Plan Sum

"No one can say with accuracy how much money will be needed in the first 15 months, because no one can tell how rapidly production can be increased and no one can foretell the weather and its effect on crops.

"No one can foretell the intensity of the Soviet economic offensive to sabotage recovery. Many estimates have been made. We must create a sound organization with a genuinely great purpose.

"I would rather provide to such an organization the full sum which has been requested (17 billion dollars) than so limit it with an amount which might fail to do the job.

"Our aid should be given in proportion to European efforts to achieve unity. The faster it progresses the sooner we will come to the end of our task."

Dewey said "a real administrator will spend the money only as rapidly as he can see concrete results in getting Europe united and back on its feet at the lowest possible cost."

Enough for Aid, Debt, Tax Cut

He added that the prospective national income, if "carefully managed, will permit both the full European aid program and substantial reduction of our national debt as well as a warranted reduction of our own tax burden."

Dewey said "We can still repair the bungling" of the Truman Administration, which "has brought us to a condition where all people fear war."

After the last war, Dewey said, "we failed to use our victory to rebuild and buttress the free nations we had saved. This time our national Administration not only had no policy for peace but actually helped to build up the strength of another expanding despotism.

"The facts are plain. Marshal Stalin had repeatedly proclaimed the Soviet ambition to rule the world. In the face of that fact, our own Government blundered and compromised from conference to conference, each time aiding and abetting that very scheme of Soviet world conquest . . . that, in short, is the way we go into our present fix in world affairs."

Taft Would Limit Aid

the plan outside the State Department, he added:

"We should limit the amount of aid so that the administrator will feel compelled to select only those projects of clear economic value to the European nations concerned. If any program does not produce results, it ought to be stopped."

At another point, he added:

"All we can do is remove the bottlenecks and prime the pump."

This view parallels in major part the position of a group of 20 Republican Senators who have been urging revisions in the Marshall Plan.

Senator Ball (R., Minn.) is one of the leaders of this group. Taft told a news conference earlier in the day he is indorsing Ball's bid for renomination and reelection.

Former Governor Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, who is contesting with Taft for Ohio's presidential support, has not made public his stand on Ball. Stassen, whose home is South St. Paul, is away on a speaking tour.

Taft obviously tried to make clear in his speech his differences with Stassen over foreign policy.

Taft's call for a reduction of Marshall Plan spending contrasted with Stassen's recent statements approving the full $6,800,000,000 proposal.

"World State" Ridiculed

The Ohioan condemned as "dangerous, impractical and ridiculous any plan for a world state. Stassen has advocated moves in that direction.

As he has done before, Taft proposed that the Nations of the world sit down to write the rules of peace and then agree to abide by a world court's interpretation of them.

Taft told reporters he is not attempting to "steal" any delegates away from Stassen in Minnesota. But he expressed hope that these delegates will turn to him if Stassen fails to make the nomination grade.

The Ohioan said likewise he hopes to gain support in Wisconsin if Stassen, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who are contesting there, fail of nomination.

Nebraska Victory Predicted

Taft predicted that he can win in the April 13 Nebraska preferential primary.

The Ohio Senator asserted in his speech that the Democrats must accept the responsibility for "the losing of the peace thus far."

"The appeasement of Stalin, the abandonment of constitutional Yugoslavia, the betrayal of the Polish patriots, the wild goose chase for a Communist-Nationalist Coalition in China—these, for example, are not Republican policies," he said.

He credited Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich) with having halted what the Ohioan said was President Truman's policy of "appeasement" of Russia.

Lincoln Day Talks Rip Into Administration

By The Associated Press

Republicans lashed out at the Administration's foreign and domestic policies in Lincoln Day speeches last night.

Former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, told a party rally at Germantown, Pa., that the Soviet Politburo is trying to "tear down the economy of Europe" by opposing the Marshall Plan.

He said the United States should remain strong, help to strengthen the United Nations, guard against "bubble booms and depressions," and "bring our world economy policy in line with our foreign policy."

The President was called a "defeatist" and a "bewildered man" who has "alarmed Congress by his almost daily demands for power, and more power."

"Wastrel demagogues," "regimentation," police state," "national bankruptcy," were some of the terms applied to Administration leaders and policies.

It was Senator Wherry, of Nebraska, acting majority leader of the Senate, who described Mr. Truman as a "defeatist" ever ready to grasp for "power." Speaking at Huntington, W. Va., he said:

"One day the President goes to the left, the next day to the right, zigzagging back and forth, attempting to outlead Henry Wallace, but giving lip service to Jeffersonian Democrats."

"Where are the Jeffersonian Democrats today?" Wherry asked. "They are just waiting to be invited to join us. They know a vote for Republicanism this fall is a vote for Americanism."

Wherry also termed the President a "bewildered man," adding:

"One moment he advocates the imposition of price controls to lower prices, and, in the next he has the Secretary of Agriculture announce the purchase of 50 million bushels of wheat, which would prevent a fall in the market."

Chairman Carroll Reece of the GOP National Committee, speaking at Indianapolis, joined Wherry in extending a welcome to dissatisfied Democrats.

Calling the Republicans the "liberal, forward-looking" party with "no pro-Russian faction" in it, Reece said:

"The Republican Party welcomes the support of every American devoted to the perpetuation of our representative republic and the economic system which has grown up under the protection of that republic."

House Speaker Martin, at New York, declared the only way to assure success of the European recovery plan is to "turn out the incompetents in Government."

U. S. UNESCO Unit Adds Two Youth Representatives

The United States National Commission for the United Nations Economic, Scientific and Cultural Organization put its accent on youth yesterday in adding representatives of two groups which have not previously participated.

Sullivan Gray

Milton S. Eisenhower, chairman of the commission, announced that he had added to it Donald F. Sullivan, representing the Youth Division of the National Social Welfare Assembly, and Robert S. Smith, representing the United States National Student Association.

Sullivan, 22, is a former 4-H Club winner and currently a foreign service student at Georgetown University here. Smith, 23, is doing graduate work at Yale, after receiving a degree from Harvard. Both are veterans.

The commission will hold its semiannual session at the State Department here on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Eisenhower also announced four more appointments to the commission to replace representatives of organizations already serving with the body.

They are: Thomas C. Boushall, president of the Bank of Virginia of Richmond Va., who will represent the United States Chamber of Commerce; Robert M. Gates president of the Air Preheater Corp. of New York, and past president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, who will represent the Engineers Joint Council from New York City; Maj. Gen. Carl R. Gray, jr., newly appointed head of the Veterans Bureau, from Washington, D. C., and P. G. Stromberg, publisher of five Maryland newspapers, from Ellicott City, Md., who will represent the National Edistorial Association.

Suffrage for District Indorsed By Miami's New Mayor

City Manager Plan Also Favored by Robert L. Floyd

Robert L. Floyd, recently-elected mayor of Miami and himself a former Washingtonian, yesterday indorsed suffrage here and found a good word too for the city manager system.

The youthful Floyd—he was 29 at his landslide election to the Miami City Commission last November—declared it "difficult to understand how nearly a million citizens of this country are not allowed to have a voice in representative Government."

City Manager Favored

He plugged hiring of city managers to run a municipality asserting that form of government could be efficient and effective provided the city commissioners do not interfere with the manager. (Under the Auchincloss-Ball bill, the District would be run by a city manager.)

In Washington to argue before the Civil Aeronautics Board for additional air service for Miami, Floyd also joined other Florida municipal officials yesterday at the White House in an appeal to President Truman for immediate price control and rationing of fuel oil.

Floyd, a graduate of the University of Florida and the Washington College of Law, served as a special agent with the Federal Bureau of Investigation here from 1939 to 1945. He has been admitted to the District bar.

Received Record Vote

He was elected to Miami's five-man board of commissioners by the largest vote ever given a candidate for that office, and a short time later was chosen mayor by his fellow commissioners. Miami, he says, is actually run by City Manager Richard G. Danner, a graduate of Georgetown University, who administers policies made by the commissioners.

Mayor Floyd, who considers Washington his "second home," has no use for an administration which is appointed instead of being elected.

"I feel," he declared, "that the fundamental principle of good government is to make the public office holders answerable to the people they represent."

Belgium Mobilizes Utility Strikers

Brussels, Belgium, Feb. 12 (AP).—The Belgian government tonight ordered civil mobilization of the gas and electricity industries tonight to end a strike.

Every employe and executive of all public and private producing and distributing companies must be at work by tomorrow morning or be sued, the government declared.

About 18,000 workers out of 23,000 walked out today demanding a 5 per cent wage bonus. About 60,000 out of 165,000 coal miners walked out earlier in the week demanding a 7½ per cent wage increase.

Fate of Thomas Committee Up to High Court

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

The constitutionality of the House Committee on Un-American Activities was put squarely up to the Supreme Court yesterday.

When Leon Josephson, a New York lawyer, would not answer the committee's questions, he was fined $1000 and given a year in jail. He appealed to the justices to set these punishments aside, and to hold that the committee violated six articles of the Constitution.

Josephson's counsel—Samuel A. Neuburger, Barent Ten Eyck and Samuel Rosenwein—told the court there was no doubt Congress had a right to make investigations. But they said the Committee on Un-American Activities was not a real inquiry.

Instead, counsel said, the committee has set up as a grand jury, put the name of a "million Americans" on a blacklist, and openly tried to "hound" all who do not agree with its ideas out of their jobs—public and private—and into jail when it could. To do this, the brief went on and cited cases in an effort to prove it, the committee made illegal searches, unlawful arrests and irregular prosecutions.

Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman and Assistant Attorney General T. Vincent Quinn urged the court not to hear the appeal. How the committee acts and what it does, the Government said, is a matter of policy, to be decided by the Congress and not by the courts.

The United States Court of Appeals in New York ruled against Josephson, by a 2-to-1 vote, a few weeks ago.

Whether the Supreme Court will meet the issue, or let the Court of Appeals ruling stand—without, however, giving it Supreme Court sanction by doing so—may be announced on Monday.

Garner Stand Against Soviet Is Revealed

By the United Press

John N. "Cactus Jack" Garner, Vice President during the first two terms of the New Deal, warned the late President Roosevelt in 1933 that nothing but trouble would result from granting diplomatic recognition to Communist Russia, it was disclosed yesterday.

That and many other previously untold stories of Garner's key role in the government from 1932 to 1940, when he broke with FDR over the third term issue, were revealed in the first of a series of Collier's magazine articles by Bascom N. Timmons, veteran Washington correspondent.

Timmons is an intimate friend of the colorful Texan and his revelations were made with Garner's consent. Garner, now 79, lives on his ranch at Uvalde, Tex.

Three Early Disputes

During the first New Deal term, the period covered in Timmons' first article, Garner had only three major disagreements with the man he called "Cap'n Roosevelt."

One was over Roosevelt's decision to end the diplomatic "freeze" on the Soviet Union. Garner told Timmons at the time:

"If we have asquiesced in the Comintern and given it opportunity to work unhampered in this country, we may be inviting trouble. This outfit wants to pull down our Government . . . and every capitalistic government everywhere."

Later, after Russia had been formally recognized, Garner remarked that he hoped it "turns out better than I think it will."

His opinion of the Soviet Union was still unchanged in 1939 when Hitler marched into Poland, Timmons said. At that time, he was quoted as saying to FDR:

"You havn't much choice, Cap'n. Either Hitler or Stalin would conquer the world. Hitler by force. And Stalin by chicanery, corruption, treachery and undermining."

Timmons quoted Garner as saying "the most frequent bone of contention" between himself and Roosevelt concerned the appointment of Senators to committees. As presiding officer of the Senate Garner said he felt he was obligated to make committee appointments fairly on the basis of who "had ability and equipment for the job."

But he complained the President "was constantly trying to influence me . . . He would say to me, "Jack, you ought not to appoint our enemies on these committees."

Timmons reported that one famous piece of New Deal legislation—the 1933 law under which the Government guaranteed bank deposits—was pushed through by Garner against FDR's strong opposition. Later, he said, when Roosevelt issued a statement praising the law, Garner laughingly remarked:

"I see Roosevelt is claiming credit for the guarantee of bank deposits."

Pleased on Whole

On the whole, however, Garner felt at the end of the first term that FDR had done a good job, Timmons said.

Timmons said Garner's personal relations with FDR were excellent and Garner liked to play poker with the "Cap'n."

Garner's opinion of Henry Wallace and Henry Morgenthau, jr., with whom he sat in New Deal Cabinet meetings, was less flattering. Garner, Timmons said, felt Wallace had "crazy ideas" and that Morgenthau had "no ideas at all."

Of the former Treasury Secretary, Garner was quoted as saying:

"Morgenthau is the most servile man toward Roosevelt I have ever seen. I mean servile, not loyal."

Timmons said Garner explained that he had given up trying to joke with Morgenthau because he "had no sense of humor." Later, Timmons said, Garner added that perhaps the phrase was "exactly two words too long."

'Cactus Jack' Still Hale and Hearty

President's Speech Criticized, And It Was a Good One, Too

Old hands at the National Press Club couldn't understand it. One of the news tickers there was tapping out bitter criticism of a speech by the President. This is what the story said, without a date line or other identification:

" 'The cheek of every American,' announced the Chicago Times, 'must tingle with shame as he reads the silly, flat and dishwatery utterances of the man who has to be pointed out to intelligent foreigners as President of the United States.' . . .

"The London Times correspondent wrote as follows: 'The ceremony was rendered ludicrous by some of the sallies of that poor President. Anything more dull and commonplace would not be easy to produce.' A Polish newspaperman commented that the President 'spoke with one eye to the future platform and to reelection.' "

That was all. The ticker went on to other subjects.

Telephones began to ring at the office of the United Press, for the story had appeared on the ticker of its Washington City News Service. The office of the Times of London, in the National Press Building, was beseiged with inquiries.

Before long the mystery had been cleared up. The President involved was Abraham Lincoln, and the speech was delivered at the Gettysburg National Cemetery in 1863.

The United Press had prepared a feature story on Lincoln for its radio circuit, and had quoted contemporary comments in the Gettysburg address from Sir William Russell of the Times of London and others.

A wire had been crossed, and a portion of the radio feature on Lincoln had been put by mistake Wednesday evening onto the regular Washington City News printer, which serves newspaper correspondents and Government offices in the Capital.

Service Feuds Are Forbidden

future war, and in turn naval officers believed Symington overstated the Air Force case.

There have been no less than 20 speeches by top officials since unification which brought protests from the other services. One official, who did not want to be quoted by name, declared that "unification has merely dumped three quarreling cats into one sack."

Other officials say this is an exaggeration but want to keep differences of opinion within the armed forces from constant public airing.

Forrestal is represented as feeling that such differences are inevitable. He doesn't want "yes men" at the helm of the Army, Navy and Air Force, it is said, but wants to keep controversies "within the family."

The Secretary of Defense spoke out sharply on the question at a meeting of the War Council last week. The body is made up of the civilian and military heads of the three services.

Afterward he sent a memorandum to those officials recalling his admonition. He added that "it was to the mutual interest of all of us to minimize public evidence of friction among the services, as well as public evidence of friction between the national military establishments and other departments and agencies."

Recalling a prior directive of last October 20 on the subject, Forrestal wrote:

"In order that there can be no possible misunderstanding on this important subject, I want the following policy put into effect immediately:

"That no article which touches on a controversial subject shall be published, nor shall any public address which touches on such a subject be delivered by any of the Secretaries, Undersecretaries, assistant secretaries, chiefs of staff, chief of naval operations, deputy chiefs of staff or vice chief of naval operations, without prior submission to and approval by the Secretary of Defense."

As a practical matter, due to the limited size of Forrestal's public relations staff, speeches or articles actually will be submitted to his office only in case of disputes. Instead, a speech or article by a top Air Force official, must be cleared ahead of time with the Army and Navy and vice versa.

Weekly conferences between the public relations chiefs of the Army, Navy and Air Force and other military agencies with Forrestal's aides are expected to help iron out the situation.

Tobacco Experts Plan Sessions for Maryland Growers

Tobacco experts of the University of Maryland Agricultural Extension Service yesterday announced plans for a series of meetings at which southern Maryland growers will discuss parity and support prices, grading and other tobacco problems.

Dates have not yet been set for the panel discussions, but they will be held in several communities in the seven tobacco-producing counties.

A "pilot" session will be held in advance to see if the experts have the answers to all the questions the growers are apt to propound.

"We are doing this," declared W. B. Posey, extension service tobacco specialist, "to make sure that every side of various questions is discussed."

The Southern Maryland Farm Bureau suggested after the close of the last market season that tobacco growers need to participate in the Government's price-support programs.

sumers, reducing prices for soap bars and soap powders.

A new, indirect form of future savings for the housewife, and immediate benefit to the farmer, was news of sharp cuts in the price of feed for cattle, hogs and poultry.

The cuts in feed prices, a normal follow-up to breaks in grain market listings, have reduced almost all feed prices to farmers in this area from $10 to $15 a ton, manufacturers and distributors disclosed.

One large Maryland feed distributor said he dropped the price of soybean meal, a major ingredient in most feeds, from $130.65 an January 26 to $96.99 yesterday. This compares with a price of $84.30 in mid-February of last year.

A dairy feed was quoted at $121.10 a ton on Feb. 2, 107.91 yesterday, and $85.58 last February; laying mash for poultry—$125.50 on Feb. 2, $110.66 yesterday, $86.18 last February; hog feed—$123.74 on Feb. 2, $109.34 yesterday, $79.66 last February; whole grain corn—$117.93 on Feb. 2, $100.05 yesterday, and $71.06 last February.

Despite these drops, however, one feed dealer reported that farmers, like housewives, "are being very cautious about buying—waiting for additional price cuts."

Industry officials predicted the lower feed costs would be reflected eventually in reduced egg and poultry prices. Previously, they said, farmers have cut down on sizes of their flocks because of high feed prices.

justment" rather than the beginning of a slump of the 1929 kind.

The chamber said that the break was overdue in the opinion of most observers, but added that the decline "may bring some hesitation and some minor recessions in business," with processors of farm products being particularly hard hit.

Representative Stephen Pace (D., Ga.) said that union leaders ought to stop demanding wage increases and cheap food at the same time, since the two were incompatible.

President Truman, at the outset of his news conference yesterday, said that the Treasury's campaign for the sale of savings bonds had his complete support. He went on to say:

"In response to widespread appeals from retailers, bankers, industrialists, farm leaders, heads of organized labor and citizens generally in all walks of life, a national savings bond drive has been organized that can help the Nation in peace as it did in war.

"The special sales drive will begin April 15. It will be known as the 'Security Loan.'

"I call upon Americans to participate in every way possible either by buying bonds or serving as volunteer bond salesman, or both. Bonds will be sold from door to door, office to office and bench to bench."

This was the way it was done in the war days, he said, and without such efforts the victory of the fighting forces might not have been achieved. He said the same sort of effort was needed now, and he went on to reiterate what he told Congress on November 17—that every dollar saved now is a dollar fighting against inflation.

Golden Dipt POTATO FRITTERS
ARE DELICIOUS AND EASY TO PREPARE

Otto Klopfer, late chef of the Missouri Athletic Club, is responsible for this recipe. You'll want to serve Golden Dipt Potato Fritters often.

2 cups grated raw potato
1/4 medium size onion, grated.
1/2 cup Golden Dipt teaspoon chopped parsley
pinch of baking powder

Mix all ingredients well and drop by tablespoonsfuls into deep fat at 375 deg., or flatten and fry in pan. Cooking time 3 minutes. Serves 4.

Golden Dipt, containing milk, eggs and seasoning, serves as a binder to prevent crumbling and, being grease resistant, seals out the frying fats and seals in the flavor. You'll find many uses for it.

BUT, BY ALL MEANS, TRY GOLDEN DIPT POTATO FRITTERS

3 Congress Groups Probe Market Break

Ten Days Ago Same Committees Were Investigating High Commodity Prices

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Three congressional committees that ten days ago were investigating the high prices of commodities, yesterday were seeking to find what caused them to crash.

Some Republican leaders, who were criticizing the Administration for high prices, yesterday were blaming the Democrats for the sudden break of a week ago, and vice versa.

The first step in probing the reasons for the break will come Monday, when E. T. Maynard, Chicago grain speculator, will appear before the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee investigating speculation.

Hog Market Gains

Meantime, with the stock and commodity exchanges closed for Lincoln's Birthday, only livestock markets were open. Hogs gained slightly, cattle were steady, and lambs higher. Winnipeg grain markets and London stock markets displayed nervousness, but little else.

On the political scene developments included:

1. SENATOR Milton R. Young (R., N. Dak.) demanded an investigation of L. T. Maynard, the Chicago trader who made around $300,000 in grain speculation since February 4. Young, a member of both the Senate Agriculture and Appropriations Committees—each of them probing market speculation—made his demand before the former. The committee was trying to find out whether to write a bill to give the Government control over margin requirements for commodity exchanges.

2. YOUNG was told by E. F. Creekmore, veteran New Orleans cotton dealer, that he hadn't heard of anybody profiting by inside Government information in many years. "There may have been leaks years ago," he said, "but I haven't heard of any lately."

Thomas Sees Danger

3. Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.) whose own commodity trading is being probed by the Appropriations Committee of which he is a member, declared it would be dangerous to give the Agriculture Department power to fix margins for grain speculators. Traders now speculate on what will happen to prices, Thomas said. If the Agriculture Department had power over grain margins they would have "to gamble on two things: (1) Economic conditions, and (2) what the Secretary of Agriculture had for breakfast and how late he stayed out last night."

4. A week ago most Republican Congressmen were blaming Secretary Anderson for causing high prices. Yesterday Representative Charles R. Robertson (R., N. Dak.) declared that the Administration has "deliberately caused a panic for purely political purposes." He said the break in prices had cost North Dakota farmers from 150 to 200 million dollars. The drop, he said, "represents an attempt to buy CIO-PAC votes with cheap food, even though it means ruin to American agriculture."

5. Democratic members of the special House committee investigating market speculation, loosed a blast at their chairman, Representative August H. Andresen (R., Minn.).

Charge Pact Violated

Representatives John W. McCormack (Mass.); Albert M. Rains (Ala.); and John A. Carroll (Colo.) charged Andresen with violating an agreement that "no public statements relating to the investigation would be made while the inquiry is being conducted."

"We have assumed," they said, "that the special committee was created to make a genuine investigation and not to serve as a vehicle for partisan political purposes."

At the Agriculture Committee hearing Young and Creekmore got into quite a discussion of market speculation. When Young referred to the Chicago operator, Maynard, as a "gambler," Creekmore took exception.

Maynard, Young said, "may be working with 20 other big gamblers."

Creekmore said Maynard was a speculator instead of a gambler, and doubted "if there was any concocted scheme to break the market."

Young wondered "if all grain traders are not working together in plunging the market down."

"Speculators don't work together," Creekmore said.

Agricultural Department economists fear that the lower grain prices may encourage increased feeding of livestock. Grain prices are nearing a point where it will be more profitable for farmers to feed their livestock to heavier weights before marketing than they have been doing in recent months.

Less feeding of livestock, and voluntary rationing by the American housewife because of the high prices, has saved a lot of grain in recent months.

Although last year's crops of the five chief grains were a staggering 800 million bushels less than the year previous, the stocks on hand on January 1 were only 600 million bushels less—although still an extraordinary high figure, it represents a saving of 200 million bushels since harvest.

Agriculture economists fear heavier feeding of livestock because of lower grain prices may wipe out this gain, and bring about an extreme shortage of grain this summer although relieving the anticipated shortage of meat.

The Dun & Bradstreet weekly wholesale food price index dropped to $6.83 this week, down 31 cents in a week and lowest since last November 4. The index, representing wholesale price a pound of 31 foods in general use, suffered its sharpest weekly break since the Government rolled back livestock and meat prices in September, 1946.

Movie 'Trailers' To Aid Campaign

Safe driving movie "trailers" will be shown in District theaters this month as part of the city's safe winter driving campaign, A. Julian Brylawski, president of the Motion Picture Theater Owners of Metropolitan D. C., announced yesterday.

The February campaign is being sponsored by the Hotel Association of Washington and the Washington Restaurant Association, which will display cards bearing safe driving hints on dining tables throughout the month.

This is the second month of a year-round safe driving campaign sponsored by the Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Board and the Department of Vehicles and Traffic.

Newsboy Gets Life in Slaying

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 12 (AP).—A 13-year-old newsboy today pleaded guilty in the second degree to a purposeless murder of an attractive matron and was immediately sentenced to life imprisonment.

The young defendant, Ralph A. Duchacek, never was able to give investigators a reason for strangling Mrs. Dorothy Swenson, 41, in her Ashland home last July 7.

Mrs. Swenson's body, clad in shorts and a halter, was found with the head stuffed in a laundry bag.

No testimony was introduced as the boy appeared briefly before Superior Court Judge Edward F. Hanify.

"Dorothea Andrews, whose effective and scorching handling of a shocking restrictive convenant case in a Washington residential district may result in a history-making Supreme Court decision on this important issue.

[The suit in question, involving a request for a declaratory judgment on the validity of a racial restrictive covenant, was subsequently withdrawn since similar cases were pending in the Supreme Court. Editor's note.]

"Alfred Friendly, whose reporting of the fantastic Senate hearing on the appointment of David Lilienthal as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission played an important part in exposing and defeating the sordid and sinister opposition to this great public servant.

"Alan Barth, whose brilliant and militant editorials on a wide range of vital public issues are without peer in the country. The collection of Barth's editorials that were submitted to the judges as an entry should be required reading for every school of journalism student. For that matter, every other college student should be required to read them too.

"Robert H. Estabrook, another editorial writer whose editorials were also stirringly inspiring. For one paper to have two editorial writers of the caliber, courage and enlightenment of Estabrook and Barth is in itself worthy of an award.

"Herbert Block, whose searing and superb cartoons are in the very greatest tradition of that art. There are few American cartoonists today who are Block's equal, and none his superior. His presence on The Washington Post staff would, again, be another reason for singling out this paper for special meritorious recognition."

"In these days when playing it safe and treading softly is so general, the record of The Washington Post in 1947 is truly extraordinary. It is a vivid demonstration of what an outstanding newspaper is like and what it can do in serving its readers, its community and the country.

"That kind of patriotic leadership deserves the recognition of the working press of the country through their own organization—the American Newspaper Guild."

The judges undertook, on their own responsibility, the bestowal of citations and $100 awards on the six authors of the entries that won honorable mention.

The citations and awards that went to Herbert Block, Alfred Friendly and Dillard Stokes were for the stories summarized in the statement by Robert Allen, quoted above.

Edward J. Donohoe of the Scranton Times received honorable mention for coverage of a milk strike. In recognizing his achievement the judges stated: "The character of his reporting of the strike over an eight-hour-day period led to a reversal of the editorial attitude of his own paper, the Scranton Times, which in turn was evidently a strategic factor in settling the strike. The reporter apparently had an uphill job of reporting in the face of a one-sided opinion prevailing in the community."

Ralph Andrist and Ralph Backlund of Station WCCO, Minneapolis, were given honorable mention for a series of six programs called "Neither Free Nor Equal," dealing with racial discrimination in the Northwest. Their radio program won the 1948 award of the National Conference of Christians and Jews for the radio show doing most toward promoting better human relations.

Eight entries "given serious consideration" were listed by the judges as follows: Peter Lisagor of the Chicago Daily News, Sam Ragen of the Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer, Milt Phinny of the Los Angeles Daily News, Walt Partymiller of the York (Pa.) Gazette and Daily, Alan Barth of The Washington Post, Jacob Burck of the Chicago Times, Tom Humphrey of the Portland (Oreg.) Journal, Albert Deutsch of PM.

The 47 entries in the year's competition for the Broun Award were described by Mr. Lyons as "an impressive show" and a heartening evidence of the character of American newspaper work at its best."

Post Men to Take Part In WINX Discussion

Cartoonist Herbert Block and Reporters Alfred Friendly and Dillard Stokes of The Washington Post staff, who were cited for honorable mention in consideration of the 1947 Heywood Broun Award, will go on the air in a 15-minute discussion over WINX today at 8:30 p. m.

Taking part in the discussion with the three staff members will be Alexander F. Jones, assistant to the publisher of The Washington Post.

Roosevelt Plans Novel On John Paul Jones

New York, Feb. 12 (N.Y.H.T.).—Elliott Roosevelt said today he plans to write a historical novel about John Paul Jones, naval hero of the American Revolution, using material gathered by his father, the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Roosevelt said his mother, in sorting the late President's papers, had found 10,000 words of data on the naval hero, compiled by Mr. Roosevelt during his last year in the White House.

Miss Goosey Back in Britain

Southampton, England, Feb. 12 (AP).—Miss Margaret Goosey, 42, returned to Britain today after an unsuccessful trip to Virginia to marry a Negro former GI.

Disembarking from the United States liner Washington, she declined to discuss the wartime romance, which led to her imprisonment for violating a Virginia law against cohabitation with a Negro.

Miss Goosey was pardoned on condition she return to England. She said she hoped to return to her old job as a shoe worker in Northamptonshire. It was there she met Thomas Henry Jackson, 29, Virginia Negro serving in the United States Army. Last year she followed Jackson to Virginia.

No diplomatic protest is planned.

Britain Denies Soviet Charge Of Hitler Deal

London, Feb. 12 (AP).—Britain today denied Russian charges she had a secret anti-Soviet "deal" with Hitler in 1938.

A Foreign Office spokesman termed the Soviet charge "quite obviously unfounded." He said it hardly required a denial.

That constituted the central theme of Britain's answer to Russia's assertion last night that captured German documents showed the existence of a prewar British-French policy aimed at directing Hitlerite aggression eastward against Russia.

The British today did not deny the authenticity of the documents themselves.

The spokesman would only say, after an initial survey, that "we are not in a position to say that we can verify them all."

He observed some of the documents were "so colorless that no one would want to go to the trouble of inventing them."

The Russian charges followed publication by the United States State Department on January 21 of documents outlining prewar Soviet-German agreements, including one on the partition of Poland.

It became increasingly evident the latest Russian statement would not be the last based on German documents seized by Russia, Britain and the United States.

The United States, Britain and France together have more than two million of the papers. They now are being culled by experts in Berlin.

Note to Russia

Don't Expect Tune About Capitalism

By Arthur Edson
Associated Press Reporter

Suppose you wanted to compose a piece of music to the glory of capitalism. What would you do? Would your drummer hammer a cash register instead of a cymbal?

Crist

Or instead of a rat-a-tat-tat on a covered vat, would he do a flicker on a stock market ticker?

Well, don't let the idea upset your grace notes For Bainbridge Crist, sr., of the Cordova Apartments, 1908 Florida ave., nw., who has composed pieces played in the best society, says it can't be done.

"Preposterous," said Crist, in answer to this reporter's question. "There's no way to put a political idea across by music."

The whole thing was started by the Russians. They came out yesterday with a tsk, tsk! at some of their own composers, including such big leaguers as Dmitri Shostakovich and Serge Prokofieff.

The central committee of the Communist Party said these composers are toying with ideas which are "survivals of bourgeois ideology nurtured by influence of the modern decadent music of western Europe and America."

The Central Committee figured it was high time the Communists started grinding out communistic music.

If music can be communist, why can't it be capitalist, too?

Which brings us back to Crist. "Ridiculous," he said. "Music can be written only by inspiration—or maybe it's desperation. Certainly no one can tell you how a fine piece of music should be done."

Having dusted off the Central Committee, Crist was now ready for Shostakovich and Prokofieff.

"The Soviets would have been on firmer ground," he said, "if they had left the political angle out of it.

"Frankly, I detest Soviet music. It's cross-eyed, and it's knock-kneed, and it isn't music.

"I'm no old fogey. I like Ravel, and even Stravinsky, up to a point. But Shostakovich!

"The last time the National Symphony Orchestra here played Shostakovich I went out in the lobby and smoked the whole time."

With that, Crist returned to his composing. And you can be pretty sure that:

It won't sound like communism.
It won't sound like capitalism.
It won't sound like Shostakovich.

GI Crime Rate In Germany Drops 50%

Frankfurt, Germany, Feb. 12 (AP). The much-criticized American soldier in Germany now behaves himself better than the average American citizen in the United States.

Although beset by temptations of wine, easy women and easy money in the black market, the G. I. crime rate in Germany has dropped more than 50 per cent in the last year.

The Army has cut venereal disease rates by approximately the same proportion.

In the first year after Germany's surrender, G. I. misbehavior was one of the major concerns of occupation authorities.

Then came the crackdown. On April 24, 1946, Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, United States commander in Europe, ordered all troop commanders to restore discipline. The improvement gained pace after Gen. Lucius D. Clay succeeded McNarney at the start of 1947, with Lieut. Gen. Clarence Huebner as troop commander.

Now Army records show only one soldier out of 74 is contracting a venereal disease in a month, contrasted with one out of 47 in the summer of 1946. The number of "serious incidents" per thousand troops was only 1.15 last November, contrasted with 2.88 last March. "Serious incidents" include murder, rape, bulgary, robbery, assault and black-marketing.

New Indian Envoy Arrives

FAMILY ACCOMPANIES MINISTER—Arriving at LaGuardia Field in New York, Ratan Kumar Nehru, new Indian Minister to the United States, his wife, Rajen and their 14-year-old son, Ajit, alight from an American overseas plane after a flight from New Delhi. Nehru, who is scheduled to assume his duties in Washington this week, is a cousin of Pandit Nehru, who had been designated by Gandhi to be the Mahatma's successor.

Millions See Ashes of Gandhi Committed to Sacred Waters

By Margaret Parton

Allahabad, Feb. 12 (NYHT).—The ashes of Mohandas K. Gandhi were committed today to the waters of India, while millions of Indians watched and prayed.

In ceremonies at Prayag, site of an ancient Hindu City near Allahabad where the sacred Ganges and Jumna Rivers meet, the greater portion of the ashes was poured upon the flower-strewn waters at 1:55 p. m. while almost three million Indians watched from the shoreline.

Similar ceremonies were held at more than 50 holy places when smaller portions of the ashes were carried to the waters of river and sea in all the provinces of India, and to a few places in Pakistan. A national day of mourning—last of a 13-day period—was observed by both dominions.

A special five-carriage train carrying Gandhi's ashes in a copper urn arrived at Allahabad early this morning and was met at the railway station by Prime Minister Jawarhalal Nehru, Deputy Prime Minister Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel and other cabinet officers.

The urn, resting in a black, open-sided tabernacle, was placed on top of the flower-decorated carriage and escorted by Indian army units and barefooted disciples who walked the entire seven-mile trip.

Thick crowds threw garlands and handfuls of rose petals in its wake. The crowds today were silent and reverent.

The procession moved through the "mela" grounds where over two million devout Hindus have gathered to observe the annual festival of bathing in the two rivers. Here the arrival of the urn was greeted by masses of holy men, almost naked and smeared with white ash and mystical red marks painted on their bodies and foreheads, most of whom rang bells and beat drums as the procession moved by.

At the banks of the Jumna, the urn was transferred to a white amphibious vehicle and, accompanied by seven other "ducks," was carried out to the confluence of the rivers while several thousand devotees followed through the waters, some wading up to their necks.

For almost an hour the waterborne procession traveled up and down the rivers, giving the crowds along the shore a chance to receive what they believed was a final mystical blessing, by virtue of a glimpse of Gandhi's urn. Overhead, small planes dipped low, scattering flower petals and garlands.

On board the funeral boat, girl disciples chanted Hindu prayers, while a priest recited "mantras" calling upon the waters of "all the rivers and the oceans to be helpful" to Gandhi in achieving the welfare of all beings.

Devadas, fourth son of Gandhi, handed the urn to his brother, Ramdas.

Ramdas took the urn, touched it to his forehead and kissed it. Together, Ramdas and Devadas emptied the urn. Nehru and Patel assisted them.

Precious stones had been placed among the bones. The ashes had been mixed with the milk of a sacred cow.

There was a gentle whirl on the surface. Those aboard the craft waved white handkerchiefs, signifying fulfillment of the rite by which, under Hindu tradition, Gandhi was permitted to enter heaven. The ashes disappeared and the urn was rinsed with the waters of the rivers. Then thousands waded into the water and many drank from the confluence, with cupped hands.

Nehru declared:

"Here now has ended the journey of the father of the nation. He is no more among us, but his light will ever live in and among us and nothing—neither time nor distance—can quench it.

"We must take up where our father left and work unceasingly for Hindu-Moslem unity and social and political equality. We must not rest until a people's rule has been established in India, with the meanest and humblest having equal rights with the most exalted, without distinction as to race, religion, caste or creed."

Britain Denies Soviet Charge Of Hitler Deal

London, Feb. 12 (AP).—Britain today denied Russian charges she had a secret anti-Soviet "deal" with Hitler in 1938.

A Foreign Office spokesman termed the Soviet charge "quite obviously unfounded." He said it hardly required a denial.

That constituted the central theme of Britain's answer to Russia's assertion last night that captured German documents showed the existence of a prewar British-French policy aimed at directing Hitlerite aggression eastward against Russia.

The British today did not deny the authenticity of the documents themselves.

The spokesman would only say, after an initial survey, that "we are not in a position to say that we can verify them all."

He observed some of the documents were "so colorless that no one would want to go to the trouble of inventing them."

The Russian charges followed publication by the United States State Department on January 21 of documents outlining prewar Soviet-German agreements, including one on the partition of Poland.

It became increasingly evident the latest Russian statement would not be the last based on German documents seized by Russia, Britain and the United States.

The United States, Britain and France together have more than two million of the papers. They now are being culled by experts in Berlin.

Note to Russia

Don't Expect Tune About Capitalism

By Arthur Edson
Associated Press Reporter

Suppose you wanted to compose a piece of music to the glory of capitalism. What would you do? Would your drummer hammer a cash register instead of a cymbal?

Crist

Or instead of a rat-a-tat-tat on a covered vat, would he do a flicker on a stock market ticker?

Well, don't let the idea upset your grace notes. For Bainbridge Crist, sr., of the Cordova Apartments, 1908 Florida ave., nw., who has composed pieces played in the best society, says it can't be done.

"Preposterous," said Crist, in answer to this reporter's question. "There's no way to put a political idea across by music."

The whole thing was started by the Russians. They came out yesterday with a tsk, tsk! at some of their own composers, including such big leaguers as Dmitri Shostakovich and Serge Prokofieff.

The central committee of the Communist Party said these composers are toying with ideas which are "survivals of bourgeois ideology nurtured by influence of the modern decadent music of western Europe and America."

The Central Committee figured it was high time the Communists started grinding out communistic music.

If music can be communist, why can't it be capitalist, too?

Which brings us back to Crist.

"Ridiculous," he said. "Music can be written only by inspiration—or maybe it's desperation. Certainly no one can tell you how a fine piece of music should be done."

Having dusted off the Central Committee, Crist was now ready for Shostakovich and Prokofieff.

"The Soviets would have been on firmer ground," he said, "if they had left the political angle out of it.

"Frankly, I detest Soviet music. It's cross-eyed, and it's knock-kneed, and it isn't music.

"I'm no old fogey. I like Ravel, and even Stravinsky, up to a point. But Shostakovich!

"The last time the National Symphony Orchestra here played Shostakovich I went out in the lobby and smoked the whole time."

With that, Crist returned to his composing. And you can be pretty sure that:

It won't sound like communism.
It won't sound like capitalism.
It won't sound like Shostakovich.

GI Crime Rate In Germany Drops 50%

Frankfurt, Germany, Feb. 12 (AP). The much-criticized American soldier in Germany now behaves himself better than the average American citizen in the United States.

Although beset by temptations of wine, easy women and easy money in the black market, the G. I. crime rate in Germany has dropped more than 50 per cent in the last year.

The Army has cut venereal disease rates by approximately the same proportion.

In the first year after Germany's surrender, G. I. misbehavior was one of the major concerns of occupation authorities.

Then came the crackdown. On April 24, 1946, Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, United States commander in Europe, ordered all troop commanders to restore discipline. The improvement gained pace after Gen. Lucius D. Clay succeeded McNarney at the start of 1947, with Lieut. Gen. Clarence Huebner as troop commander.

Now Army records show only one soldier out of 74 is contracting a venereal disease in a month, contrasted with one out of 47 in the summer of 1946. The number of "serious incidents" per thousand troops was only 1.15 last November, contrasted with 2.88 last March. "Serious incidents" include murder, rape, bulgary, robbery, assault and black-marketing.

Police Seize 2 as They Raid $50,000 Lottery Headquarters

Facsimile of "Charity Guild" lottery ticket

The Washington chapter of the Charity Guild Lottery, which has peddled an estimated $50,000 worth of tickets, went out of business yesterday.

Police not only played the game to get evidence—they had four men working for the concern which operated from a delicatessen at 1220 4th st. nw., according to Lieut. Roy Blick.

An eight-man raiding squad yesterday arrested Ben Goldstein, 39, of 6030 Sligo Mill rd. ne., described by Blick as the "big wheel" of the guild, and Albert Sturman, 33, of 1226 Queen st. ne.

Both are charged with operating a lottery and possession of lottery tickets.

Blick said the lottery operated on a principle of "contributions" of 50 cents for each ticket. The prizes, totaling $20,000, offered $8000 as the maximum award. Drawings were to be in July.

The raiders seized 9000 of the tickets; it was estimated 100,000 had been distributed in the District. Blick indicated the lottery spread to other States and submitted all his information to "the proper authorities."

Police took up the case in mid-January with the arrest of a man on numbers charges. The man had several of the Charity Guild tickets on him. Blick assigned Detective Sergt. Paul H. Clark to the investigation, and within a few days four undercover men were selling tickets. Daily they turned in their ticket stubs and money, they said—including $41 of marked money, which was recovered. The undercover men identified Goldstein and Sturman as their employers.

Their pay—$1.50 for each book of 12 tickets; $2 each if they sold more than 100 books.

Buyer to Turn Savage, Md., Into Yule Village

Baltimore, Feb. 12 (AP).—Harry Heim signed the papers today for purchase of most of a Maryland town he plans to turn into a permanent Christmas village.

Heim, manufacturer of Christmas balls here and in San Diego, Calif., bought the old cotton duck mill in Savage, Md. It's the only industry in the Howard County town of 1400 and half of the homes were included in the sale.

Heim's purchase saved the town from economic strangulation, which had been setting in since the cotton mill closed last August. The mill had been the oldest continuously operated industry in Maryland, being dated from 1750.

The property includes a quarter of a mile of land on each side of the Washington-Baltimore blvd. There is where Heim announced previously he would erect a permanent Christmas display with figures from nursery rhymes and stories.

Heim intends to move his Baltimore Christmas ball operations to Savage in three months.

Arlington Bar Tables Court Bill Approval

Despite strong objections, the Arlington Bar Association yesterday tabled a motion to approve a bill to set up a separate county juvenile and domestic relations judge.

By a heavy vote, the motion was specifically deferred for study until the next session of the Virginia General Assembly.

At the same time, however, the Bar Association voted to oppose a bill to abolish the integrated State Bar, to which all attorneys practicing in Virginia must belong.

Also approved was establishment of a group health plan within the association in which members might participate.

Bar Association member Vincent Tramonte objected to the tabling of the juvenile court motion. The measure, he said, would relieve badly overcrowded conditions in Arlington County Court.

He presented figures compiled by County Court Judge Hugh Reid, showing that the court's case load had increased from 4000 to nearly 12,000 in the past two years.

Tramonte said the judge had admitted being unable to handle the heavy load adequately. The idea of a separate juvenile and domestic relations court, under a separate judge, first was suggested to the Bar Association in a letter from Judge Reid.

The Juvenile Court now functions under the County Court, with cases in both categories handled by Judge Reid.

Britain Declines Bid to Meeting On United Europe

London, Feb. 12 (AP).—Winston Churchill said tonight the British government and the Labor Party had declined invitations to a meeting of the "United Europe" movement at the Hague, May 7 to 10.

Churchill is head of the nonpartisan, international United Europe movement in Britain and of the Conservative opposition party.

Churchill asked cooperation of Prime Minister Clement Attlee and War Minister Emanuel Shinwell, head of the Labor Party executive.

Attlee replied it would be "undesirable for the government to take any official action."

Shinwell wrote the party executive felt the meeting would have "no real representative character."

Dr. Overholser will talk on Mental Hygiene at 11 o'clock today. Griffith will address the conference banquet at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Unemployment Increase Blamed on Bad Weather

Hagerstown, Md., Feb. 12 (AP).—Inclement weather was blamed today for an increase in unemployment in Washington County.

Manager D. Paul Shilling of the State Employment Service office here said 1238 idle workers filed for benefits last week, boosting the total of unemployed seeking jobs to 1421 in the county.

Expert Maps Steps to Revive Arnold Lines

Marmion D. Mills, new boss of the Arnold Bus Lines following a recent management shakeup, yesterday outlined four steps he thinks will pull the company "out of the hole."

It was the first light thrown on future Arnold Line plans since former general manager H. H. England resigned December 27, and the company announced a major stock transfer was pending.

Mills said he now has "full and complete charge" of the line, with resposnibility to the Arnold board of directors.

The 58-year-old transportation expert, who said he had directed the reorganization of systems in 29 cities since 1932, classed the Arnold Lines as "in mighty bad shape."

Owes Million and More

In 1947, he pointed out, the bus line lost approximately $200,000, it has "heavy" local debts, and owes a note of nearly one million dollars to the Buffalo, N. Y., Marine Trust Co.

To put the bus company in the black, Mills said he would:

1. Undertake a route-by-route expense analysis of Arnold operations.

2. Consider a possible cut in service on bus routes that fail to show a profit.

3. Adjust schedules and educate drivers so that "within six weeks there will be very little legitimate complaint" of tardy buses.

4. Try to pare maintenance costs, which Mills termed "the highest I have ever heard of."

From studies conducted since his arrival Monday, Mills said that last month only three routes out of Arnold's total of 11 "paid their own way." In the same month, out of 408,000 miles run, only 170,000 earned a profit for the line, he added.

Curtail Service or Raise Fares

Because "we can't operate a taxi service with a 40-pasenger bus" on unprofitable lines, Mills said service on some runs may have to be curtailed. The only alternative, he emphasized, would be higher fares.

Speaking of the line's high maintenance costs, the new manager said Arnold Lines has been paying a 10-cent-per-mile maintenance cost compared to one of 7.5 cents for the Oklahoma City transit system whose reorganization he recently directed.

Mills said his statistical study of Arnold routes and income should be completed "within six weeks."

To give Arnold Lines time to complete this reorganization, the Interstate Commerce Commission last month postponed "indefinitely" a scheduled January 27 hearing on the quality of its service.

O'Dwyer's Heart Affected

New York, Feb. 12 (AP).—Mayor William O'Dwyer, 57, today said an examination of his heart had disclosed a "coronary condition." He was advised to work shorter hours and limit night speaking engagements.

Death Cheated as Snowslide Rolls Rail Cars Off Precipice

PUSHED FROM TRACKS—Two small cars (lower right) of the Denver and Rio Grande Western Railway lie at the bottom of a deep gorge, 50 miles from Alamosa, Colo., and a third car (top left) rests on its side after being swept from the narrow gauge tracks by a snowslide Wednesday. Three small figures (circled) stand where tracks were buried by snow. (Aerial photo by David Mathias and Floyd McCall, Copyright, 1948, by the Denver Post)

Alamosa, Colo., Feb. 12 (AP).—Three railroad cars were hurled like toys down a mountainside by a rumbling snowslide, but all 14 occupants came out alive.

None of the dozen passengers and trainmen who were injured were hurt seriously. A 15-month-old boy who fell asleep on his grandfather's shoulder as he was carried to safety escaped injury.

A 19-year-old nurse suffered frostbitten feet as she scrambled, minus stockings and shoes, up the frozen snow slope in the yellow light of trainmen's lanterns. She took off her shoes to get traction, she said.

The train, on the narrow-guage Denver & Rio Grande Western line between Alamosa and Durango, was climbing toward Cumbres Pass when the slide struck shortly after 6 last night.

The torrent of snow, 100 feet wide, smashed into the last three cars. They were swept down the slope for distances of 30 to 500 feet. Cushioned by the packed snow, they did not overturn.

The nurse, Mary Martinez of Park View, N. Mex., said, "We hit a large tree and the car splintered. I am sure we would have gone on down the slope if that tree hadn't stopped us."

The wreck occurred at a 9000-foot altitude in subzero weather.

A rescue train reached the scene about midnight and brought the passengers here early today.

Norfolk Council Names Bell City Treasurer

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 12 (AP).—Alex H. Bell, collector of customs for the Virginia District, today was appointed city treasurer to complete the unexpired term of the late P Gray Tunstall. He won the appointment on a narrow 3-to-2 council manic vote.

His only competitor for the post was Col. Charles B. Borland, former city manager. Bell's name was presented by Councilman J. Rives Worsham, and the nomination was supported by Mayor Richard D. Cooke and Councilmen John Twohy 2d and Pretlow Darden.

Mississippians Call Meeting Of All 'White Jeffersonians'

Jackson, Miss., Feb. 12 (AP).—Some 5000 Mississippi Democrats in a State-wide meeting today called a conference "of all true white Jeffersonian Democrats" at a date to be announced.

Thus they indorsed action of their Governor toward a break with the national party over sponsorship of "anti-Southern" legislation.

The call for the Nation-wide conference was contained in a resolution. No oppcsition was voiced.

The Democrats today also declared "it to be our purpose to use our electoral votes to best serve our section and the Nation in the manner determined by the true white Jeffersonian Democrats."

In asking for the multi-State convention, the Mississippi Democrats specified it would be held here, but left the date to the State executive committee.

Governor Fielding L. Wright has been voicing agitation against the national party since his inauguration address on January 20.

Judge Moore authorized issuance of an injunction against the town and its council, restraining them from denying use of the pool to Paul Lawrence and other members of the Negro race. The town, near Charleston has a population of about 3000.

Judge Moore said a municipal government cannot relieve itself of a constitutional obligation to afford all citizens equal rights.

No Party Talks Set, S. C. Governor Says

Columbia, S. C., Feb. 12 (U.P.).—Governor Strom Thurmond denied today that a committee of five Southern governors had arranged to talk with national Democratic Party leaders about President Truman's civil rights program.

The South Carolina Governor said, "We are merely negotiating. Nothing has firmed up."

Governor Ben Laney of Arkansas yesterday said the committee representing the Southern Governors Conference would "lay our cards on the table" before Democratic National Committee Chairman Howard McGrath and other party leaders. Laney reported the meeting would be in Washington Feb. 22.

Thurmond said "studies are being made and it will likely be three or four days before anything definite is announced."

Moratorium Urged On Economic Bills

Rep. Wolcott Proposes Delay Until Market Drop Is Thoroughly Studied

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A two weeks to a month Congressional moratorium on economic legislation, including all forms of controls, yesterday was proposed by Representative Jesse P. Wolcott (R., Mich.), chairman of the House Banking Committee.

"We should mark time until we know whether this (market dip) is a stabilization recession, which is long overdue," Wolcott told newsmen.

He said the commodity market drop, in time, could affect even real estate values and rents. In this connection Wolcott said he may propose a temporary, 30-day extension of rent controls expiring February 29, to give Congress time to "find out."

Affects Grain Allotments

The House Banking chairman said his suggested temporary hold-up of economic measures definitely applied to the President's proposed order allocating grain to distilleries through next fall. It was his committee which recently rejected, 12 to 9, the Senate-passed 29-day extension of the liquor-distilling holiday.

Wolcott, whose views on economic legislation frequently reflect House GOP leadership policy, said he hadn't talked to Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., who is out of town, but proposed the wait-and-see line "on my own."

Wolcott said he agreed with Senator Robert A. Taft (R. Ohio), "that the President has been deliberately trying to hold prices up until after the November election," adding:

"Mr. Truman's position on controls is completely disrupted now. This is the most disastrous thing that could have happened to him. You can't use controls in a falling market to bring prices up."

Representative A. S. (Mike) Monroney (Okla.), a Democratic member of the House Banking Committee, challenged Wolcott's proposal on nearly every count.

Monroney said a mere 30-day extension of rent controls "will leave millions of tenants uncertain about tenure and rents and threaten many with eviction notices at the end of the 30-day period."

He said nothing in the present picture changed the need for controlling rents or altered "the desperate housing situation."

He said proposed resumption of the liquor distilling holiday to conserve grain likewise had no relation to the current market drop.

Hans Eisler Gets Order to Leave U.S. Immediately

Philadelphia, Feb. 12 (AP).—Hans Eisler, Hollywood composer, today was ordered deported by the immigration and naturalization service.

Eisler, brother of Gearhardt Eisler, once described as the "No. 1 Communist in the United States" has been ordered to leave the country as soon as possible, the [illegible] man added. In Washington, the Justice Department said it understood he is leaving Monday.

The brothers are natives of Germany. The order follows a New York hearing by immigration authorities into an allegation that Hans Eisler was a member in Germany of a group advocating the violent overthrow of this Government. He came to this country in 1941.

Mrs. Hans Eisler is expected to accompany him. Her status as a resident alien is also under inquiry.

Gerhart Eisler, who has been convicted of making false statements in a passport application, is now being detained at Ellis Island in a deportation proceeding.

Gallinger Hospital

We are glad to see in the report of the Board of Visitors to Municipal Hospitals recognition of the fact that much good work is being done at Gallinger Hospital. This newspaper has often had occasion to criticize the shortcomings of Gallinger, and we shall not hesitate to do so in the future whenever the facts warrant criticism. But it would be a pity to let the hospital's difficulties obscure the good work it is doing under adverse circumstances.

The Board of Visitors found that Gallinger is exceptionally clean, free of vermin and unpleasant odors; that the patients are "well fed, well cared for, and in a happy frame of mind." That is a notable tribute to the superintendent, Dr. Alvin R. Sweeney, and his staff; for the hospital is still severely handicapped. Dr. Sweeney's current request for four cooks has been denied; in the budget for next year he asked for 677 additional employes, including 438 nurses, and was allowed 28. The hospital's elevators still do not run because of the installation of improper equipment. Aside from the lack of funds, the hospital has found it impossible to fill all its existing vacancies since the war. The shortage of nurses is acute throughout the country. The hospital also loses many competent employes because of Gallinger's comparatively low salary scale. Its chief of medicine, salary $7500, has left to take a $15,000 position. Lack of personnel also made it necessary to use mechanical restraints on disturbed patients in the psychiatric department. In addition, several of its buildings are obsolete and should have been replaced years ago.

Operating under these handicaps, Gallinger cannot possibly render the type of service that the Health Department and Dr. Sweeney would like to see it give. But it is doing good work within its limitations, and we think the community ought to recognize this fact while pressing for improvements that will make still better service possible.

Population Again

The dangers implicit in a declining population are set forth anew in a report recently prepared by Mr. Henry Miller and Dr. William S. Bernard for the National Committee on Immigration Policy. What the committee proposes, of course, is to counteract the tendencies toward a static or declining population by a relaxation of the immigration laws. On the basis of figures compiled by the National Resources and Planning Board the Messrs. Miller and Bernard estimate that without immigration the population of this country will have become virtually static by 1985, or less than 40 years hence, and the positive shrinkage of population will have begun by 1990. The admission of 150,000 immigrants annually for the next 52 years would defer the date of the beginning of the decline by less than a decade. The admission of 300,000 immigrants a year would result in a virtually static population by the year 2000.

Thus to assure a genuine growth of population not less than 300,000 immigrants a year will be necessary. Assuming average fertility and mortality, this would result in an increase of 14,062,000 by the end of the century. The total population would then be 173,842,000, instead of the 159,420,000 with no immigration. According to calculations made by the Department of Agriculture in 1923, the maximum population which can be sustained here at the American standard of living would be in the neighborhood of 300 millions. Thus, if the figures are trustworthy, a more liberal immigration policy would not result in any real pressure on the means of subsistence. Indeed, if the sociologists quoted by Mr. Miller are correct in saying that an expanding population is a stimulus to productive activity, the result should be an improvement of living standards.

The implications of the report have been challenged by Mr. Guy Irving Burch of the Population Reference Bureau of Washington. Mr. Burch observes that if the United States had continued its rate of population growth in the early nineteenth century, the country would now be as overpopulated as India. Mr. Burch demands to know why if the Soviet Union can increase its birth rate without assistance from immigration, the United States cannot do the same.

This brings us to the question of industrialism and population. One well-known consequence of the industrial revolution in Europe was a prodigious increase in population. But at a later state of its development industrialism appears to make for a falling birth rate. At any rate, it is known that the inhabitants of great modern industrial cities do not reproduce themselves, and that the populations of such cities are replenished or increased by a movement from the farms and from the smaller villages and towns. As the ratio of urban to rural population thus increases, the drop in the birth rate is accelerated. Whether this will be the eventual experience of Soviet Russia we cannot say, but it has certainly been the experience of Great Britain and the United States. Thus any hope of permanently reversing the trend of the birth rate by means of earlier marriages and larger families must be predicated on rural resettlement and the decentralization of industry.

Military Ukase

Secretaries Marshall and Forrestal have put at rest the ugly reports that the United States decision on Palestine had been reversed by military ukase and that the United States was all set to desert the United Nations. The assurance is welcome, though belated. Officials in the State and Defense Departments began to work for the undermining of the partition resolution as soon as the decision had been taken last November. The handwringing resounded throughout the Middle East. It was interpreted in many commentaries from Washington as meaning that partition was as dead as the Caliphate. The result could have been forecast. A bluff by the Mufti party and the Mufti's gang of Nazi collaborators began to turn into a real threat. This in turn was used by the defeatists to show that partition was as good as buried. Perhaps, said the hand-wringers, the Arabs could be persuaded to let the Jews keep the town they built at Tel Aviv, and make it a sort of Vatican City; but the rest of the Jewish population, who had made Palestine blossom like a rose, could expect no other fate than to be vassals of the Mufti.

We doubt whether even this concession would be forthcoming from the Mufti party in the light of what has recently come out of Washington. Arab intransigence has become entrenched. The hatchet men for the Mufti will not tolerate moderation in Palestine, and are bumping off the moderates with Capone-like dispatch. Now they are extending their influence in Syria and Iraq. What the British have incurred as a result of their appeasement in the Middle East ought to be taken to heart here. The British refused to be party to any solution in Palestine that did not win Arab approval, they have refused hospitality even to preparatory work, yet the Iraquis by way of rewarding the British turned on them a month ago and refused to ratify a treaty that the Iraquis themselves had initiated. The English magazine, The New Statesman, echoes our own conclusion that British appeasement is responsible. This policy, it says, has earned only Arab contempt, and will simply lead to "nationalist xenophobia, directed not only at the Zionists but against the whole Western world." Mr. Bevin is reputed to have been so shaken by this boomerang that he has stopped his ears to Foreign Office pleas for less noncooperation in Palestine. This same kind of contempt the United States will assuredly earn by an attitude of pusillanimity and dilatoriness over Palestine. Both have already created the thing we contemplated, viz, Arab resistance under the leadership of our old enemy, the Mufti, and defiance of the United Nations.

Thus the belated dementi issued by Secretaries Marshall and Forrestal may be salutary. At least it will show the world that the Presidency is not in hock. That this had become the general impression was indicated the other day in the statement by the Alsop brothers that the President had confided the whole task of policy-making to the newly formed National Security Council. The reader must have registered a shock on reading that. Were we drifting into a condition where political decisions involving specific pledges as well as moral commitments have to be screened by the military? That would be the kind of thing that would make civilian America think second thoughts about unification, UMT—and about a lot of people. The policy-making function can be delegated only at the peril of the integrity of representative institutions, and Secretary Forrestal had no option but to act before reaction set in.

Cry of Alarm

Sir Stafford Cripps predicts a catastrophic collapse within a few months unless Britain receives Marshall Plan aid. During the past year Britain's adverse balance of payments amounted to about 675 million pounds (2.7 billion dollars) as compared with a net deficit of 380 million pounds in 1946. And the unfavorable trade situation is growing worse owing to adverse price movements and trade shifts. Earnings on British overseas investments, too, which paid for about 21 per cent of British imports before the war, now cover only 3 per cent of the cost of imports. As a result, gold and dollar resources, including the remaining proceeds of United States and Canadian dollar loans, have been badly depleted. Moreover, a run on British dollar reserves resulting from the abortive attempt to maintain sterling convertibility greatly augmented the outflow of funds last year.

At the present rate of depletion remaining gold and hard currency reserves will be exhausted in about six months, assuming that a minimum safety reserve of 275 million pounds remains untouched. Obviously, the British cannot stop a drain of such proportions by merely increasing exports; in fact, they are finding it increasingly difficult to expand exports and are fearful of increased competition owing to currency devaluation abroad and high production costs at home.

Lord Brand pointed out recently that once Britain's gold and dollar reserves were exhausted, they would be irrecoverable by her own efforts. He also suggested that it might become necessary to cut down exports to nondollar countries for which returns are in the form of inconvertible currencies. "They are a dead loss to us for the time being," he said, "and it may be that the labor and materials put into unrequited exports could be much better used in this country toward supplying some of our own requirements." Of course, he fully realized that such a solution would retard the rehabilitation of countries in receipt of British goods and would be a wholly undesirable solution. However, he was quite positive that no early or complete solution of Britain's dollar deficit problem was possible. Furthermore, he was as emphatic as Sir Stafford Cripps in asserting that there was no possibility of filling the dollar gap without American aid. This is a sobering thought that emphasizes the importance of hastening action on both European unification and the program for aid before an impending British crisis assumes the proportions of a disaster that would have far-reaching repercussions involving all trading nations.

Andresen Probe

We can understand why Representative Andresen of Minnesota is agitated over the sliding grain markets. For a slackening of the golden flood that has been pouring wealth into the farm regions that he represents is something to worry about in an election year. Of course if Mr. Andresen has reason to suspect that bear speculators have profited illegitimately from inside Government information, his committee should track down the culprits. But we do not believe that an inquiry into alleged speculative irregularities will throw much light on the current drop in grain prices.

The reasons for that decline are explicable without looking for scapegoats in the guise of speculators on whom to pin responsibility for a development that should be welcomed as a salutary adjustment of an unbalanced price structure. The news that Government purchases of spot wheat and wheat for nearby delivery had been largely completed removed the existing pressures that had resulted in booming wheat prices, and brought about sharp declines affecting other grain and food prices. But improved crop prospects at home and abroad have been the principal underlying cause of the changed price outlook. Moreover, it cannot be too strongly emphasized that food prices had reached levels so high that an adjustment was inevitable. They had to come down either by way of a crash or through an anticipatory corrective adjustment bringing food prices into closer alignment with the prices of other commodities.

Official price indices tell the story; at the mid-January peak wholesale prices for farm products were more than double the level of the base period 1926, while the all commodity index had advanced only 65.5 per cent during the same period. By January 31 of this year the wholesale index for farm prices had dropped slightly, but still showed an increase of 18.4 per cent for the year. Despite the spectacular character of the current drop in grain prices, Chicago wheat prices remain three times as high as they were at the beginning of 1939 and are about where they were a year ago. In the same market corn is still worth four times its value at the beginning of 1939, while its price per bushel is about 60 cents above the level of a year ago.

The drop seems extreme only by comparison with the extraordinarily high levels reached prior to the current recession. With food costs on a rampage that has resulted in progressive curtailment of consumer buying, salvation lies in a reduction in cost of living items made possible by the drop in wholesale prices. No congressional investigation is required to demonstrate this fact. Shrill cries of speculative manipulation serve only the purpose of politicians and their clients.

Junior Marshall

Seven Cub Scouts, representing the 50 members of Bethesda's Cub Pack 232, called on Secretary Marshall Tuesday to explain what they called their Junior Marshall Plan. Businessmen, when told of the project, have cooperated generously. This afternoon at 4 o'clock the pack will sponsor a benefit motion picture at the Bethesda Theater. The feature film and cartoon have been donated, as has the use of the theater. The scouts are attempting to raise money by other devices such as the sale of waste paper. The proceeds from all these endeavors will be combined to purchase CARE parcels for boys of the same age in Europe. Each den of Pack 232 hopes to adopt a European boy for one year, sending food and clothing. The physical giving is only the first step in the plan. Pack members also hope to strike up pen-friendships through correspondence with the Europeans they are aiding. The ingenuity of the Bethesda scouts dovetails with efforts of the senior scouts and the "peck for peace" plan already under way among Four-H clubs. Here is a heart-warming example of how the Marshall Plan can be brought close to home in terms of everyday living.

HARBOR AT NIGHT

The waves are gently lapping, lapping,
Lapping up along the strand;
Luminescent fingers trapping
Particles of sand.

As the water lightly, lightly,
Lightly leaves the lonely shore,
Wisps of waves that sparkled brightly
Break, and are no more.

Silent Lawyers

It is appalling to me that the business and professional leaders of the community seem to be taking, at least on the surface, the attitude that the effort of the Ball-Auchincloss Committee to reorganize the system of local government and the controversies about the proposed charter are none of their concern. For this attitude—whether it be the result of apathy or of opposition to any change and lack of courage to come out and admit it—one group deserves particular censure. I refer to the District of Columbia Bar Association.

In most communities lawyers are in the forefront of civic affairs. Their training, their experience and their daily work make them particularly competent to weigh the merits of governmental action, legislative and executive as well as judicial. In any other city a proposal to reorganize the basic structure of government would find the legal profession taking a leading part in suggestions, criticism, opposition and support.

Where has the District of Columbia Bar Association been for the last year? It took no part in the hearings held by the Auchincloss subcommittee last summer, although I understand it was invited to do so. It has not come forward in the present hearings before the joint subcommittee. No committee report has appeared at a time when the public and Congress are most in need of help in understanding the issues and improving the proposals.

Even if the bar association considered it inadvisable to take a stand on the bill as a whole or on the fundamental issues, there are specific features of the proposed charter so peculiarly within its province that its silence and inaction can only be considered admissions of incompetency. Even if the bar association could defend its failure to comment on a detail such as the change in the library setup, is there any justification for ignoring the proposed Department of Law? And is it not ashamed to have offered no opinion on the constitutionality of the provisions which would delegate legislative power to the council?

I happen to be a supporter of the principles of the Ball-Auchincloss bill. But I would not be nearly so disturbed if the bar association came out with a thoroughly intelligent and detailed opposition to the measure as I am by its failure to raise its voice at all.

Smaller Cars, More Gas

The current oil shortage, emphasizing recent estimates of the inadequacy of our oil reserves to meet our future consumption, raises the question whether substantial savings in use of oil or gasoline are not possible.

The fact that so much of our total consumption is accounted for by automobiles suggests such a possible saving. Most of our automobiles have a high consumption of gas per mile because they have more power than is actually necessary. Few people drive at 80 miles an hour and no one actually needs to drive up every hill on high.

If gas cost more at filling stations, as it does in most other countries, automobile manufacturers could be expected to adjust to a public demand for more miles per gallon by building lighter, smaller cars with less powerful motors but with good performance. This result could be brought about by a relatively high Federal tax on gasoline. It might be necessary to authorize such a tax two or three years before making it effective, in order to allow lighter, lower powered cars to be designed and produced. Such a tax, of course, would be opposed by oil companies and by people who want their car to be large, long and impressive. But if our oil outlook is as serious as the experts are saying, there is more at stake than such special interests and urges.

Such a tax, moreover, could bring a considerable number of other important savings to the Nation. Lighter cars would require less steel, use up less rubber and cause less wear and tear on roads. Smaller cars would decrease traffic congestion and leave more space for parking. And a tax adequate to produce these savings would make possible a substantial cut in income taxes.

Hit-Run Pedestrians

One afternoon last month a woman was knocked down by another woman running to catch a streetcar at Massachusetts ave. and North Capitol st. The hit-and-runner went on without stopping to say "I'm sorry." Too men took the victim home. Because of this carelessness she lies in the hospital with a broken hip.

We prosecute hit-and-run drivers. What about beginning with the pedestrians? L. S. C.

GSI "Discrimination"

I continue to deplore the existence and evil effects on harmonious race relations of those inciting influences which are responsible for the persistent injection of the race problem into every possible situation in which Negroes and whites are jointly involved. One of the recent examples of the crude attempts of this sort is the completely unfounded charge by the United Public Workers that the union had been attacked "because we are Negroes."

The falsity of this charge was immediately pointed out by a spokesman for GSI. The GSI spokesman stated "United Public Workers have tried to turn this into a racial matter and their charge has no basis in fact. GSI has been the predominant employer of Negro help in the District and the charge of discrimination against the colored race is patently ridiculous."

As a daily patron of the GSI-operated Government cafeterias, I have searched in vain for any evidence of the replacement of Negroes by whites among the new help hired during the emergency. All of the new employes appear to be colored, as were their predecessors. The sympathy inspired in the heart of any informed observer by the spectacle of the patient and weary pickets plodding along in rain and sleet bearing placards crying "racial discrimination" must be due solely to the realization that these trusting people have been led up a blind alley.

National Symphony Plight

In his letter of February 4, Mr. Calmon Sperling takes issue with the basic theme of the National Symphony's current sustaining fund drive, which he paraphrases as "an ultimatum to the people of Washington, that if contributions of $165,000 are not received during the present drive, the orchestra will be disbanded."

Mr. Sperling has three principal criticisms of this public appeal for funds to sustain the symphony: (1) the board of directors of the National Symphony solicits the public for contributions while denying the public access to its financial records; (2) the estimated budget for next season, from which the sustaining fund goal is derived, is based on a 24-week season, and the board "refuses to discuss the pros and cons of a shorter season to fit a less-than-ideal budget"; (3) the "threat" of the board to disband the orchestra if the full $165,000 goal is not raised could be dissipated by the election of a new board.

To take up the last criticism first, the current board of directors was elected—as any board is—by the membership of the National Symphony Orchestra Association, which is comprised of some 1200 who have contributed $25 or more per year to the orchestra's sustaining fund.

Actually, the board of directors has never stated that it would disband the orchestra if the sustaining fund goal of $165,000 is not raised. The board announced that if the full goal is not attained, all contributions will be returned to the donors and all pledge cards destroyed. (It follows, of course, that it would be difficult, but not impossible, to continue the orchestra under such circumstances.) That is as far as the board feels it has any right to go without calling a special meeting of the orchestra association membership.

In the eyes of the board, this announcement constituted not a threat, but a twofold promise. It is a promise that, with the present board, the current high and painfully achieved standards of the orchestra will not be lowered. The $165,000 goal is the minimum that will sustain them.

It is also a promise by this board not to run into unpaid deficits. Since a shortage of revenue during the season could stop the concerts (a calamity that very nearly occurred this season), the attempt to operate the National Symphony at a cost greater than its financial resources is an undertaking which the board feels is bad business, and not fair to itself, the musicians or the Washington public.

If sufficient money to sustain the orchestra is not received during the current campaign, a special meeting of the membership will be called, which will receive the board's recommendations. If the wishes of the membership and of the board are at variance, the board could with propriety, and probably should, resign.

As to the public's access to the orchestra's financial status, the board feels that public understanding of the finances of the orchestra is most desirable. Every year the membership of the association receives a full financial report from the treasurer at the annual meeting. This report is based on those of the auditors, La Frentz & Co., as of the end of each fiscal year, and of three other audit periods during the year. These reports are always open to inspection by each member of the association and of other interested people. Further, a complete estimate of the budget for the 1948-1949 season, from which the $165,000 sustaining fund goal is derived, has been supplied the press for publication.

The board feels justified in basing its 1948-49 budget on a 24-week season. The length of the orchestral season is most important—as important as the rate of pay per week to the musician, since the longer the season, the greater the total pay. It is to the advantage of the public as well: the shortening of the season causes the loss of valuable musicians and creates a large annual turnover in personnel, which in turn militates against the maintenance of an orchestra of high caliber. The length of the season has necessarily been the subject of thorough estimate, inquiry, negotiation and solicitude.

Washington Calling

Southern Revolt

THE CONVIVIAL days of old, when Democratic Senators gathered in the inner sanctum of Leslie Biffle, staff director of the Democratic Policy Committee of the Senate, are no more. A brooding bitterness is too often the mood today and even the best stories get hardly a chuckle.

The reason, of course, is the revolt of the Southerners, touched off by President Truman's civil rights message. The same kind of flare-up has occurred in the past, only to die down after a pyrotechnical display of Southern oratory.

But this time party leaders are deeply pessimistic. They discount a lot of the Southern talk about establishing a Southern wing of the Democratic Party which would nominate its own candidate for President. They minimize the possibility that electors from the Southern States might refuse to cast their ballots, thereby throwing the election into the House of Representatives. They do not, however, discount the effect of all this on the voters throughout the country. It feeds the impression of divisiveness and incapacity. And this time the flare-up seems likely to mean more than just oratory, even though it stops short of an actual split.

THE SOUTHERNERS are threatening to hold up nominations made by the President whenever they can. Their first target is likely to be the President's nomination of Thomas B. McCabe of Philadelphia to be chairman of the Federal Reserve Board. For a variety of reasons, McCabe's nomination was deeply resented.

To begin with, McCabe would fill the vacancy caused by the death of Ronald Ransom of Georgia, who was the only Southerner on the seven-man board. Failure to give proper representation to the South would in itself explain antagonism to the appointment. On top of this is the wide popularity in the Senate of Marriner Eccles, who is being demoted to vice chairman so that McCabe may have the chairmanship.

The McCabe appointment comes before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee next week. Four Southerners—Senators Fulbright of Arkansas, Robertson of Virginia, Maybank of South Carolina and Sparkman of Alabama—are on that committee. They could certainly delay action, and their votes might block it.

An even more practical threat which the Southerners say they will carry out concerns the Democratic war chest in this campaign year. There is nothing to compel the Democratic State organizations in the South to contribute to the National Committee as they have done in the past.

The Southern States have, in fact, been among the largest contributors. Because of the one-party system in the South, funds are not needed at home for a party battle. Consequently almost everything that was collected went to Washington.

EVEN THOUGH their per capita wealth is much less than that of most Northern States, Texas, Florida, Arkansas and North Carolina were among the first 10 contributors in both 1940 and 1944. Their contributions were exceeded only by New York and the District of Columbia, and they all outranked Pennsylvania. But not this year, say the Southerners. If they hold to this determination, the Democratic National Committee will be hard pressed to find generous contributors to make up the difference.

The Southerners even talk of blocking essential legislation. Whether they will go this far is doubtful. Nevertheless, here is another possibility of stalemate in an election year, when the machinery of Government creaks along slowly at best.

The required number of votes to shut off debate and stop a filibuster are said to have been counted in advance in the Senate. With the flow of oratory thus dammed up, the frustration and the anger will grow.

The suggestion which got into print, that the President might modify his civil rights stand by later repeating his request and carefully omitting reference to abolishing segregation on trains and buses, drew a stanch denial from the White House. Mr. Truman is prepared to stand behind every demand in his 10-point program, it was said.

The President's advisers are a little surprised at the violence of the Southern reaction. The 1944 Democratic platform said: "We believe that racial and religious minorities have the right to live, develop and vote equally with all citizens and share the rights that are guaranteed by our Constitution. Congress should exert its full constitutional powers to protect those rights." Mr. Truman in his message was merely translating that generality into specific demands, and he intends to back them up no matter what the cost.

The Last Drop

Ed Reed's February 5 "Off the Record" cartoon captioned "Young man, when I order a ton of coal I want every speck of it!" was good for an old-fashioned belly laugh.

As a matter of strict accuracy, the situation is not a true portrayal of the times. As the news columns of the daily press have stated, there is an adequate supply of coal. It is oil that is short.

A more accurate cartoon would have been a picture of a householder, bundled up in a cold house, holding a tea cup catching the last drop of oil from the hose of a delivery truck.

Australia Views Us

A Communication

CANBERRA, Australia.—Everywhere here people are talking about America and Americans. I understand a lot of Americans are talking about us. There seems to be an increased understanding that strength lies between us.

We have talked about America before, but discussed it more as a big business neighbor. Now we are looking at America in a different way—as an excellent immigrant pool. Most people welcome the idea of American migrants as much as English immigrants. There has been a slight aversion to European immigrants, but the American second generation European is very welcome.

Everywhere there seems to be a stimulus for a big American-Australian get-together. Our cabinet minister at the Havana trade talks, Mr. Dedman, says that without United States-Australian cooperation the trade talks would fail. Your Ambassador, Robert Butler, comes back here for Christmas saying that United States interest in this country is building up in waves. That made front-page news. Then I hear (officially, of course) that the United States Government is particularly interested in this country's progress and development.

Of course, relations between this country and yours have always been the best. But in Australia there has been an undercurrent of feeling about the States that has been inclined to be resentful or jealous of your so-called "we own the world" attitude, and a tendency to look down on everything American as loud, cheap or gaudy. Now that seems to be going fast and an era of "attachment" to the United States, and an admiration for American ability and forcefulness, seems to be coming in.

This growing mutual affection has been succinctly expressed on the highest level. Our Dr. Evatt and your Ambassador Butler have developed a high regard for each other. Both men are what we call "big-time operators." Not many people realize Mr. Butler's efforts to have Dr. Evatt's position in international statesmanship permanently recognized and established. People know Dr. Evatt's admiration for Mr. Butler's energy and ability. They have both expressed to me their satisfaction in working together.

FOR THE AVERAGE Australian to form an opinion about the United States, he has to rely on Hollywood, his acquaintances with American servicemen during the war, and the American Ambassador and his staff.

Frankly, having been over there myself, I consider that Hollywood has given an erroneous, overglamorized and second-rate impression. We see a lot of American movies, and the persistent battering by movie critics has eventually persuaded the public that these are not quite realistic enough for a firm basis for judgment. Most people now see a Hollywood movie and smile.

I certainly have no wish to discredit your servicemen who came here during the war. Everybody gives them top credit as warriors. But times were not normal and those who spent their leave in Australian cities left a high impression that was doomed to be deflated.

The lavish spending, the swagger, the gum chewing and whisky drinking, taxi hiring, apartment renting, bouquet throwing and cigarette handouts in a poorer and more timid country has since lost its glamour, and comment has been inclined to be as lightly sarcastic in reminiscence as is the talk about the movies. The GIs left an impression that was not harmful, but to the phlegmatically inclined Anglo-Saxon population it seemed a little loud.

Now in the postwar period Australia has an American Ambassador to look to.

AUSTRALIA has a desire to go ahead. We want immigrants. There have been labor problems, production problems and problems from lack of materials. But most industrialists and newspaper editors agree that Australia needs men with a will to work.

And so Australia sees Mr. Butler, a large, jovial Minnesotan, who is just loaded with that forceful energetic personality that is impressive. In Canberra, his "home town," they have seen him like a normal man; they have seen him fly off to all corners of the country, meeting people, seeing places, talking to organizations, civic and fraternal, pressmen, politicians, going through factories, getting down into the mines—meeting Australian people and telling them about the American people.

He talks of increased production; he says he likes this country and knows what possibilities it has. He wants Americans to come over here. Well, he has sold us the idea.

We want people who will open up chains of stores, delicatessens, garages. We want fellows who will produce radios, refrigerators, washing machines, make car bodies the way you do. We want a lot of those GIs back who will build houses, ships, work on airlines—well, most anything. We want them to work five days a week and then go have a good time. LALWYN L. POWELL.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

For Southern Rights They Are

THE WHITE SUPREMACY Southerners in Congress are now talking among themselves about placing either Senator Walter F. George of Georgia or Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia in nomination for the Presidency against Harry S. Truman. This underground discussion neatly balances the overt plan of the West Coast leftwingers to put forward Henry A. Wallace as a suitable Democratic nominee.

One thing is already clear, this year's Democratic convention is likely to resemble one of those awful children's parties, at which large numbers of the dear little guests gang up to kick the stuffings out of the grave but tearful host. In his role as universal nursery maid to his party, the chairman of the Democratic National Committee, Senator J. Howard McGrath, is going to have a pretty ghastly time preventing public mayhem. And this will be true, even though the Southerners do not carry out their threat to support a candidate of their own.

Overt Southern support for a rival to Truman, even if limited to the convention, would almost certainly be going further than the Southerners desire. The Democrats have been in so long that the Southern leaders have almost forgotten the hungry misery of dwellers in the political wilderness. But some faint recollection of this horrid state still lingers in their minds. They are still reluctant to destroy their party's chance at the election. This is what may be expected to nip the overt anti-Truman movement in the bud, although the plan may be expected to be watered with quantities of the same sort of Northern money that used to finance Gene Talmadge.

ON THE OTHER HAND, the strategy which the Southerners appear actually to be adopting will be almost as difficult for the White House to handle. As of today, it seems probable that the Southern States, including as a minimum South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, Georgia, Mississipppi, Louisiana, Alabama and Tennessee, will send uncommitted delegations to Philadelphia. The uncommitted delegations will be used to wrest from the platform committee a weasel declaration on the civil and human rights issue.

In the past few days there have been anxious negotiations between Southern leaders and White House representatives. The Southerners dropped hints that if the White House continued so scornful of the South the more violent expedient of sending overt anti-Truman delegations to the convention would have to be resorted to.

The President may deny the intention of conciliation until he is black in the face. He may personally have no such intention, but his representatives respond to the hints of the Southern leaders by hinting in return that the President would in the end approve a compromise on the platform's civil and human rights plan. The Southerners intimated that if such a compromise were forthcoming they would then content themselves with holding a postconvention rally, as they did after the Wallace nomination in 1940. At this rally they promised they would give free rein to their propensity for oratory, but would end by resolving that much as they detested Truman, they hated the Republicans even more.

IN CONGRESS, this plan has found favor with many, even among the extreme white supremacy shouters like Senator Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina. Meanwhile, some Southern Governors, like J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and M. E. Thompson of Georgia, have also sent assurances of eventual support to the White House.

It is symptomatic of the state of the Democratic Party that in these dubious circumstances, the White House political strategists are breathing audible sighs of relief. They are thankful for very little, these days. The arrangements outlined above are very little to be thankful for, because of two obvious drawbacks.

In the first place, any weasel words in the civil and human rights platform plank will enrage and alienate precisely the groups in the North at whom the President's civil rights message was aimed. Yet if the weasel words are not spoken, the uncommitted Southern delegates will still be able to put forward their own man. In the second place, the present arrangements may be upset even before convention time if the Fair Employment Practices Act becomes law at last.

House passage of FEPC is a foregone conclusion. So is Senate passage if cloture can be applied. Application of cloture turns upon four or five Republican votes, including Senators Robert A. Taft, Harlan Bushfield and Albert Hawkes. Taft, it is known, will vote to approve cloture, although opposed to the FEPC bill. Hawkes is in a hard reelection fight in New Jersey, and the other waverers will be not uninfluenced by the fact that this is an election year. If FEPC passes, the Southern fat will really be in the fire. In the ensuing bitterness and recrimination, anything may happen, and quite probably will.

GSI Worker Jailed 90 Days On Gun Counts

By Frank Wilder
Post Reporter

A replacement cafeteria worker in the GSI dispute was sent to jail for 90 days yesterday on two charges of carrying a pistol, once while crossing a picket line.

Three other cases of picket-line violence, involving charges against eight strikers, were postponed by Municipal Court Judge Armond W. Scott.

Judge Scott imposed the jail term on Harrison B. Sigmond, 25, of 72 I st. sw., one of the 1300 new workers hired by GSI to replace striking members of Local 471, CIO Cafeteria Workers.

The judge gave him a 90-day sentence on each charge, but ordered that the terms run concurrently. Sigmond had pleaded guilty.

Sigmond's attorney, E. Roosevelt Page, said police arrested Sigmond January 20 following an altercation on the picket line at the FBI Building. He was charged with carrying a .38-calibe rpistol. Released on bond, Sigmond was picked up about a week later and charged again with carrying a deadly weapon, this time a .45-caliber automatic.

In another development bearing on the 39-day-old strike against 42 GSI cafeterias, Representative O. C. Fisher (D., Tex.) yesterday introduced a bill to strengthen the Taft-Hartley Act requirement for non-Communist affidavits.

Fisher asked that the Act require union officers to swear that they have not been Communists for five years preceding the time the oath is taken. As it now stands, the Act calls for affidavits covering only the moment of filing. The affidavits must be filed before a union may avail itself of National Labor Relations Board services.

Fisher, a member of the special Labor and Education Subcommittee investigating the strike, said his amendment would prevent filing by Communists who resign from the Communist Party "overnight" just for the sake of taking the oath truthfully.

During debate on the Taft-Hartley bill, a proposal to have the non-Communist provision read, "never has been a member . . ." was killed.

Eight officers of Local 471 have filed the non-Communist affidavits. The union president, Richard A. Bancroft, resigned two days before.

The Gallup Poll

Inflation and Aid Plan Head Problems on Minds of People

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 12.—Suppose you are a Washington correspondent assigned to cover the weekly presidential press conference; you walk into the White House, take your place in the President's office. President Truman greets the meeting, waits for the first question.

What question would you most want to ask the Nation's Chief Executive?

Just that situation was described to voters in all walks of life, and in every State of the Union. The voting public comes up with some pretty tough questions, which would tax not only the knowledge but the occult powers of the President, his entire Cabinet, the Congress and all Government officialdom.

However, when the questions these representative voters want to ask are all assembled and analyzed, the results show very significantly what national and international problems are of most pressing concern to the public.

The $64 question, leading all others, would be phased something like this:

"Will prices be lowered soon?"

After the President had tackled that one, questions like these would be shot at him:

"Will the Marshall Plan succeed in reconstructing Europe?"

"What are the chances that Russia and the United States can come to agreements on their major differences?"

"When is something going to be done about lowering taxes and reducing the national debt?"

"Can this country keep out of war, and if not, what should we do to prepare for another war?"

"What can the Government do to ease the housing situation?"

"Why are there still shortages in so many items and what is the Government doing about them?

"What does the United States intend to do about the war threatening in Palestine?"

Here is the question that field reporters of the institute asked representative voters:

Suppose you could attend a press conference at the White House where newspaper reporters put any questions they want to the President. What questions would you like to ask the President about problems here and abroad?

Grouped according to subject matter, the most frequently mentioned topics shape up like this:

1. Inflation, danger of depression	25%
2. Marshall Plan, relations with western European countries	19
3. U. S. relations with Russia	7
4. High taxes, large public debt	7
5. How to keep peace, United Nations	6
6. Shortages, rationing	3
7. Housing	3
8. Palestine	1
9. Labor problems	1
Miscellaneous	8
Don't know	27

(Answers add to more than 100% since some respondents gave more than one answer.)

The present poll results in answers very similar to an institute survey last August to determine the most important problem facing the Nation. At that time inflation also led the list, followed by foreign policy, and prevention of war, and labor problems.

1947 Income Sets New High At 197 Billion

The total personal income of the American people last year was 20 billion dollars higher than in 1946, the Commerce Department announced yesterday.

The total for 1947 was the all-time high of 197 billion dollars, but in December the rate, converted to an annual basis, was even higher. It stood at 209.7 billion dollars.

The personal income estimates include wages, salaries, profits to businessmen and farmers, dividends, interest, rents to landlords and other individual income.

The department noted that personal incomes rose slowly during the first five months of 1947, and then jumped rapidly with "second-round" wage increases, higher profits and the cashing of GI terminal leave bonds.

Dividend payments during the year exceeded 1929 levels for the first time. They rose to 6.8 billion dollars, which was 20 per cent more than in 1946.

Farm proprietors' income, 15.2 billion dollars in 1946, rose to 17 billion dollars in 1947, even though farm production was less than in the previous year. Higher farm prices accounted for the increase.

Private wage and salary payments in 1947 rose 15 billion dollars above the 1946 figure. About half the increase was due to rising factory payrolls, the Commerce Department said.

Rail Mail Pay Increase Upheld

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday turned down the Post Office Department's plea to set aside a temporary mail pay increase granted the railroads last December.

The ICC authorized a temporary 25 per cent increase while considering a railroad petition for a 45 per cent increase. The 25 per cent increase amounts to about $34,500,000 annually.

Postmaster General Donaldson last month asked that the temporary increase be set aside.

The final standings:

VFW Head Rejects Report Urging Entry of 150,000 DPs

Commander-in-Chief Ray H. Brannaman of the Veterans of Foreign Wars yesterday rejected a special VFW committee report calling for the entry of displaced Europeans to this country.

"Increased immigration at this time would only add to the twin problem of housing and unemployment," he said.

He explained in a statement that he voiced his disapproval on the recommendations of a majority of VFW State Departments. He said 38 departments opposed such entries, two small departments split on the issue, and no reports were recieved from the others.

The special committee was authorized to make a study of the problem by the VFW conference in Cleveland last fall. It met here January and heard representatives of Government, labor organizations and Congress.

Asks to Admit 150,000

Its report recommended admission of 150,000 displaced persons to this country, a radical departure of the VFW's previous attitude toward the displaced persons' problem.

As a result of the hearings, particularly the testimony of Gen. Walter Wood, chief, Preparatory Commission, International Refugee Organization, and Sen. John Sherman Cooper (R., Ky.), the special committee urged:

1. Admission of 75,000 displaced persons for each of two years.

2. The definition of a displaced person as a person in Germany, Austria, and Italy on Dec. 31, 1945, who is out of his own country as a result of the war, and who is unable or unwilling to return because of persecution on account of race, religion, or political opinions.

Group Discounts Opposition

3. Visits by U. S. screening teams to the displaced persons' camps to select for admission to this country those with skills to enhance our economy.

The committee unanimously called for the VFW to "reiterate the traditional American principle that these shores should and ought to continue to be a haven to the politically and religiously oppressed of other nations so long as the operation of this principle remains consistent with the predominance of the basic Caucasian characteristics of the American."

In anticipation of opposition to the recommendation, the committee charged that such opposition "is emotional and not based on a true appraisal of the facts."

Members of the special committee were George L. Fetter, Springfield, Ohio; Hugh Williams, Danville, Va., and Frank Glebe, Scottsbluff, Nebrr.

Hearings to Open On U. S. Rubber Plants

A Senate committee will open hearings February 24 on disposition of Government-owned rubber plants.

Senator Bricker (R., Ohio), head of a three-man banking subcommittee studying the problem, announced the hearings yesterday.

Legion Blasts UMT 'Stall' In Congress

The American Legion yesterday threw charges of "political cowardice," "conspiracy" and "stalling" at the leaders of Congress, and at the House Rules Committee in particular, for failure to act on universal military training.

"There is evidence of a conspiracy to stall on UMT," said National Commander James F. O'Neill. "More than that, there are indications the Republican leadership has ordered UMT legislation to remain bottled up in the Rules Committee."

O'Neill fired the Legion's lastest blast on the issue in reply to a letter from Chairman Leo E. Allen (R., Ill.) of the Rules Committee. The committee has been sitting on the bill since it was unanimously approved by the House Armed Service Committee last July.

A Legion member himself, Allen recently wrote O'Neill that he regretted having to disagree with the organization, but "I am opposed to universal military training."

Commenting on the letter, O'Neill said:

"The issue is not whether Allen personally is opposed to UMT. We respect his right to do this. The issue is whether a handful of congressional leaders can deprive the rest of the body of the privilege of voting."

Vitamin B Advanced As Cure for Baldness

Tokyo, Feb. 12 (U.P.).—Two Nagoya University professors claimed today to have cured baldness by injecting Vitamins B into the scalp.

The newspaper Asahi said 20 bald men already have recovered luxuriant hair under the treatment.

By stimulating the scalp with Vitamin B injections and other medicines, the professors said, they produced a fuzzy growth in one month and a normal crop of hair in three.

They were working on a theory baldness is due chiefly to scalp malnutrition arising from mental worries and physical overwork.

Coed Editors Quit Under Censorship

Chicago, Feb. 12 (AP).—Two coeds have quit as editors of Northwestern University's Humor Magazine rather than blue-pencil some of its "sex and liquor."

The girls, Joan Forsythe, 21, Webster Grove, Mo., and Mary Helen Woods, 21, Evansville, Ind., said they merely had wished to put "new life" in the Purple Parrot, campus humor publication.

The university board of publications had criticized the coeditors for "too much emphasis on sex and liquor in cartoons and quips."

The Federal Diary

Move Is Started To Plug Loophole In Retirement Bill

RETIREMENT: A move already is under way to plug a hole in the new retirement bill which was reported to the House yesterday.

Civil Service officials oppose strongly the provision which would permit any employe with less than 20 years of service to withdraw his money in a lump sum when he leaves the Federal service. Civil Service President Harry B. Mitchell explained:

"The people who will withdraw their money are the ne'er-do-wells who'll spend their money and wind up on charity. They are the people who should be protected by a law which would guarantee them a pension in their old ages."

Mitchell believes that no employe who has served more than five years should be allowed to withdraw his money on separation. He repeatedly expressed his views before the Senate and House Civil Service Committees. However, he refused to press the issue for fear of delaying or killing the Langer-Chavez-Stevenson bill.

Instead, he will indorse a bill now before the House which would amend the Social Security Act to permit employes who leave the Government to use part of their Civil Service retirement money to pay up their Social Security accounts. By this device, people who leave Government would be given credit toward a Social Security pension for the time they have served the Government.

As it now operates, the person who leaves private industry to serve the Government is penalized by Social Security. It doesn't make good sense.

Meantime, the conference report on the new retirement bill was laid before the House yesterday by Chairman Rees of the House Civil Service Committee. Rees told his colleagues that the bill was an extremely important piece of legislation. He urged them to read the report closely before they vote on it. Rees hopes to get a vote on the report early next week.

BOOKLETS: If you're interested in how the new retirement bill will affect you, just send me a card and I'll have you sent a Civil Service booklet which will explain the bill in detail. There is no charge. The booklet won't be sent out until after the Langer-Chavez-Stevenson retirement bill is signed into law. No phone calls please. You must write for it.

NAVY: Undersecretary W. John Kenney is reported ready to resign. He is out of the city and won't return before March 1. Navy scuttlebutt has him resigning at about that time.

If Kenney quits, it will be a real loss to Federal workers. He's sincerely interested in them and their welfare.

JOBS: Stenographers are in such a short supply that Veterans' Administration has reduced its job standards for them. VA needs 80 CAF-3 stenographers. To qualify, applicants need to take dictation at 65 words a minute. VA also has vacancies for 50 CAF-3 typists. The jobs pay $2168 to start, but those who already receive higher salaries in the Grade 3 bracket will be eligible to start at those salaries. Just the other day, remember, VA said it would fire several hundred employes here.

OVERSEAS: And the Army needs CAF-3 stenographers to work in Germany. The total salary is $2710 a year. Applicants must be between the ages of 21 and 35 and they must sign up for two years. Go to Room 5-C-942 in the Pentagon for further details.

IN: The Immigration and Naturalization now plans to move at least part of its 600-man staff back here in early April. The agency is in Philadelphia, where it was moved temporarily in 1942.

A delegation of IN officials were here yesterday to inspect Tempo Building X, in the rear of the National Guard Armory. They weren't impressed with it, but no other space is available. Also, Tempo X has only 130,000 square feet in it and a minimum of 200,000 feet is needed for IN. Some of the agency may be left in Philadelphia until space near Tempo X becomes available.

NOTES: The President yesterday said he would nominate Paul R. Rowen to be a member of the Securities and Exchange Commission. He emphasized that Rowen is a Government career employe. Rowen has been with SEC 9½ years . . . A dozen employes of Agriculture's livestock branch have been presented with emblems in recognition of at least 30 years' service in the department. They are Virginia L. Bell, Charles A. Burmeister, Rae D. Conklin, Morton Cooper, Horace H. Custis, James T. Graham, Edward L. Griffin, William D. Lynch, Francis B. McAuliffe, Jacob E. Shillinger, Frank A. Spurr and Errett Wallace.

AFGE: The executive council of AFL's American Federation of Government Employes will meet here next week to map out a legislative program. It will take up pay raises, disability compensation, downgrading and demotions, and the bills to end multiple State taxation of Federal workers, and to exempt the first $1440 of Federal pensions from income taxes.

PERSONALS: Josh Lee has decided to remain on the Civil Aeronautics Board. He has given up plans to run for his old Senate seat from Oklahoma . . . Eddie Roddan is the new administrative assistant to Senator McMahon (D., Conn.). He's a former top-flight news correspondent . . . Otis H. Ellis is a new assistant general counsel at War Assets.

$500 Hikes Sought for Gallinger Executives

Ruhland Explains Inability to Obtain Good Men at Wage Levels Now in Effect

Pay raises of $500 a year "or better" will be sought for Gallinger Hospital department chiefs, Health Officer George C. Ruhland said last night.

His statement followed appointment of Dr. Robert H. Barter, former chief of Walter Reed Hospital's obstetric service, to a $7581-a-year post as head of the Obstetrics Gynecology Department at Gallinger.

Dr. Barter, now on the staff of the Wisconsin State General Hospital, will report for duty July 1, Dr. Ruhland announced. Ruhland said the appointee is "very excellently-prepared." "I think he will make us a good man—but for how long?" he asked.

It is difficult to keep qualified men in top Gallinger jobs at present saary rates, he declared. Three of the hospital's eight chief medical officers have resigned since November.

Dr. Ruhland said he would ask the Commissioners to back legislation giving chief medical officers "substantial" raises. Congressional action will be necessary, he pointed out, because the posts are "statuatory" and do not receive regular Civil Service increases under the Ramspeck Act.

Dr. Barter will replace Dr. Leslie V. Dill, who has resigned to enter private practice. A 1940 graduate of University of Wisconsin medical school, Dr. Barter took interne and resident training at Wisconsin General Hospital.

During the war, he saw Army service in the South Pacific and later was assigned to Walter Reed here.

Williams Waives Rights In Bankruptcy

George H. Williams, Washington builder who was convicted recently of defrauding veterans, has voluntarily waived his rights to be absolved of all obligations through discharge from bankruptcy.

This was disclosed yesterday by John A. Bresnahan, District bankruptcy referee. Bresnahan said Williams brought the formal waiver to his office Wednesday. In a statement attached to the waiver, Williams stated:

"I am waiving this right because I want my creditors to know, in particular the veteran depositors, that I recognize my legal and moral obligations."

Declaring the veterans to be "the innocent victims in this bankruptcy," Williams wrote that "I intend to pay each and every one every nickel that I owe them."

In his statement, Williams said he had lost several thousand dollars of his own money in his ill-fated veterans housing projects in nearby Maryland.

According to Bresnahan, under the normal procedure, Williams, who was forced into involuntary bankruptcy in December, 1946, would have been freed of all obligations upon his discharge from bankruptcy.

Bresnahan said Williams' action will make it unnecessary to hear objections to the discharge filed by two cerditors and Samuel M. Greenbaum, trustee in the bankruptcy.

Williams is to be sentenced for his fraud conviction next Friday by District Court Justice Alexander Holtzoff.

Symphony Gifts Lag at Fifth of Goal

Only 20.4 per cent of the National Symphony's fund goal of $165,000 has been collected, Edward Burling, jr., general drive chairman, revealed at the first report luncheon at the Mayflower yesterday.

At the 10-day mark in the 17-day campaign, the drive is lagging behind last year's 10-day record, which was 25.2 per cent of a $175,000 quota.

More than 250 volunteer workers gathered to hear the 10 fund-raising committees report their progress.

Groups closest to their individual quotas were: Army committee, 87 per cent; Unit 4 residential committee, a British team, 67 per cent; the Catholic school, education committee, 60 per cent.

The entire fund must be collected or the money will be refunded and the orchestra disbanded.

Burling said the report was discouraging, but not hopeless.

7 to Direct Refugee Aid

Seven Washington residents have been named directors of United Service for New Americans, an agency aiding European refugees, it was announced yesterday in New York. They are Mrs. Morris Gewirz, Mrs. Louise Ottenberg, Mrs. Theodore Peyser, Mrs. Harry S. Roller, Rudolph Behrend, Edmund I. Kaufman and Milton W. King.

President Leads Tribute to Emancipator In Simple Ceremonies at Lincoln Memorial

Many Organizations And Groups Honor Civil War Leader

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

President Truman paid tribute to Abraham Lincoln yesterday as the climax to the simple observances at the Lincoln Memorial, marking the 139th anniversary of the Civil War President's birthday.

The President, with bared head, stood at attention at the foot of the steps of the memorial as Capt. Robert Lee Dennison and Col. Robert B. Landry, Naval and Air Forces aides, marched up the steps and placed his wreath of gladioli in the memorial's colonnade. The Marine Band played the national anthem.

Beside the President at the brief ceremony were Mrs. Truman, Army Aide Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan and Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, the President's Chief of Staff.

Presidential Party Arrives

The presidential party was greeted by Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, Commander of the National Capital Commandery, Military Order of the Loyal Legion, and W. Elkins Reed, recorder of the order, which sponsored the observance.

A raw atmosphere chilled the few hundred spectators and the participants in the ceremonies.

A color guard of the three services began the program by marching up the steps to the foot of the Lincoln statue as the Marine Band played the "Battle Hymn of the Republic." As a bugle call echoed in the Memorial structure, members of the Military Order, led by Recorder Reed and General Grant and accompanied by Lieut. Col. V. A. Shurm, representing the District Commissioners, presented their wreath.

Gettysburg Address Recited.

Lincoln's Gettysburg Address was recited by Slocum Kingsbury, of the Military Order, followed by the laying of wreaths by representatives the following organizations:

Dames of the Loyal Legion, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, Daughters of the American Revolution, American Red Cross, Women's Relief Corps, American Gold Star Mothers, Ladies Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion Auxiliary, United Spanish War Veterans Auxiliary, American War Mothers, Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts, Sons of the American Revolution, Navy League of the United States, Jewish War Veterans and American Poles.

Earlier, more than 100 delegates to the twelfth biennial jubilee convention of the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods, had gathered at the memorial for a wreath ceremony. Jesse Cohen of New York, Federation president, spoke on Lincoln.

Memorial Attracts Visitors

After the ceremony was over and the official groups had left, visitors began to arrive at the Memorial to gaze at the famous statue and read the Gettysburg Address and the Second Inaugural inscribed in the walls.

School groups and children with their parents began to appear along with others. One little girl, Elinda Siemers, 9, arrived with her father, Werner Siemers, who explained he had brought her from their home in Wilmington because it was her birthday as well as Lincoln's.

Siemers, who spoke with a German accent, said he was a native of Hamburg, Germany. Lincoln meant liberty to him, he declared, and he wanted his daughter to learn about the great President.

Dr. Leo Baeck, president of the World Union for Progressive Judaism, the chief rabbi of Berlin before and during the recent war, came to study Lincoln's statue and his words for the fourth time since he came to this country in early in January.

Arrested by Nazis

Dr. Baeck, who is here in the American Jewish Cavalcade tour of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, gave the opening invocation yesterday in the House of Representatives, basing his prayer on Lincoln.

"I am ever deeply moved," he said in a thick German accent, "to see the noble face of one of the greatest of mankind here in this Memorial."

The 75-year-old rabbi, who was arrested five times in Berlin by the Nazis and finally placed in a concentration camp, said an American came to his town in Germany when he was 7 or 8 years old and told about Lincoln from personal knowledge.

Also paying tribute to the Civil War President was Willard John Younger, a former guard for the Federal Works Administration, now retired and living in Baltimore, who remarked he had come to the Lincoln Memorial every year on Lincoln's birthday since the structure was opened.

Students Honor Emancipator

Students of the Thirteenth Division of the public schools, held exercises for Lincoln's birthday at the Anthony Bowen School, where Miss June Manning of Miner Teachers College spoke on Lincoln. A sixth grade pupil at Bowen, Samuel Smith, represented the group in laying a wreath at the Emancipation Monument at Lincoln Park.

In honor of both Lincoln and Gen. Thaddeus Kosciusko, a hero of the American Revolution, the Polish American Congress laid a wreath at the Kosciusko statue in Lafayette Park. Participating were Kazimiera Baginski and Stefan Korbonski, members of the Polish Peasant Party who fled Poland three months ago. Speakers were Representative Mitchell Jenkins (R., Pa.) and Representative Thomas S. Gordon (D., Ill.).

Dr. Mordecai Johnson, president of Howard University, was the speaker at Lincoln Day chapel services at American University.

Lincoln Museum Visited

Two school groups, from the Pierce School and the Webster Americanization School, visited the Lincoln Museum at Ford's Theater where Lincoln was assassinated. Curtis Renstrow, National Park Service assistant historian, told of events surrounding the death of Lincoln.

The Cosmopolitan Club heard Senator Alexander F. Wiley (R., Wis.) speak on Lincoln at a luncheon meeting in the Carlton Hotel.

In the evening, the Council for Civil Rights in the Nation's Capital held a dinner at the Bali Club in honor of Edwin B. Henderson, director of physical education in the Negro schools.

Joseph McGarraghy, counsel for the Hotel Association of Washington, spoke at a Lincoln program of the Hotel Greeters Association at the Washington Hotel.

In Maryland, where for the first time in its history the traditional Democratic State celebrated Lincoln's birthday as a legal holiday, Lincoln's Day dinners were held in both Montgomery and Prince Georges counties.

Representative James W. Wadsworth (R., N. Y.) addressed a dinner sponsored by the Republican State Central Committee at the Bethesda Country Club. The Prince Georges Republican organization heard former Gov. Simeon S. Willis of Kentucky at their dinner at the Prince Georges Golf and Country Club.

In Williamsburg, Va., the Republican Regional Conference heard Senator Arthur V. Watkins (R., Utah) as their guest speaker at a Lincoln's Day dinner.

Freedom Train Collects Food For Europe in Lincoln's Name

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 12 (U.P.)—Carloads of grain, milk, canned stuffs and other foods were gathered today to be linked into a Friendship train and sent to the hungry people of Europe in the name of Abraham Lincoln.

Four separate sections of the "Lincoln Friendship train" were loaded in Nebraska, Iowa, South Dakota, and Illinois as State and civic leaders gathered at the Great Emancipator's tomb here on the 139th anniversary of his birth.

The four sections will meet at Indianapolis this weekend and then proceed to Philadelphia for overseas shipment.

Contributions from South Dakota and Nebraska were expected to total 105 carloads.

One section started here in Lincoln's "home town." Some of the food was brought by oxcart from the store in New Salem Park, Ill., where Lincoln once clerked.

Hundreds stood in a two-inch blanket of snow at today's ceremonies at Lincoln's tomb.

President Truman's representative Col. Roy L. Dalfreres, executive officer of the Illinois military district, placed a wreath in front of the tomb.

National Legion Commander James F. O'Neil spoke on a coast-to-coast broadcast from Oak Park Cemetery where Lincoln is buried. He called for immediate enactment of a universal military training program.

O'Neil quoted Lincoln as denouncing voluntary enlistments. The passage said the young, generous, patriotic, intelligent and brave volunteer for service and leave the cowards, shirkers and money makers at home.

Fire Destroys Landmark

Salisbury, Md., Feb. 12 (AP).—The John J. McCarty Upholstery Shop—100-year-old landmark at nearby Bivalve—was destroyed by fire yesterday. It served the community formerly as a church, a school and a World War I post-office.

U.S. History Bills Are Denounced In School Board

Mrs. Doyle Leads Opponents as Lee Criticizes Corning; Pay Action Put Off

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

The legislative committe of the Board of Education yesterday attacked, over the protests of Chairman Adelbert W. Lee, two congressional bills that would require the public schools to place increased emphasis on teaching American history.

Board of Education President Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle took the lead in arguments against the bills, declaring it is the duty of the Board of Education and not Congress to set up school curriculum.

A long-simmering feud between Lee and Superintendent of Schools Hobart M. Corning also broke into the open with Lee charging the school head with exceeding his authority and making careless statements about school matters.

The verbal battle arose at a meeting to study bills introduced by Representative Alvin E. O'Konski (R., Wis.) and Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.).

Action on Raises Deferred

The committee also was to consider requests by teacher organizations for blanket salary increases but action was deferred when it appeared arguments would carry the afternoon meeting far inton the night.

The O'Konski bill would set up a District Counselor for Education hired by Congress to supervise courses and textbooks in history and to remove from use "all printed matter, practices, or methods in any manner tending to subvert the spirit and ideals of the Constitution or to breed disrespect for our form of government."

Both bills would make compulsory for high school students a four-year course in American history and two-year course in the Constitution.

"I am not in favor of any bill that criticizes the loyalty of our teachers," Mrs. Doyle said.

Lee to File Minority Opinion

"The Board of Education and District schools have a fine record in the way American history has been presented. Twenty years ago when a movement spread over the country to reduce the study of American history and to debunk American heroes, we took no part in it," she said.

Lee said that he found "much merit" in both bills and would file a minority opinion.

"I think we should encourage members of Congress who are interested in our schools," he said.

Lee said that Corning by professing to speak for the board on the O'Konski bill without approval of board members "exceeded his authority." The incident occurred last summer when Corning wrote to Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West declaring the bill "repugnant to the board," Lee said.

"I admit frankly I made a mistake in mentioning the board," Corning said. "The statement was my personal opinion."

Mrs. Doyle Rebukes Lee

Lee also jumped on Corning for stating in a speech before a citizens association that future prospects for education in the District are slim unless salaries are raised. Such a statement only results in dissatisfied teachers, Lee said.

"Does this mean that the superintendent is not permitted to express an opinion?" Corning said.

Mrs. Doyle then rebuked Lee.

"We did not bring a man of Dr. Corning's professional standing to Washington to gag him," Mrs. Doyle said.

A report adopted by a majority of the committee and prepared by school officers said that history requirements of the bills would destroy the balance of the secondary-school curriculum and would make it impossible for students to meet requirements for Annapolis, West Point or engineering schools. Vocational courses would have to be abandoned and science, manual arts and freehand and mechanical arts courses would be crippled, the report said.

McGuire Guilty

Truck Driver Convicted In Slaying

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

Nixon McGuire, 37-year-old truck driver, yesterday was convicted of manslaughter in the death of his 35-year-old paramour last September 10. No date was set for sentencing.

A District Court jury of nine men and three women deliberated five hours and forty-five minutes before deciding McGuire had beaten Mrs. Theodora Rowell to death.

Mrs. Rowell and McGuire had been living together at 1919 A st., nw., since the woman had left her husband, Troy, about eight months before the slaying.

Police found the woman's body sprawled across a bed after McGuire had reported to the Third Precinct that he had a dead woman in his house.

An autopsy showed that death was caused by a cerebral hemorrhage induced by a blow on the head. Bruises were found on Mrs. Rowell's face and body.

In maintaining his innocence, the defendant testified that he and Mrs. Rowell had been drinking heavily. He said he went to bed the night of September 9 and was awakened by Mrs. Rowell's coming in with her face badly bruised. "I didn't think much about it then because she often came in that way," he asserted.

He told the court that in putting her to bed he dropped her to the floor twice.

He said that he then went to sleep. Awakening about 2:30 a. m., he said he leaned over to kiss her and "her lips felt cold—I got scared."

Earlier police testified that McGuire had declared bloodstains on his clothing were paint.

In his closing argument to the jury, Defense Attorey T. Emmett McKenzie declared that the Government's case was "built purely on circumstantial evidence."

Prosecutor Andrew Oehmann stressed the discrepancies in stories told to police by the defendants.

The first witness yesterday was the woman's husband, Troy Rowell. He admitted under cross examination that he once had threatened to take his wife away from McGuire at gunpoint, but, he added that he "didn't really mean it."

Rowell, who failed to appear Wednesday although he had been subpenaed by the Government was sentenced by Associate Justice Edward M. Curran to pay a $100 fine or serve 30 days, on contempt charges.

McGuire, who wore a gold wedding band on his left hand, faces a 15-year maximum penalty. He has a wife and a 15-year-old son living in Georgia.

The jury took 12 ballots and it was learned that two jurors had been holding out for acquittal. However, 20 minutes after Curran read the jury the Allen Charge, a verdict was arrived at. The Allen Charge instructs jurors whose opinion may be in the minority to reexamine their consciences in an effort to agree with the majority.

30 Driven From Homes By Early Fire

A two-alarm fire at 4:25 a. m. yesterday routed 30 persons from four two-story brick dwellings at Nos. 30, 32, 34 and 36 Pierce st. nw.

The fire, of undetermined origin, spread from house to house by means of back porches, eating its way inside, firemen said.

Although the fire was confined to the rear portions of the row houses, it took the six engine companies and two truck companies nearly 2½ hours to extinguish it.

None of the occupants was injured, although most were routed into the cold in their night clothes. No. 12 Engine Company's hose truck, en route to the scene, skidded on slippery streets into a parked car, denting fenders of both vehicles.

Earlier, Mollie Willes, 45, of 923 10th st. nw., visiting at 1111 8th st. nw., was treated at Emergency Hospital for minor cuts received when she broke a glass window after a mattress caught fire.

The Dstrict Fire Board reported 15 fire calls between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m. yesterday.

CAMPBELL'S
1108 G STREET, N. W.

Area News in Brief

Beware!—Today Is Friday the 13th

The year's first Friday the thirteenth comes up for its annual beating today.

History and superstitition have given the sixth day of the week an ominous meaning when it falls on the thirteenth. Named for the Norse goddess of love, who was fond of music, flowers and spring, the day has become one on which one never walks under ladders, breaks mirrors or cuffs a policeman.

It first got its aura of ill fortune with the crucifixion of Christ on Friday. Later the day was chosen for the execution of criminals.

The New York Stock Exchange has had two "Black Fridays"—the first of which set off the panic of 1873; the second when Jay Gould and James Fisk, jr., tried to corner all New York's gold.

The second Friday the thirteenth of 1948 will be in August.

An unidentified taxi fare drew a pistol yesterday to beat what he thought was an inflated cab rate.

Driver Jesse Johnson, 815 Carroll ave., Takoma Park, Md., told police he hauled a 5-foot-6 passenger from the 2600 block, Nichols ave. se., to the 4200 block, Benning rd. ne., charging him 70 cents.

When getting out, the passenger suddenly pulled out a pistol, Johnson told police, stuck it in his back, and snarled, "I don't want to be taken." The passenger then dropped 52 cents in the front seat, and stalked off.

One witness testified Chamovitz struck Mrs. Goodman in the face with a glass bowl, knocked her down and kicked her, then pummeled Goodman into a "half-dazed condition." Chamovitz said Mrs. Goodman attempted to bite him and tried to hit him with a bottle. He denied hurling the bowl or kicking her.

Police testified that the other defendant, Wendell Joppy, jr., 23, of 1424 6th st. nw., broke into the office of the Rucker Lumber Co., 1320 Wilson blvd., last April, walking off with goods including a radio, electric razor, and a fountain pen. Horan Urges Merger of Area Police

"Amalgamation" of the District's eight separate police forces was urged yesterday by Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.) chairman of the House Appropriations Subcommittee for the District.

Horan made a surprise visit to Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West about 3 p. m. He told reporters he was "exploring" legal possibilites for making better use of policemen in the metropolitan area, including those in nearby counties of Maryland and Virginia.

He said the Metropolitan Police force needs more men to carry on its "tremendous" duties.

It would be less expensive to have Metropolitan policemen cover the National Airport, which now has its own 28-man force, he declared.

Horan added he was investigating all possible methods of cutting down on "administrative overhead" in view of the city's "critical position financially." He predicted it will be "hard to escape demands" which may send the District budget still higher.

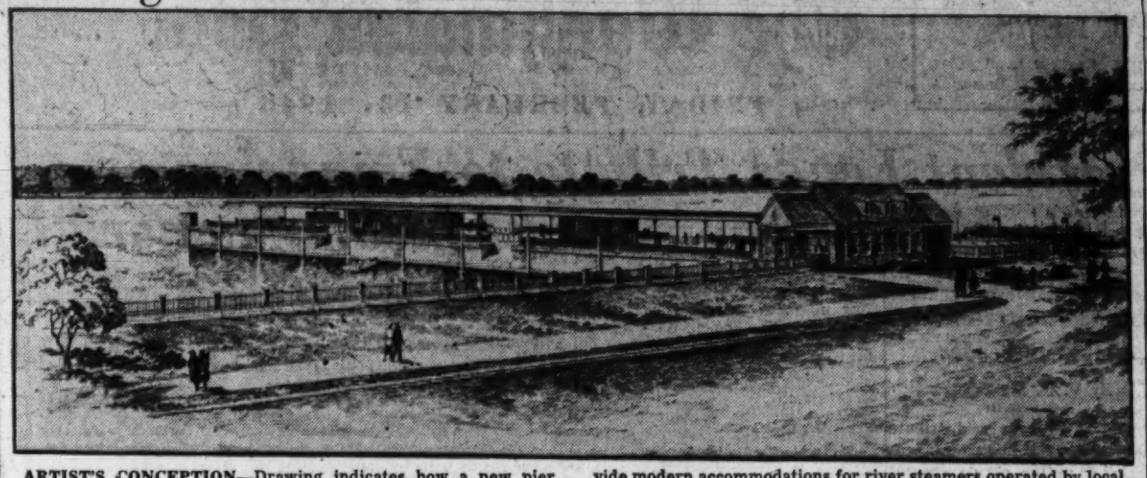
Washington Is to Have a New Excursion Line Pier



ARTIST'S CONCEPTION—Drawing indicates how a new pier to be built on the Maine ave. waterfront will look when completed. The project, scheduled to be finished in November, will be built at an estimated cost of $339,883 and is designed to provide modern accommodations for river steamers operated by local excursion lines. The pier is a unit of the waterfront improvement plan authorized by Congress in 1935

Construction of a new, modern pier for large excursion steamers is scheduled to begin March 15 at Maine ave. and N st. sw., Col. D. C. White, District engineer, said yesterday.

The project is part of an extensive waterfront improvement authorized by Congress in 1935.

Contract for the 340-foot pier foundation, estimated to cost $339,883 has been awarded Lipsett, Inc., of New York, Colonel White said.

The foundation is expected to be completed by about November 15.

To be built later will be the pier deck, an open metal canopy over the deck and a one-and-a-half story, colonial-design office building, all dependent on additional congressional appropriations, the District engineer said.

Two yacht basins near the Municipal Fish Market and a general service pier at 6th st. and Maine ave., also a part of the 1935 improvement program, were completed before the war. Another yacht basin, two more piers and new fire and police facilities are still to be built.

Jewish Group Will Honor Jurist Today

Tributes to Lincoln and progress reports featured opening sessions yesterday of the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods and the Allied Jewish Chautauqua Society's 12th biennial, four-day convention at the Hotel Shoreham.

Cohen

Association Justice Robert H. Jackson will be honored by delegates today for his work as prosecutor at the Nuernberg war crimes trial in a brief ceremony at 7:45 p. m. at the Washington Hebrew Congregation Temple, 822 8th st., n.w.

Justice Jackson will be presented a scrool by Jesse Cohen of Brooklyn, president of the federation. A transcription of the ceremony will be presented over station WINX from 10:30 to 10:45 today.

The ceremony will precede religious services at the Temple led by Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld of the Washington Hebrew Congregation and Dr. Bernard A. Baer, acting president of the Congregation.

Rabbi Maurice N. Eisendrath, of New York, president of the Union of Hebrew Congregations, will give the sermon.

Pay Tribute to Lincoln

More than a 100 delegates and visitors joined in paying tribute to the memory of Abraham Lincoln at the Lincoln Memorial yesterday.

Cohen, who placed a wreath at the foot of the statue of Lincoln in behalf of the federation, praised Lincoln as a champion of human rights and said, "The persecuted peoples of the whole world have been the beneficiaries of his greatness."

The federation has grown from 119 member clubs and fewer than 15,000 members in 1943 to 198 clubs with approximately 40,000 members in 39 States and Canada, Cohen said in his report as president.

Because of this growth, he recommended the organization increase its executive board from 30 to 40 members.

Growth of the organization since its founding in 1923 was traced by Arthur L. Reinhart of Cincinnati, executive director of the federation and Chautauqua Society, in a "silver jubilee" address.

Gives Reasons for Growth

He attributed the federation's postwar growth to a feeling that veterans joined in "the belief that the activity organization of the age-old synagogue fits closed into their new deeper outlook on life," and the fact that in 1939 the federation assumed sponsorship of the Jewish Chautauqua Society, which "caught the imagination of our people and became a rallying force."

The 55-year-old society gives information about the Jew and Judaism to Christian colleges and church camps.

S. Herbert Kaufman of Harrisburg, Pa., federation executive board member, stressed the need for growth and for increased religious content in meetings.

Membership and program problems will be discussed at the 9:30 a. m. session today, and the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, parent body of the federation, will be the subject of the 2 p. m. meeting.

Policeman Says Photographer Sought Aid in Ousting In-Laws

The Washington Post

MRS. GLORIA HOOD — ROBERT C. HOOD

Wife and photographer seeking divorce

Photographer Robert C. Hood once had to call the law in to get his in-laws out, it was testified in District Court yesterday where Hood and his brunette wife, Gloria are seeking a divorce from each other.

Police Pvt. Vander Holcomb testified that Hood approached him on the street and sought his aid in getting his wife's stepfather and mother to leave.

"They won't go and I want to go to bed," Holcomb quoted the photographer as saying.

The policeman said he and Hood entered the house where he saw Mrs. Hood's parents helping treat an injured foot suffered by Mrs. Hood in an auto mishap.

The stepfather aimed a punch at Hood, Holcomb testified after the photographer had made the remark that the in-law "can't keep his hands off my wife."

Earlier, Courtney Hood, brother of the photographer, an Agriculture Department employe, who lived with the Hoods at 2647 Connecticut ave. nw., told of a plate-smashing episode.

He said that after her husband had ordered her home from a restaurant where she and Courtney had been drinking, Gloria started "throwing things around" in the kitchen. He said he asked Robert why he didn't do something about it and Robert answered: "It's routine."

Mrs. Percy Hood, 6014 13th pl. nw., Hood's mother testified that her daughter-in-law had once invited her to a spaghetti dinner but that when she arrived she found Gloria had been drinking and that no dinner was forthcoming.

Emily Thomas Banks, a former Hood employe, testified that the photographer was accustomed to giving beer to his 2-year-old son, Robert, jr., over Mrs. Hood's objections.

Associate Justice Matthew McGuire interposed the comment that "on the continent" such practices are common.

Alexandria Group Opens Drive for New Plan to Elect Council

Organized campaigning for the March 2 referendum on changes in methods of electing a City Council in Alexandria has been launched by a community group called Sponsors for Council at Large Plan.

The special election will decide whether the City Council shall remain a nine-man body, six elected from wards and three at large, or change to a seven-man council elected at large.

The group organized Wednesday evening. Irvin M. Hufford was elected general chairman.

Hufford, local restaurateur, said committees have been set up in each ward to go from house to house explaining the at large plan and urging the people to vote.

Hufford said his group will blanket the city with 15,000 copies of the campaign pamphlets. They put forth the following points in favor of the At Large Plan:

1. At Large Plan is more democratic. People can vote for every council seat, whereas now they vote for only four out of nine.

2. Alexandria should be treated as one unit rather than six.

3. Ward lines are purely arbitrary. Interests in each ward are the same as those in every other ward.

4. Logrolling—swapping of votes—is inherent in the Ward Plan. Also, the ward man is bound, in part, to approach problems from a ward, rather than city-wide, viewpoint.

5. At Large Plan has worked well in other cities. Twenty-two Virginia cities elect their councils at large. Only six have councils elected in whole or in part from wards.

Alexandria threw over the At Large Plan in 1932 by a 2 to 1 vote. It lost again in 1944 by an even larger majority.

The current attempt to reshape the council started with a petition for a special election last November after Council had named Nicholas A. Colasanto city manager. Before it reached the Circuit Court, however, the General Assembly provided for the election with legislation proposed by Delegate Armistead L. Boothe.

Md. Children Face Plethora of Prunes

Baltimore, Feb. 12 (AP).—Know any good recipes for prune dishes?

The Maryland Department of Education has to serve 21,000 pounds of the dried fruit to school kids in the next few weeks, whether the youngsters like it or not.

One of the department's officials, Charles W. Sylvester, explained the prunes were sent here under terms of the Federal lunch-money program.

"Federal officials buy them to keep them off the market," he said, "—and we dish 'em out."

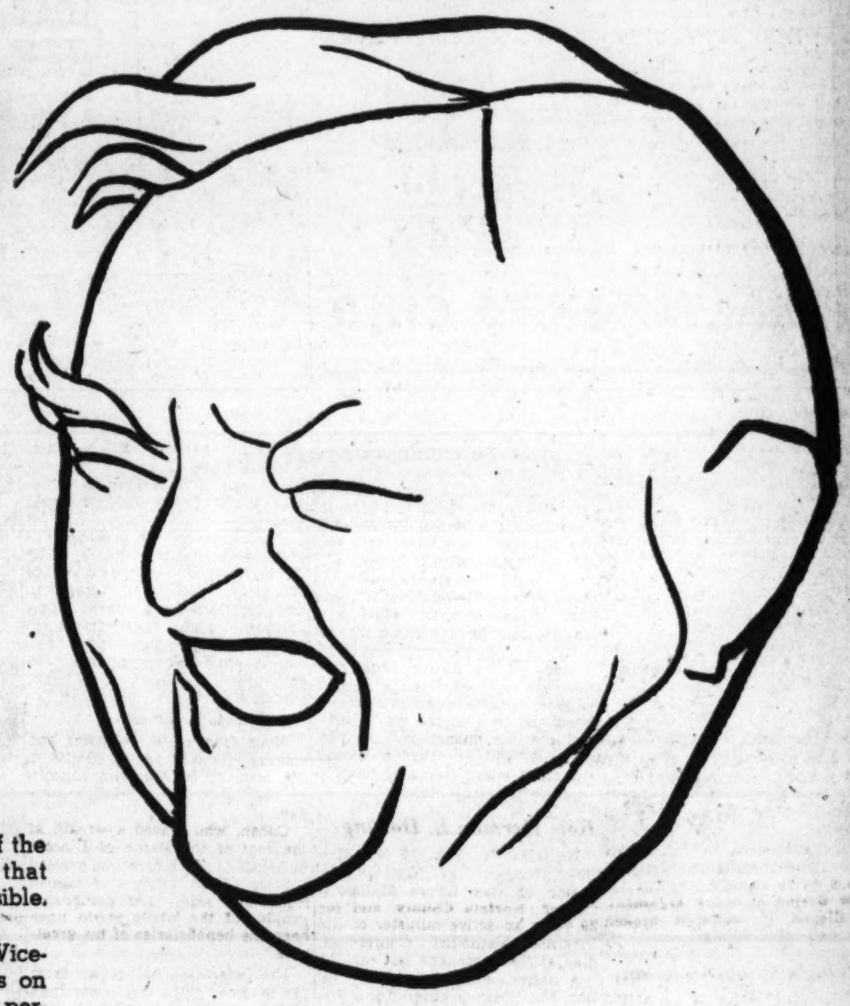
A TEXAN TALKS TURKEY



Long-silent John Nance Garner, through Bascom N. Timmons, begins telling his own version of the New Deal's razzle-dazzle days

EVER since Cactus Jack Garner retired from the political arena to his Texas back yard, the nation has awaited his backstage story of the Washington circus.

In today's Collier's this doughty old warrior takes you behind the scenes of the nation's greatest show—from White House breakfasts and cabinet meetings, to smoke-filled rooms and poker sessions.

With all the spade-calling candor that won him the respect of both parties, Garner reports, as he saw and heard them, the events that shaped our lives during those action-packed years.

With Garner you'll relive the dramatic Chicago convention of 1932. You'll learn, for the first time, of the secret political shuffle that made the New Deal possible.

You'll learn the former Vice-President's salty opinions on some important issues and personalities. For example, here's what he said to President Roosevelt after the Nazis invaded Poland:

"You haven't much choice, Cap'n. Either Hitler or Stalin would conquer the world. Hitler by force, and Stalin by chicanery, corruption, treachery and undermining."

You'll chuckle at his vinegar-painted portraits of Ickes, Morgenthau, Wallace.

And you'll learn about a surprising election bet he made with Eleanor Roosevelt.

Begin John N. Garner's Story today, set down from the Texan's own words by his close friend, political correspondent Bascom N. Timmons. It's more than an exciting review of our recent past. It's a wonderful warm-up for the coming presidential campaign.

"THE BUSYBODY"
by Arthur "Bugs" Baer

When an anonymous postcard tip solved a big murder mystery, sleuthing city editor Eaton was grateful. When the same tipster broke another case, Eaton was mildly annoyed. When the third and fourth accurate tips arrived, he was ready for the booby hatch. Who was the "Busybody" who wrote these missives? "Only a dame could know so much," snarled Eaton. Here's an amusing detective yarn spun with "Bugs" Baer's masterful touch. Read The Busybody.

McCarthy Predicts Passage of Housing Bill

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Congress will pass a long-range housing bill without any provision for public housing during this session, Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) predicted yesterday.

McCarthy vice chairman of the Joint Senate-House Committee on Housing, said that public housing is so "controversial" it should be handled separately.

The Wisconsinn Senator declared he reached his prediction after talking the matter over with Republican leaders.

The Senate Banking and Currency Committee approved a long-range housing measure, including public housing—the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill—last April but it has been pigeon holed ever since.

There were reports that Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) would be willing to have public housing eliminated from the major long-range housing bill and would also be willing to accept certain recommendations concerning public housing which McCarthy said he intends to make.

Among these recommendations would be that municipalities would be required to contribute one third of the cost of public housing to receive Federal aid, this contribution not to be in the form of tax rebates, but cash services, or public ulitilities.

Likewise McCarthy will recommend that no Federal aid to housing be given any municipality which refuses to abandon restrictive building codes.

Senators C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.) and John Sparkman (D., Ala.) said they would agree to a bill omitting public housing. Sparkman said he would want assurance, however, that Congress would later enact a separate public housing bill.

McCarthy said the two most important features of his report to the Joint Committee on Housing is a recommendation for development of standard building codes and the encouraging of standardization of measurements in building materials. It is estimated that cost of housing would drop appreciably if all lumber, for example, were cut in standard sizes the Nation over, and if the restrictive and often expense-creating building codes were revised.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Nora's giving a party tonight at Hotel 2400 16th st. for her brilliant young cousin, Mira Gilbert, singer of American and European folk songs, who will make her Washington bow at the Pall Mall Room next Monday.*

MERRY-LAND'S SEVENTH BIRTHDAY will be celebrated at a big party on March 15. Patrons will be on the receiving end for presents which will include note books and specially made pencils, not to mention big slices of birthday cake . . . It was a musical get-together at Merry-Land the other night. Visiting the spot's Ko-Ko-Nuts were Ray Kyser, former Rainbow Room bandleader, fresh in from California, and Jimmy Santmyer, who used to be at the Lotus but is now pounding his paino in the pit of the Gayety Theater.

HIGH WIRE DANCING by the Latianos gives a smidgeon of Ringling Bros. atmosphere to the new Lotus show. Glamorish Thelma King and musical comedy dancers Madge and Carr lend extra dash and spice to the doings . . . Big Buddy Shaner and his songs are now en route to Florida, will return to their happy home at the Lotus in a couple of weeks.

Grisha Gregory, gregarious and jovial maestro of the Balalaika, will toss another of his big and gay parties next Sunday night. This time it will be at Henderson Castle, with the fun starting at 8 o'clock.

GARDEN OF GIRLS. Both chic and terrifically expensive are the costumes worn by the Casino Royal's Marilou Savage Dancers. But their prize getups are those bright blue suits lavishly appliqued with white . . . Alice Gleason of the Neptune Room, one of the prettiest hostesses in town, wears orchids now and then, isn't telling the name of the donor . . . When the King Cole Room's Dona Mason recently closed at Minneapolis' Panther Room, the attraction to follow her was Carl Brisson. Which gives you an idea of Dona's stature as a singer . . . The perfect song delivery of the Anchor Room's Estelle is the result of 18 months of meticulous work with Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians . . . Though it sleets and snows, blonde Anna Marie, hostess at Michel's, looks like a spring fashion plate in her cream-colored suit.

Sidney of the Mayflower has assembled a super-super orchestra to play for the sector of the $100-a-plate Jackson Day Dinner which will be held at the Mayflower . . . Paul Kain, whose miniature band is now at the Hi Hat, is working out plans for the big band he'll take into Glen Echo come spring.

ATMOSPHERIC EFFECTS. River Bend has the most homelike entrance lobby of any dine-and-dancer hereabouts. It's because of that big and always blazing fireplace and early Americana including pewter tankards, stuffed birds and a squirrel rifle . . . The Dubonnet Room lives up to its name with dubonnet colored drapes, saucy murals in dubonnet and white, plenty of flexiglass that glitters like Al Shea's tunes . . . Normandy Farm is crammed with museum pieces in French Provencal style. There are also quantities of French prints and railway posters and a collection of menus from that ill-fated queen of the seas, the SS Normandie . . . Elaborately costumed Chinese dolls are displayed in a glass cabinet at Ruby Foo's. Each one is a work of art.

Writer Watches Armed Arabs Crossing Border Into Palestine

By Sam Souki

On the Palestine Frontier, Feb. 12 (U.P.).—Right in front of me hundreds of Arabs, rifles held loosely in their crooked arms and bandoliers slung over their shoulders, are crossing the border into Palestine.

This mountain village somewhere in the Levant, from which Palestine is just a walk over a hill, is only one of the points where Arabs are moving into the Holy Land.

Hundreds have crossed here during the past 48 hours and these men told me at least 7000 are already in Palestine.

Uniformed in khaki and thoroughly equipped for warfare, they cross the border as easily as you cross a quiet street.

Major Operation Apparent

There is plain evidence these men are preparing for a major operation against the Jews.

I arrived at this village by jeep after a trip over mountain tracks. Armed Arabs hustled back and forth unloading truckloads of rifles.

When I pulled up, a crowd gathered around and one man, demanded: "Your identity, please."

I showed him my credentials and he relaxed. Then I was allowed to watch men unload the rifles which were handed down to Mojaheddeen—fighters of Behad or the Holy War.

The man directing them spoke to me.

"You have come upon one of our concentrations here," he said.

"This village is our storehouse for food," he continued. "The trucks here brought rifles and ammunition. These go mainly to Palestine Arabs in this area. We are well equipped, and we are ready to get started."

My self-appointed guide explained the British have increased their units, but the Palestine border is big and "we can slip through in large numbers."

Arab fighters in the hills sometimes swoop down on the Jews, he said, and the Zionists retaliate.

"It's small now," he said, "but it won't be along before we can really swing into action."

I drove by jeep for several hours along the frontier which divides Syria and Lebanon from Palestine. Arab soldiers from the "Army of Liberation" were everywhere, along with independent Arab bands and Palestine Arabs coming to Arab territory for arms and supplies.

From the Arab side of the frontier I could clearly see Jewish settlements with their watchtowers, trenches and barbed wire. I also saw a British army outpost.

British troops are faced with a virtually impossible job in trying to prevent Arab infiltration.

The Arabs gave me a practical demonstration. When British armored car patrols set off in one direction, Arab scouts passed the word along and men massed at a Lebanese base casually crossed in the other direction.

The border villages, normally quiet on these cold winter days are bustling with activity. The Arabs watch the Jews and Jews watch the Arabs. The British watch both.

They all know that major trouble is coming before winter weather settles again on this border area.

Hard of Hearing Party

The Washington Society for the Hard of Hearing will hold its annual party and musical program next Friday at 8:30 p. m. in the society's headquarters, 2431 14th st. nw., to mark the organization's twenty-seventh anniversary.

23 Slain in Palestine; Arab Border Flow Reported Mounting

Jerusalem, Feb. 12 (AP).—At least 23 persons were killed in Palestine violence today.

Twelve Arabs, eight Jews and three British soldiers were slain, bringing to 1151 the total killed since partition was voted November 29.

Snipers went into action at numerous points from Haifa to Lake Hula, north of Galilee. Convoys were attacked and roads were mined.

Hagana, the Jewish militia, killed five Arabs and injured at least five more in a road-mine and rifle attack on an Arab bus convoy near Safad.

Four heavy explosions shook western Haifa tonight, killing three Arabs.

Reports from Haifa said two Britons were killed and seven wounded when they were surrounded by a large force of Arabs.

Further south another British force was reported to have attacked a large group of Arabs who were crossing the upper Jordan River.

Fighting in both places continued from noon until after nightfall, it was reported.

The flow of Arabs crossing the frontier was said to have increased.

In Damascus, Arab sources said the anticipated February 15 D-day for an Arab attack on Palestine had been postponed because of "political and diplomatic developments in Cairo and other world capitals."

Britain to Permit Small 'Advance Guard' of U. N.

London, Feb. 12 (U.P.).—Britain is prepared to permit a "small advance guard" of the United Nations Palestine Commission to enter the Holy Land immediately, but its movements must be restricted for security reasons, a Colonial Office spokesman said today.

Report Asking for Army Expected by Tomorrow

Lake Success, Feb. 12 (AP).—The United Nations Palestine Commission tonight reported it hoped to complete work by Saturday on its report to the Security Council asking for an international military force. The Council was expected then to take up the issue of providing an army for the Holy Land about next Thursday.

Gen. Patton's Sicily Campaign Praised

British Leader of Operation Reveals Details of Misfortune in Glider Action

London, Feb. 12 (AP).—British-American cooperation made the conquest of Sicily a success in 38 days, but the airborne phase of the attack was "less than fortunate," Field Marshal Lord Alexander said today.

Alexander, who was commander in chief of the Sicilian operation, told in a War Office report of efforts to persuade Gen. George S. Patton that the American Seventh Army was not being relegated to a secondary role. His report gave generous praise to the late American commander for inspiring leadership and vigor.

Of the airborne attack of July 10, 1943, Alexander said the men who traveled from Malta and North Africa in gliders and transport planes had to fight stormy weather.

Cites Morale Effect

"The wind was still blowing at some 40 miles an hour when the parachutists were dropped and the gliders slipped," the report said. "Many of the pilots of the transport and tow aircraft, who had no previous experience in actual operations, ran into difficulties with the navigation or were disconcerted by enemy antiaircraft fire.

"The result was that the American airborne troops were scattered in small parties over an area of some 90 miles from Licata to Noto. In the Eighth (British) Army's area nearly 50 of the 134 gliders of the first air-landing brigade which took off from Tunisia came down in the sea. About 75 came safely to land somewhere in southeastern Sicily, and only 12 landed in the correct dropping zone.

"However, . . . the effect on the nerves of the none-too-steady Italian troops of these airborne forces all over southeastern Sicily was of utmost value to the assault.

"Small isolated units of parachutists seized vital points, attacked roads and created widespread panic which undoubtedly disorganized all plans for defense."

There were disagreements as to strategy among land, sea and air commanders. The knottiest question to settle was whether to attack all around Sicily or to concentrate on a few spots. The first plan accepted by the Allied command called for considerable dispersion and under it Patton would have been told to take the city of Palermo at once and make it his base.

Other opinion prevailed, however, and after he had been thinking about Palermo for weeks Patton was told to recast preparations so as to limit immediate landings to the south coast. The more spectacular assignment of taking Syracuse, Augusta and possibly Messina was assigned to General Montgomery's Eighth Army.

"It might well seem that the American troops were being given the tougher and less spectacular tasks," Alexander reported. "Their beaches were more exposed than the Eighth Army's and there were awkward sandbars. They would have only one small port for maintenance, and the Eighth Army would have the glory of capturing the more obviously attractive objectives . . . names which would bulk larger in the headlines than Gela or Licata or the obscure townships of southern Sicily."

Alexander said he "felt a natural anxiety about American reactions."

"I wish to place on record here," he wrote, "that General Patton at once fell in with my new plan, the military advantages of which were as clear to him as to me, and neither he nor anyone in the Seventh Army raised any form of objection. It is an impressive example of the spirit of complete loyalty and inter-allied cooperation which inspired all operations with which I was associated in the Mediterranean theater."

Costa Rica Fears New Attempt at Coup

San Jose, Costa Rica, Feb. 12 (AP).—Diplomatic quarters worked all day today in an effort to prevent a second political demonstration following last night's abortive plot to seize the government.

Diplomats sought to persuade the government-supported Republicano Nacional Party and the Vanguardia Popular (Communists) to call off their scheduled demonstration tonight.

One official was quoted as saying: "If we have another incident like last night's, the lid will be off."

A policeman was killed and six persons were seriously injured by shooting last night in an unsuccessful attempt to install Rafael Calderon Guardia, the government candidate for President. Troops and police foiled the attempted coup.

Calderon trails by 10,000 votes in Sunday's presidential election and has conceded victory to publisher Otilio Ulate Blanco of the Union Nacional Party. Calderon has charged election fraud.

Outgoing President Teodore Picardo has taken a position of neutrality in the election dispute.

A government source said the coup was planned by the Communists and the Republicano Nacional was not involved. He said it probably failed because the plotters struck too soon.

An estimated 6000 persons took part in yesterday's demonstration. Farmers and peons began streaming into the capital at daybreak.

Memo No. 3 From The C&O To The New York Central

Why should travelers have to stand in line or send to the station for sleeping-car tickets? The C&O invites you to adopt our new "Centralized Reservation Bureau."

A word to the public:

It is an unusual circumstance when the largest owners of a business must present their ideas to the management in the public press instead of in a Directors' meeting.

But though the C & O is now the largest owner of the New York Central, we may not, under the law, vote our stock, our officers may not sit on the Board of Directors, nor may the C & O have any voice in the Central's affairs, until the Interstate Commerce Commission approves.

This may take several months. Meanwhile we are making our recommendations in this way. What you will find here is merely a sample of the kind of thinking the C & O would like to contribute to the Central—in the interest of the railroad and of you the traveler.

This is the third of a series of "Memos to the Central." The first two urged through trains without layovers for coast-to-coast passengers—and some immediate improvements in commuter service.

This is a model of C & O's new substitute for the ticket line. All the traveler does is make a local phone call!

To the New York Central:

The old-fashioned way of getting sleeping-car accommodations—a way that hasn't changed since General Grant rode the rails—is a downright nuisance to the traveler.

Why should the railroad's customer have to stand in a ticket line, or send someone else to the station to do the same thing, just to buy what the railroads have to sell?

Why must the ticket line itself move so s-l-o-w-l-y, while the agent phones and wires other local offices and control points? Why, if the traveler tries to make reservations by phone, must he wait while an agent shops around for available space or late cancellations?

Why should the traveler be put to all this trouble? Why shouldn't the railroad take the trouble?

To end these nuisances, the C&O many months ago went to work on a "Centralized Reservation Bureau" that would enable travelers to make sleeping-car and coach reservations with almost no trouble at all. The system has been perfected and will be in operation February 17th. We know it will be a fine thing for passengers of the C&O. We believe the same principles can be adapted to the larger and more complex requirements of the New York Central—with equal benefit to the traveler.

Local Phone Call Does the Trick

Phone books in all principal cities on our lines, as well as in other cities to which our through sleepers operate, list a number for C&O reservations. A local phone call to this number immediately puts the caller through to the C&O Centralized Reservation Bureau in Huntington, W. Va. There the call comes into a big control room where panels show the space available on all C&O trains for eight weeks ahead.

An operator in this control room gives the customer the number of his space, takes his name or credit card number, and asks whether tickets should be held at the ticket office or delivered to the passenger after he boards the train. Unless the traveler wants to, he need not go near a ticket window! If he has a C&O credit card, he need not even pay until the end of the month.

No longer will the traveler be refused space—simply because the block of tickets assigned to his city is sold out. Every traveler, everywhere, has an equal chance.

No longer will the traveler have to worry through still more of the same routine before he gets reservations for his return trip. One call, to one reservation bureau, will provide him with space both ways. No longer will it be possible for two local ticket agents to reserve the same space for two different customers.

Central Passengers Can Have It, Too

If you believe, as we do, that this kind of progress earns the good will of passengers, you may want to install an adaptation of the Centralized Reservation Bureau idea for the New York Central. We will be glad to give every assistance we can.

One on the Aisle—

The '20s Were Tuneful

Old Songs Help A Nice Musical

By Richard L. Coe

TWO PLEASANT, ATTRACTIVE people—Jeanne Crain and Dan Dailey—are at the Capitol in "You Were Meant for Me," an unassuming little musical about what happened to a band leader when the market broke in 1929.

It's a likable picture because of its simplicity. Nothing very shattering happens in the usual movie sense—a matter which in itself can be quite shattering, in a quiet way, to be sure. There are those songs of the past that invariably seem so much better than what you get nowadays—"Ain't Misbehavin'," "I'll Get By," "Good Night, Sweetheart," "Crazy Rhythm," "Ain't She Sweet" and that dreamy title song.

This is the sort of film that the film trade calls "a family picture." There's nothing in it to give Jane and Bobby any raw ideas of their parents' youth and there's a lot in it which will make grandma remember how scandalous she thought her growing youngsters were.

While I must confess it seemed to me that the adventure fell apart along about midway and that the ending gave the desperate air of someone realizing the picture would have to end somewhere, it could be that I fell apart and not the picture. I seem to have a habit of falling apart at no provocation whatever.

Nostalgia for the '20s, of course, is a familiar emotion for the two stars. Not so long ago Miss Crain was being valiant about much the same period in "Margie" and Dailey was humming away about the pleasures of vaudeville in the '20s for "Mother Wore Tights." To link such a duo for another go at the same is a natural.

Two Stars Score

Jeanne plays a high school junior who goes to a dance where Dan's successful band is playing on a tour of one-nighters. It's love at first sight. Jeanne leaves home and school to marry Dan and follow him around while he leads his boys in scores of dances just like the one that brought them together. It's a lonely life, the crash crashes, booking vanish like margin and back scoot Jeanne and Dan to the home folks. Behavior from here on is drastically contrived.

But there's no point in being captious about any picture so unassuming as "You Were Meant for Me." Miss Crain is completely lovely as the girl mother used to be. Dailey's easy skill at song, dance and the light touch certainly puts such lightweights as Sinatra, Torme et al in the shade.

Oscar Levant is around, too, as a friend of the family, grunting his sharp thoughts and playing the Gershwin piano concerto No. 1 with his offhand skill. Percy Kilbride has a refreshing role as Jeanne's stamp-collecting father and Serena Royle plays her understanding mom.

THREE BY NOW FAMILIAR fools top the Capitol's stage bill, comic Joey Adams, scrappy Tony Canzoneri and singing Mark Plant . . . The last two, of course, play straight men to the energetic Adams . . . Al and Connie Fanton show their limber in tricky taps and Mary Mon Toy suggests that our songs fit well into an Oriental facade . . . The Capitol also presents a Lincoln's birthday tribute eloquently spoken by radio's Evelyn Freyman and Charles Edwards over Sam Jack Kaufman's Orchestra.

"YOU WERE MEANT FOR ME." Twentieth Century Fox release produced by Fred Kohlmar. Screen play by Elick Moll and Valentine Davies. Photographed by Victor Milner. Dances by Dan Dailey and Lee Clark. Musical direction by Lionel Newman. Directed by Lloyd Bacon. At the Capitol.

Rarely Used Law on Firearms Invoked Against Ex-Convict

A 16-year-old, rarely-used law on firearms was brought into play yesterday to boost the bond of a former convict arrested on a threat charge.

The statute, hailed by Municipal Court Judge George D. Neilson as a useful tool for police, prohibits possession of firearms by persons previously convicted of a crime of violence.

Assistant District Attorney Andrew Howard resurrected the law in filing an additional charge against Henry Lyons, jr., 40, of 118 R st. ne., who, police say, served eight years of a 20-year term for slaying his wife in 1932.

Lyons was arrested Tuesday on a threat charge after Carrie Stephens of 462 P st. nw. told police he had threatened her with a gun.

Police Pvt. Eli Levine said Lyons admitted having a gun and gave permission for the policeman to go to Lyons' room to get the weapon.

This was denied by Lyons' attorney, E. Roosevelt Page, who told the court he would file a motion to suppress the evidence on the grounds the gun was obtained illegally by police.

Lyons was held on $1000 bond and his jury trial was set for March 2.

Judge Neilson said he had never heard of the statute, but he said he hoped police would use it more often. "It will be useful in prosecuting known troublemakers who keep weapons in their homes," he added.

Capt. Robert Bryant, chief of detectives, said police have been aware of the law, but that circumstances have prevented its wide use. In most instances, he explained, when weapons are involved, they are usually found on the person at the time of his arrest.

If convicted of the gun charge, Lyons faces a maximum penalty of a $1000 fine or a year in jail, or both. The threat charge carries a maximum penalty of $500 fine or a year in jail, or both.

Soviet Fails to Make Latin-American Group

Lake Success, Feb. 12 (AP).—A United Nations committee today rejected a Russian demand for membership on the proposed Economic Commission for Latin America.

Of the 18-member Economic Committee of the U. N. Economic and Social Council only Russia, White Russia and Poland supported the Soviet demand.

Twelve other members backed the contention of Brazil and Chile that Russia had no direct economic interests in Latin America. Turkey and Lebanon abstained.

House of Delegates Gets 4th Sales Tax Bill

Richmond, Va., Feb. 12 (AP).—Another sales tax bill—the fourth of the 1948 session—was introduced in the Virginia House of Delegates today.

At the same time several senators revealed they are gathering ammunition for a fight in the upper house against Governor Tuck's tax program, the major part of which has already passed the House.

Today's sales tax bill, designed to raise 50 million dollars in the next two years, then to expire by its own terms, was offered by Delegates Floyd Yates of Powhatan and William H. Irvine of Campbell. It would place a 2 per cent retail sales levy on everything except feed, seed, manufactured products sold for resale, products sold to Government units and agricultural products sold by the producers. All proceeds from the tax would be sent back to Virginia counties and cities for the construction and rebuilding of schools. The bill would expire of its own limitation on June 30, 1950. Allocations to localities would be on the basis of average daily attendance in schools.

Delegate Yates said the tax would help Virginia localities meet "one of their most pressing problems." He said they need help because of extremely high building costs. The localities said, cannot afford to let a generation of children grow up with inadequate education, and good teaching is most difficult in inadequate and overcrowded buildings.

Other Sales Tax Bills

The Yates-Irvine bill was referred to the House Finance Committee and probably will be considered in a public hearing already scheduled by the committee for 3 p. m. next Wednesday on a 3 per cent sales tax offered by Dr. J. W. Witten of Tazewell and a 2 per cent measure offered by Delegate S. E. Pope of Southampton. Another 2 per cent general sales tax bill has been offered in the Senate by Senator Charles T. Moses of Appomattox.

Both Houses today set February 23 as the deadline for the introduction of general bills without unanimous consent. This will expedite business of the session and permit adjournament March 13. Exceptions are made for revenue measures, bills recommended by the Governor and purely local measures.

Delegate W. H. C. Murray of Richmond City introduced five controversial bills to abolish racial segregation in places of public assembly and entertainment and on buses, railroads and steamships. Murray, President of the Central Trades and Labor Council, of Richmond, is serving his first term in the House.

The House joined the Senate in requesting from the departments of health and public welfare the extent of illegitimacy in Virginia and the number of illegitimates on the public welfare rolls.

U. N. Urged to Eliminate Veto

The United Nations was urged to eliminate the veto power in a joint resolution passed by the House. It originally called for an indorsement of world federalism but was amended.

The Senate in its brief session passed the Massie House bill relieving radio stations from liability for defamatory statements made by or on behalf of candidates for office since they are not permitted, by the Federal Communications Commission, to censor them.

Meanwhile the House Banking Committee today reported favorably, by a 9-to-3 vote, the Virginia Bankers Association bill to restrict branch banking.

The committee added, by unanimous vote, an amendment to secure the right of the Bank of Virginia (Morris Plan) to go ahead and construct branches already authorized by the State Corporation Commission.

It rejected, by a 9-to-4 vote, an amendment to permit branches of the Bank of Virginia to expand in cities other than Richmond beyond authorizations already made by the SCC.

Others Passed by Senate

Other bills passed by the Senate were:

Davis-Robertson-Page House bill for a committee to inquire into the need for general indexes in clerk's offices; three Senate bills by Senator M. M. Hillard, of Portsmouth, relating to registration fees for motor vehicles, relating to the filing fees with applications for certificates of public convenience and necessity, and relating to restrictions on brokers licenses; Vandreth-Stuart Senate bill to classify geiatrical contractors as such; Carter Senate bill giving trial justices the right to administer affairmations and Minter-Morris Senate bill to give courts not of record similar jurisdiction as those of record over certain bodies of water.

The House passed:

Gray Senate bill giving the Museum of Fine Arts authority to acquire some additional land; Cox House bill authorizing the Corporation Commission to order extension of telephone service to rural areas; Wyatt House bill outlining service of process on residents who leave the State; Hopkins House bill relative to local appropriations for relief of injured firemen and police officers; Davis House bill providing for a continuing board of assessors for Princess Anne County.

Broaddus House bill raising the salary brackets for the city sergeants of Martinsville, Fredericksburg and Waynesboro; McMurran House bill to authorize governing bodies of counties to provide for the closing of certain roads and railroad crossings.

The House bill providing for a State-wide prohibition on the sale, possession and use of fireworks was up for passage today but a vote was deferred until tomorrow.

If Prices Are Cut, French Union Will Drop Pay Demand

Paris, Feb. 12 (NYHT).—France's Communist-led General Confederation of Labor (C. G. T.) offered today to cancel its drive for wage increases if employers can restore prices to their December level.

Pierre Lebrun, C. G. T. secretary, made this announcement following a meeting of the economic council which is investigating living costs and wages. The council, composed of union leaders and employers, is to report tomorrow.

The government's bill to fix food prices at their January 15 level or less went to the National Assembly today.

Va. Senate Gets Test Tube Baby Legitimacy Bill

Richmond, Va., Feb. 12 (AP).—A bill putting the stamp of legitimacy on test tube babies was introduced in the Senate of Virginia today.

The substitute stork statute was offered by Senator George Warren of Bristol. The legitimacy of any baby born by artificial insemination would not, on that ground, be open to question in any later court action, either civil or criminal, if the operation was performed with the consent of the mother's husband.

A recent decision of the New York Supreme Court said that the husband of a woman who gave birth to a child conceived by artificial insemination had full paternal rights.

Complexities Blamed For Fall in Birth Rate

Los Angeles, Feb. 12 (AP).—Complexities of modern life have caused the decline in the American birth rate, says Dr. John Rock, clinical professor of gynecology at Harvard Medical School.

Americans, he told medical specialists here, "should live a little more like animals, a little less the way they think superior humans should."

Rudy York Goes With Mackmen

Philadelphia, Feb. 12 (AP).—The Philadelphia Athletics lifted Rudy York out of the American League discard today—with the approval of his future teammates.

Assistant Manager Earle Mack disclosed that the A's had polled several players before offering the one-time slugger a contract. He said this was done to insure there would be no resentment that might impair club morale.

And, Mack added, "everyone on the club is glad he is coming with us. We're going to move up higher in the standings."

One-Two-Three, Says He

York thought so, too. At his Cartersvile, Ga., home, big Rudy said he is "very pleased to be with the A's. They have a good ball club and should finish one-two-three."

That's several notches higher than Connie Mack has been willing to predict. Connie, now vacationing in Florida, admits he was surprised by the fifth-place finish last year and attributes it to "team spirit."

Nevertheless the A's have been looking for a long-ball hitter. Talks with Hank Greenberg fizzled out last week, but today's announcement that York had agreed to terms at Cartersville, assured the club of an established slugger. Rudy hit 21 homers last year with the Chicago White Sox although his batting average slumped to .233.

Fain's Knee in Shape

Rudy has caught, played first and third base and the outfield in his major league career that dates back to 1937. He spent more than eight seasons with Detroit before being traded to the Boston Red Sox, and played for Chicago last season.

He could be first base insurance for Ferris Fain's injured knee, but Fain, in a letter to the front office today, reported the knee "will be in first class shape."

"This last operation had nothing to do with the injury," Fain wrote from California. "The doctor was just cleaning up some bone chips."

Hornets Play Lions Tonight

Farmhand George Hayes makes his debut with the Washington Lions when they entertain the Western Division leading Pittsburg Hornets in an American Hockey League match at Uline Arena tonight at 8:30.

Hayes, who reported to the Lions' fall training camp at Barrie, Ontario, and was farmed to the Baltimore Clippers of the Eastern League, was recalled yesterday. Hayes, 5 foot, 11 inches, 165-pound center, was one of the Eastern League's leading scores with 58 points.

Tonight's Lions-Hornets game is the second between the two teams this week. Last Tuesday, the Hornets walloped the last-place Lions, 8-3. Previously, the Hornets beat the Lions, 4-3, and 3-2. The Hornets had a 19-game winning streak earlier in the year, and have dominated the league since then.

The Sports Trail

Old Timers Come 'Home' To Mr. Mack

By Whitney Martin
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Rudy York, in signing with Connie Mack's Athletics, adds his name to a select list of fine ball players who have found that club a haven in the fading days of their careers.

Maybe it's a sincere sympathy for stars whose future is behind them and who yearn for that one last chance. Maybe there is a trace of hero worship in the old gentleman's makeup. Maybe it's a little of both.

Whatever the reason, the Athletics seem to be the happy dumping grounds for players, once great, whom nobody else seems to want any more. York was a free agent. Mr. Mack made a futile bid for the services of Hank Greenberg, another free agent who is on the last lap of his career. Bobo Newson still is at liberty. He might wind up at Shibe Park.

Not that Mr. Mack neglects the youngsters. He'll give the kids their chance. But he does like to have around one or two once-great names which now are agate type.

HE'S ALWAYS been that way. Some of the greatest names in baseball history have graced his rosters as the owners chanted their baseball swan songs.

A few of them he had in their primes, but he left a light burning in the window for them and they came back. Others he only could admire while they were with other clubs. He gave them the one last, forlorn chance.

The list includes Ty Cobb, Nap Lajoie, Tris Speaker, Jimmy Collins, Eddie Collins, Waite Hoyt, Mule Haas. He gave George McQuinn a chance when it looked like the first baseman was through.

Lajoie, whose greatest years were spent with Cleveland, ended his career with Mr. Mack in 1915 and 1916. The A's had had him briefly about 15 years before.

Cobb also spent his last two seasons with Mr. Mack, drawing down a fabulous salary. The Georgia Peach still was hitting well over .300 when he finally quit.

AFTER Jimmy Collins had worn out his welcome at Boston following a great career with the Braves and Red Sox, it was Mr. Mack who took him on for the final fling of Jimmy's major league play.

Mr. Mack had Eddie Collins at the peak of Eddie's career. He sold him to the White Sox, but about a dozen years later Eddie came wandering back to spend his last four years in an Athletic uniform.

Speaker, whose gala years were spent with the Red Sox and Cleveland, finally drifted to Washington, and thence to the A's for his final season of Major League competition. Hoyt had his best years with the Yankees, but he also found his way to Philadelphia by way of Detroit.

Haas, sold by Mr. Mack to the White Sox after several fine seasons with the A's, was taken back into the fold six years later to spend his final Major League season, and the personable Al Simmons, after spending the best years of his playing life with the Athletics before being sold to the White Sox along with Dykes and Haas, eventually returned to play out his string for Mr. Mack, and even now is on the roster as a coach.

Mitchel's Sports Store scored its twenty-ninth victory in 31 starts, defeating Naval Communication Annex, 59-13, last night at Roosevelt High.

Povich on Vacation

Shirley Povich is on vacation. His column will be resumed February 29.

Jackie Signs Contract for Near $14,000

Brooklyn, Feb. 12 (U.P.).—Jackie Robinson signed his 1948 Brooklyn contract today for a substantial raise over his rookie pay.

The Dodgers' first sacker, who was the first Negro to play modern big league ball, confined his comments on salary to "I'm still smiling." Observers figured it would take about $14,000 to keep Jackie smiling. It was a one-year agreement.

President Branch Rickey also announced the signing of Hugh Casey, the portly tavern owner whose relief chores are a Flatbush legend. As in the case of Robinson, no terms were announced but a good guess probably would be at least $15,000.

To Make Movie Soon

Jackie, weighing about 210, or 15-20 pounds over his playing weight, was in town to accept an award tonight at the Urban League. Then he'll hurry back to Hollywood to make a movie.

As was inevitable, Robinson was asked if he expected to oust Eddie Stanky from second base next season as has been hinted. The reply was diplomatic.

"The way the club is now constituted," he said, "I don't see how anybody on our club can push Eddie Stanky around."

Robinson admitted he felt he could do a better job elsewhere but said he liked first base all right. He figured he certainly would know more about the position next summer.

The Dodgers' highly publicized sophomore, now 29, repeated what he had said in other cities about his future.

Helps Kids Later

"Yes, I expect to go into boys' club work when I get through with baseball," he said. "I can't tell how long that might be. Three years, maybe four or five. I figure the length of time I've spent in athletics, in all sports, has taken plenty out of me. I may not last too long."

Rickey disclosed he had given Robinson permission to report five or six days late at the Ciudad Trujillo training base to complete a movie. Numerous delays have shoved back the film but Robinson expects to get started within a week. He has just completed a tour of Southern Negro colleges talking about his experiences in baseball.

Although he would not talk money, Rickey revealed that only two players did not get a raise.

Four Interhigh Teams Seek Playoffs Today

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Central, Roosevelt, Eastern and Anacostia basketball teams today seek to clinch their interhigh playoff berths in a pair of double-headers at the National Guard Armory.

In a 3:30 p. m. twin bill, Anacostia meets Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson faces Calvin Coolidge. At 8 p. m., Western clashes with Central and Eastern plays McKinley Tech.

According to past performances, Roosevelt, Wilson, Central and Eastern should win today. Roosevelt and Central are currently tied for first place with four wins apiece. Eastern and Anacostia, who have won three each, are tied for third.

INTERHIGH STANDINGS

	W.	L.	Pct.		W.	L.	Pct.
Central	4	1	.800	Western	2	3	.400
Roosevelt	4	1	.800	Wilson	2	3	.400
Anacostia	3	2	.600	Tech	2	3	.400
Eastern	3	2	.600	Coolidge	0	5	.000

Need Four Wins

Four wins are enough to insure a team's participation in the playoffs as soon as four teams have dropped four games. Coolidge has already lost five and is out of the running. But Wilson, Western and Tech have lost only three and still have a chance.

If Anacostia can win its fourth game by upsetting Roosevelt, if Coolidge can tame Wilson and Central and Eastern come through as expected, the race will be over tonight.

Central would have five wins and Eastern, Roosevelt and Anacostia four each. Wilson, Western and Tech would be eliminated with four losses each.

Tonight's doubleheader should prove the most interesting of the series, and may draw the largest paid turnout ever to see Interhigh basketball locally. The official record is 3300 set last year at Tech gym.

The Central-Western clash will see four of the league's top 10 pointmakers in action, three of them representing Central. Jimmy Pantos, Hal Sponsler and Bobby Johnson, all of Central, are second, sixth, and tenth, respectively. Western's Wayne Brizendine, called by many the best all-around player in the series, ranks third in scoring.

Warner's High

The Eastern-Tech game figures to be most spirited of the day. Both teams are on the comeback trail. Eastern won its first two games, dropped two, and then came back last Friday to upset Wilson. Tech lost its first three games, but kept its playoff hopes alive by kinning its last two.

Drawing card of the afternoon bill will be Anacostia's Wally Warner, who has scored 87 points in five loop games to lead the scoring parade. He'll match his pivot shot against the best defensive team in the league, Roosevelt. In the second game of the afternoon program, determined Coolidge goes after its first victory.

Luck Changes

It Pays to Ge Up Some Days, Kid Wolfe Is Happy to Learn

FEBRUARY 12 began much as had recent days for Kid Wolfe, a Negro boxer. True, the weather was a trifle warmer, the streets slippery and it was Abraham Lincoln's birthday. Otherwise, however, the day seemed to have little to offer in the way of excitement.

Wolfe decided to make the usual tour. Maybe somebody wanted a sparring partner and he'd pick up some change and perhaps end the day with a steak—it had been done.

A few short hours later Kid Wolfe had hit the jackpot. His good fortune came in this order:

(1) Acquired a new manager; (2) Bought new suit; (3) Moved into new living quarters; (4) Assured eating money; (5) Agreed to make fistic invasion of Europe; (6) Offered main bout at Turner's Arena.

Who waved this magic wand? Pierre Gruen, a Washingtonian, via France.

Wolfe thought he was being kidded when Gruen approached him yesterday and said, "I just bought your contract and I'm taking you to Europe."

"Please go away, man," replied The Kid.

Gruen showed him the papers. Then Wolfe heard the whole story. It goes like this:

Pete was in Paris several months ago and a promoter asked him to bring a middleweight fighter back. Gruen had seen Wolfe beat Ken Stribling here and had the boy in mind from the start.

Finally he asked the advice of Ray Arcel, considered this country's No. 1 second of fighters. Ray said he believed Wolfe was being overlooked and really was a top fighter. Pete watched the middleweight spar with Jackie Tranford, Washington heavyweight, and became sold on him.

The Paris bout in prospect for Wolfe is with Marcel Cerdan, middleweight champion of Europe.

Wolfe is ready to jump at it—and with reason.

The Kid is a veteran of the late Gen. George S. Patton's army. He won all his bouts while overseas. However, efforts to get Cerdan in the ring with him failed, the Frenchman always having some excuse.

Wolfe's local chance is as a possible substitute Monday night for Billy Brown, who was stiffened in Binghamton Wednesday. His opponent? The same Ken Stribling he once whipped. The bout awaits the District Boxing Commission's sanction.

Terps Face Tough Foe In Carolina

Maryland fighting to stay in the running for a Southern Conference playoff berth, has a tough assignment against second-place North Carolina at College Park tonight.

The Terps go into the game with a 6-4 conference record after dropping a 65-49 decision to George Washington in the Armory doubleheader Wednesday night.

North Carolina was an easy 70-46 victor in an earlier engagement this season and comes here with a 16-3 mark. It was NYU that spoiled the Tar Heels' 12-game winning streak by winning decisively, 63-34. Then Temple set them back by 10 points.

Cruelest blow of all to Carolina was the 81-42 thumping administered by North Carolina State. That was the only loss in nine conference starts for the boys from Chapel Hill.

In a preliminary game, the Maryland football backs will play the linemen. Backs include Lu Gambino, Vic Turyn and Earl Roth. Some of the linemen are Gene Kinney, Tom McHurg, Ray Krouse and Jim Goodman.

Takes It on Chin —And on Lam

Kansas City, Feb. 12 (AP)—Forrest Bernard offered no allvis today for his knockout defeat last night in a Golden Gloves bout, at least not publicly.

The 147-pound amateur scrapper couldn't be found after he was K. O.'d by Joe Peters of Kansas City in the first round and still was missing today.

His coach, R. W. Schieverdecker, is worried because Bales, 22, was a member of the Alcoa, Mo., reformatory boxing team and was serving a 3-year sentence for burglary. The four other members of the team, all trusties, returned to Algoa today by bus.

Catholics Honor Gambino Tonight

Lu Gambino, Maryland's ace back, tonight receives a gold football and formal notification of his selection as halfback on the All-Catholic All-America team. It will be presented at the Newman Club dance by Eddie Walsh, Eastern representative of Extension Magazine which made the award.

Satunton Beats Brooklyn Prep

Staunton, Va., Feb. 12—Staunton Military Academy rolled to a 61-28 victory over the Brooklyn Prep basketball team today and hung up its 13th consecutive win without defeat.

Joe Urschell, high scorer with 15 points, dropped in a layup in the first minute to give SMA a lead never relinquished.

Terp Jayvees Whip A. U. Jayvees

Maryland's Jayvee team rallied in the second half to defeat American U gym. Leading the victors, who led at half by a mere point, were Jack Myers with 22 points and Frank Armsworthy with 13.

Ay Nencioni, Bill Patten and John Boothby each scored 9 for the Eagles.

Uses Right Name

Volts Have All-High Center But It's News to the Coach

COACH FOREST POWERS of Chamberlain Vocational High learned for the first time yesterday that he has a former All-high center on his team. But he had to learn it from Joe Gallagher, coach of the St. John's team that plays the Volts tonight at 8 o'clock in the Eastern gym.

Gallagher phoned Powers to inquire about reports that Chamberlain planned to use "ringers" against St. John's. Powers told Gallagher that his only new man was Stephen Manosirides, who enrolled at Chamberlain two weeks ago.

"He's only a fair player," said Powers. "I used him for the first time against little Manassas, Va., last Tuesday, and he only got six points."

Gallagher replied, "that kid's name is really Steve Manos, and he was All-high at Central in 1945 and '46."

Powers called Manosorides to his office while he kept Gallagher on the line. Manosirides admitted that he was Manos, but that he hadn't used a ficticious name. "That's my real name," he said. "I cut it short to Manos at Central because it was easier for me to say."

Gallagher said that in view of Manos' legitimate enrollment at Chamberlain he is eligible to play against St. John's.

Haefner's 65 Ties for Lead

Harlingen, Tex., Feb. 12 (AP).—Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N. C., and Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., shot six-under-par 65's today to tie for the first round lead in the $10,000 Lower Rio Grande Valley Open.

The two veterans left a trail of birdies all over the 6045-yard Harlingen Municipal course.

Heafner, bundled to the ears (he was wearing two pairs of pajamas underneath his regular clothing), came rolling in with a 32-33. Demaret scoffing at the grumbling by other golfers against the near-freezing weather did the first nine in 31 and turned home with a 34.

"Why," he smiled, "it's warm."

Bob Hamilton, another veteran pro from Evansville, Ind., finished next with a 66 while three players shot 67. They were professionals Otto Greiner of Baltimore, Ky Laffoon of St. Andrews, Ill., and Skip Alexander of Mid-Pines, N. C.

The field was cut to 100 players with today's round. More than 25 players bettered 35-36—71 par figures.

Arosa, Switzerland, Feb. 12 (AP).—The United States hockey team, representing the Amateur Hockey Association, today defeated the Arosa Hockey Club, 15-6. The Americans scored six goals in the first period, four in the second and added five more in the final.

Filled Armory May See NYU Play Hoyas

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Another capacity crowd at the Armory Saturday night is in prospect with the magic basketball name of New York University supplying the drawing magnet.

The unbeaten NYU team, with a skein of 15 victories, meets Georgetown and the Hoya athletic office reports that it's pressed to meet the advanced sale demand.

NYU is making its last appearance outside New York City before meeting its last six regularly scheduled opponents. Off their records, Georgetown hardly figures against the Violet. But before Howard Cann's boys call it quits they meet Manhattan, St. John's, Rutgers, Notre Dame, Fordham and CCNY.

NYU's formidable team is a veteran one. Four of the five starters are seniors and the names of Adolph Schayes, Don Forman and Ray Lumpp are well-known in court circles.

The unbeaten New Yorkers have had two close calls, one in their last game aginst Temple at Philadelphia. They squeezed out a 55-54 victory in that one and edged St. Francis, 54-52.

One of the secrets of the winning streak they've compiled is that even if the team's off one of the stars comes through. Taking turns in amassing scoring honors have been Schayes, who has 196 points; Lumpp, 185, and Forman, 173.

Georgetown bounced back from two crushing defeats by Holy Cross and North Carolina State to play Penn State on even terms before losing in the last minute, 42-40.

Phelan Calls It Case of Sour Grapes

San Francisco, Feb. 12 (AP).—Ed McKeever's "time-bomb" letter questioning future eligibility of 22 football players he coached at the University of San Francisco erupted today in chain explosions of criticism—against McKeever.

Most heated of the critics were USF officials. One accused McKeever of taking away vital athletic office files when he resigned.

Criticism came also from Western coaches. Most of them expressed amazement that McKeever should write the letter and then send carbon copies to them and other athletic officials in the Bay area.

McKeever, in Chicago where he'll coach the Rockets of the All-America Professional Football Conference, explained the letter was written so "later on, nobody can say McKeever didn't say something about their (the players') eligibility."

Charles Harney, chairman of the athletic board at USF, said:

"All the letters that can do us any good are missing. They are of no use to McKeever. Why did he take them except for spite?"

Harney said the university could no make a move until the letters are returned as the university does not know what commitments were made by McKeever before he quit.

"We had made a mistake in hiring McKeever and we were just beginning to realize it. We had made the situation—and we were stuck with it," Harney said.

Western coaches had these comments:

Jimmie Phelan, coach of St. Mary's and president of the American Football Coaches Association:

"Only Indicted Himself"

"I can't find one good thing to say about Ed's letter. It sounded like sour grapes to me. . . . Ed sponsored most of those kids himself . . . he used them to vindicate himself. He only indicted himself."

Brutus Hamilton, athletic director at California:

"I was surprised to get such a letter. Nothing was to be gained by it by anybody, above all McKeever."

Leonard Casanova, University of Santa Clara:

"It was a pretty vicious kick Ed gave at the fellows he brought out here to play."

The Rev. Jerome J. Sullivan, athletic moderator, USF, said 18 of the 22 athletes mentioned in the McKeever letter "are absolutely in the clear" insofar as eligibility is concerned. He said in only one case is the ineligibility positive.

McKeever's letter, naming some of USF's star gridmen, said their eligibility had been used up in most cases by playing at Eastern colleges as well as at USF.

McKeever also charged that some of the players received substantial amounts above "the usual $75, $50 and $40" a month rate.

Says McKeever:

In his own words, Big Ed McKeever explained everything yesterday in this fashion:

Reason: "So, later on, nobody can say McKeever didn't say something about their eligibility."

The missing letters: "Tell the school to look in the files. Everything is there, just the same as it was when I returned from the recent NCAA coaches' meeting in New York."

Reaction: "There certainly is a lot of fuss over a little school that nobody knew existed until last season."

Haight Tells Mysterious Fish Story

By Walter Haight

IF I'VE WRITTEN this piece before, blame Shirley Povich. He outdates me around the paper and says he can't remember it.

Haight

Anyway, Doc Mauro, one-time trainer of the Redskins, was living out on the West Coast. His front lawn became soggy during a dry spell and Doc discovered it was caused by a leak in the water main.

Always wanting a pond, he dug out the earth, placed rocks around the edges, planted water flowers and bought a couple dozen goldfish.

He was mighty pleased with his work.

A friend, who worked at a fish hatchery, saw the pond and suggested that Doc come out and get some small mountain trout to class up the outdoor aquarium. A short time later Doc dumped in a bucketful of the little finny fellows.

One day the trainer looked into the pond and discovered three goldfish and only a few trout. He thought a while and settled upon a suspect—a neighbor's cat.

EARLY the next morning he he was sure he had placed the blame rightly, because the cat sneaked up to the pool, lent over and pawed the water.

Another dawn and a shot rang out. The cat went into the air, turned a flipflop and was stone, cold dead—nine lives to the contrary.

So Doc purchased another school of goldfish.

Sometime later he examined the pool and, to his amazement, he saw no goldfish and only one tiny trout!

"Maybe they are escaping through the pipe or the overflow," he reasoned, but examination showed the mesh wire was in place.

DOC BEGAN WONDERING if there wasn't another slick cat in the neighborhood who was using the pond for a fish course. He couldn't remember seeing one around.

Finally he scratched his head and was about to give up—when from under a rock came the solution to the mysterious case of the disappearing fish!

A fish about a foot long shot forward, mouth open! Before Doc could say "dead cat," the little trout disappeared and the big fellow darted back behind the rocks.

Sometime later, Doc met the hatchery fellow who said, "I forgot to tell you that I put a fair-sized trout in with the others. How's he doing?"

"You wouldn't believe it," came back the trainer, "but right now that trout is worth his weight in goldfish—and I mean MY goldfish."

To himself, Doc said, "Just think, that poor cat was only thirsty."

Game Mare Overcomes Bad Fortune

Hialeah, Fla., Feb. 12 (AP).—A well-earned triumph for William Noble's Kay Gibson in the Abraham Lincoln Purse and Jockey Ted Atkinson's bid to bring the all-time money total earned by his mounts to the $5,000,000 mark attracted most interest here today.

Kay Gibson, recently a hard-luck fifth in the Columbiana Handicap, again met with bad racing fortune but managed to overcome the handicap and capture the seven-furlong dash by a length and a half. Love Sonnet got up to head Yankee Hill for the place.

Then came Roi Rouge to finish fourth under Atkinson. Victory in this event would have allowed Terrific Ted to reach his goal, but Roi Rouge picked up only $200 for running fourth. That left Atkinson less than $1000 under the total he sought to reach.

Kay Gibson, paying $4.20, was the third victorious choice on a card witnessed by a crowd estimated at close to 15,000. She was teletimed in 1:23 3/5 with Jack Turner up.

Turner had Kay Gibson battling for command in the run to the turn, then got caught in tight quarters and was forced back to fourth position. The game mare recovered before starting the stretch run. Taking over after straightening for home, she drew away under pressure as Love Sonnet rallied to nip the fleet Yankee Hill.

Atkinson, who had won a race earlier on the program, kept Roi Rouge within range of the pace, but his mount just didn't have it in the final stages.

AAC Sets 9 Scoring Marks

New York, Feb. 12 (AP).—Led by Orban (Spec) Sanders and Ben Agajanian, the All-America Football Conference set nine new scoring marks and tied two others, according to official figures released today.

The league produced enough outstanding runners to record a new record of 175 touchdowns by running in 56 games. Six of the running touchdowns came on kickoff returns and a dozen from interceptions.

Cleveland produced 56 touchdowns, New York registered a new high of three touchdowns on kickoff returns, and Los Angeles crashed the record book with 15 field goals, all by Agajanian.

Agajanian, the Dons' kicking specialist, also tied the mark of 84 points made by Lou Groza of Cleveland in 1946.

Sanders, the Yankees' triple threat back, was the scoring king with 114 points including 19 touchdowns. Only Don Hutson, former all-star end of the Green Bay Packers of the National League, with 138 and 117 points, has made more points than Sanders in professional football.

Third behind Sanders and Agajanian was Chet Mutryn of Buffalo. He accumulated 73 points on 12 touchdowns and an extra point. Harvey Johnson of the Yankees booted a record 49 extra points and made seven of eight field goal attempts for a 70-point fourth place total.

Part of Mat Show Gate Goes to Boys Clubs

Part of the proceeds of next Wednesday's wrestling show at Turner's Arena will be turned over to the Metropolitan Police Boys Club campaign, Mrs. Florence Turner, promoter, announced yesterday.

The feature match will be between Super Sweetish Angel, 300-pounder, and Dave Levin, former "champion."

Hegan Returns 4th Contract to Tribe—Unsigned

Cleveland, Feb. 12 (AP).—Catcher Jim Hegan, Cleveland's most recalcitrant Redskin, fired back his fourth unsigned contract to the Indians today.

"I intend to sit this out for a while, and let Hegan make the next move," declared Tribe President Bill Veeck.

"This was my final offer," Veeck continued. "He will have to accept this contract—he should remember that we have four other pretty good catchers." The Tribe's latest offer was reported to be approximately $11,000.

Other catchers on the Tribe roster include rookies Hank Ruszkowski, Joe Tipton, Ray Boone and Ray Murray, all signed except Murray.

The tiff with Hegan is Veeck's first salary fight with a Cleveland player since Bill assumed presidency of the club in June, 1946. The Tribe prexy said he anticipated "no trouble" with the five other nonregular Tribesmen who have not yet signed 1948 contracts.

NTS Loses, 39-28, To St. Anthony's

St. Anthony's took a 39-28 decision from National Training School yesterday at the N. T. S. court to bring the Saints' season record to 5 won in 10 games.

Jack Bohne's 17 points helped the winners overcome an early N. T. S. lead, gained on the set shots of Everett Votaw. Votaw tallied 19 points.

Johnny Palmer Looks Like Best of Younger Golf Pros

Harlingen, Tex., Feb. 12 (AP).—George Schneiter, Shepherd of PGA tournament golf, points with pride at the ney, bright crop of players now shoving the big names of a decade into the background.

Declaring that there are more and better golfers today than ever before, he picks Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C., to wind up with the most money from the 1948 campaign.

"We all feel that Palmer will lead the field in winnings," said Schneiter, chairman of hte PGA tournament committee who makes the tour as manager-player.

"Last year, you know, Johnny won $16,704 and was in sixth place. His stroke average for 100 rounds was 70.48. Had he been eligible (being a PGA member) he would have been on the Ryder cup team. He is eligible this year and he has already won $4040 in six tournaments and his stroke avereage has been 69.13."

Others listed by Schneiter as destined to displace the present but fading big names are Stawart (Skip) Alexander of Mid-Pines, N. C.; Ed Furgol of Pontiac, Mich.; Fred Hawkins of Antioch, Ill.; George Schoux of Mamaroneck, N. Y.; Jackson Bradley of St. Charles, Ill.; Jack Burke, jr., of White Plains, N. Y.

Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., Dave Douglas of Wilmington, Del., Elroy Marti of Houston, Marty Furgol of Los Angeles, Bill Nary of Phoenix, Ariz., Eric Monti of Santa Monica, Calif., and Roberto De Vicenzo of Rosario Province, Argentina—that is, if De Vicenzo remains in America and continues on the tour. Right now De Vicenzo has said he will stay until spring.

Schneiter pointed out that these up-and-coming players had relegated such familiar campaigners as Ky Laffoon, Dick Metz and Lawson Little to twentieth position or lower in the money-winning list.

Riley Leads Golf Advance

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 12 (AP).—The favorites came through in the quarter finals of the Palm Beach Women's Golf Tournament today with Polly Riley of Fort Worth, Tex., still occupying the top role.

Miss Riley, medalist, disposed of Mrs. Eddie Bush of Wilmington, Del., 5 and 4, while the Texan's next opponent, Carol Diringer, Tiffin, Ohio, won by an identical margin from Mrs. Georgie Wilcox of Miami.

In the other bracket, Peggy Kirk of Findlay, Ohio, was one stroke over men's par for 15 holes as she closed out Mary Agnes Wall, Menominee, Mich., 4 and 3.

Pat Devany, Grosse Isle, Mich., gained the other semifinal berth when she registered a 6-and-5 triumph over Mrs. Charles Harbough of Celevland.

Colts Sign Hillenbrand

Baltimore, Feb. 12 (AP).—Billy Hillenbrand, leading scorer of the Baltimore Colts in their All-America Football Conference debut last season, came to terms today for the 1948 season.

Hillenbrand, an elusive runner and star pass receiver, scored 60 points last season. He did his college playing for Indiana and broke into the pro game with the Chicago Rockets.

Hillenbrand is the second member of the last year's team to return. Frankie Sinkwich, the former Georgia All-America, previously had signed.

The Colts brought their roster up to nine with a new back, Frank (Pop) Messoline, captain and fullback of last year's University of Scranton. The 207-pounder was a high school star at Greenport, Long Island.

Swiss Skater Leads Button

Davos, Switzerland, Feb. 12 (U.P.).—Hans Gerschwiler of Switzerland, 26-year-old defending champion, took a small lead over Dick Button of the United States today in the compulsory portion of the world's figure skating championships. Button was expected to come from behind in his specialty, free-skating, tomorrow to win the crown.

Gerschwiler, who finished second to Buttton in the European and Olympic championships earlier this winter, today scored 1149.3 points on his six compulsory figures to Button's 1145.4.

Docusen Picked Over Burton

New York, Feb. 12 (U.P.).—Classy Bernard Docusen of New Orleans was favored at 8-5 today to beat Gene Burton of New York in their 10-round bout between welterweight contenders at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. The winner may get a shot at Ray (Sugar) Robinson's welter crown.

Because of his speed and skill, Docusen was favored despite the fact that Burton won a disputed decision over him at Los Angeles last December 22. A crowd of 13,000 and a gate of $55,000 were expected.

He Flunks Out

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 12 (AP).—Walter (Ox) Osterkorn, regular University of Illinois basketball center, today was declared scholastically ineligible for the remainder of the season.

Osterkorn failed one subject during the recent semester examinations and, under a new Big Nine rule, was ruled ineligible. The 6-foot 4-inch Osterkorn, former Chicago Amundsen high school star, had scored 57 points in nine conference games.

4910 Miles to Bowl

Milwaukee, Feb. 12 (AP).—A Swedish bowling team will travel 4910 miles to compete in the American Bowling Congress championships in Detroit May 5.

Elmer H. Baumgarten, ABC executive secretary, announced acceptance today of the entry of the AIK team of Stockholm, captained by Hans Berger, president of the Bowling Association of Sweden.

Must Like Lacrosse

Chestertown, Md., Feb. 12 (AP). Washington College students are so anxious to play lacrosse they'll pay their own expenses to field a team next spring.

Calling themselves the Washington College Lacrosse Club, the shore students will play eight games. They will be coached by a professor, Dr. Charles B. Clark.

Edwards in Fold

Cleveland, Feb. 12 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians today announced the signing of Outfielder Hank Edwards of Norfolk, Ohio, thirty-first player to enter the 1948 wigwam.

Edwards was sidelined for several weeks last year with a spring training shoulder injury. He said his right arm "feels fine" when he started preseason gym workouts here.

Hank hit 15 homers, but slumped to .260 in batting last year after clubbing .301 in 1946. However, he was the Tribe's best fielding gardener with a .900 average. He received an increase over his 1947 salary.

A 300-Foot Ski Jump

Iron Mountain, Mich., Feb. 12 (AP).—The first 300-foot leap in American ski-jumping history may be achieved on the improved Pine Mountain ski slide in the double classic meet on February 28-29.

Michigan jumpers consistently leaped 280 feet and kept standing in practice soars today, while Jack Paquette, Kingsford, Mich., Class B rider, sailed 295 and 287 feet, but fell on both attempts. He was not injured.

Giants Sell Lott

New York, Feb. 12 (U.P.).—The New York Giants today sold Pitcher Clarence (Hooks) Lott to the Jersey City club of the International League.

Obtained from the Browns in mid-season last year, Lott whipped the Chicago Cubs in his first National League start. A right-hander, he won three games and lost nine for the Giants.

Short Shot Is Big Shot In Big 9 Race

Chicago, Feb. 12 (AP).—As far as team success is concerned, a good little man is more than holding his own against a good big man in the Big Nine basketball race.

The reason Iowa's Hawkeyes are tied with Wisconsin for first in the team scramble is because Murray Wier, a 150-pounder who stand 5 feet, 9 inches, peppers in points almost as profusely as 6-foot, 9 inch Jim McIntyre of Minnesota, the league's best scorer.

McIntyre has avareged 24 points in seven conference games against 22.4 by Wier in eight games, but Minnesota's Gophers are limping along in sixth place with a 3-4 record.

Both Wier and McIntyre are their schools' only sharpshooters among the conference's top 26 scorers, excepting Center Len Metcalf of Iowa, who ranked ninth with a 12.7 average before his recent ineligibility.

D. C. Fighter Faces Terps' Quattrocchi

Tomorrow night marks a homecoming for Clemson's Dave Coakley and all he has to do to make it triumphant is to beat Maryland's Andy Quattrocchi.

The Clemson boxers meet Maryland at College Park. Coakley, a native Washingtonian, is being called upon to face one of the Terps' best.

Over a two-year period, hard-hitting 130-pound Quattrocchi has knocked out 9 of 11 college opponents.

Coakley, at 18, is the youngest of the four athletes who live at 206 11th st. sw. His twin brothers, George and Francis, formerly played baseball at Clemson and another brother, John, recently signed to pitch for a St. Louis Browns' farm team.

In 1946, Dave defeated Paul Oliver for the 126-pound novice championship of The Washington Post-AAU tournament. Two years before, he won over Johnny Arduini and Clyde Lawrence when he fought as a 112-pounder in the Golden Glove tournament.

Coakley, a freshman at Clemson, is a rather experienced novice at that. He's always been interested only in boxing and has been scrapping since the tender age of 6 when he was a member of the Washington Boys' Club.

400 to Attend D. C. Electric Trade Parley

By S. Oliver Goodman

More than 400 leaders in Washington's electrical industry will gather Monday night at the Mayflower to eye the future and install new officers.

Whitwell

Principal speakers will be George E. Whitwell, vice president of Philadelphia Electric Co. and president of the Quaker City Chamber of Commerce, and B. M. McKelway, editor of the Evening Star. Whitwell will speak on "The Postwar Electrical Period is Here," and McKelway's topic will be "Looking Ahead in Washington."

Occasion will be the fourteenth annual dinner meeting of the Electric Institute of Washington. Norman H. Barnes, sales manager of Potomac Electric Power Co., will preside at the session, at which the following new institute officers will be inducted:

J. A. Mitzelfelt, president; H. C Lease, vice president; Harold Soll secretary, and Fred A. Leser treasurer.

The institute, which was founded in 1934 when Pepco retired from the merchandising field, is composed of 226 Washington firms such as distributors, retailers, electrical contractors, manufacturers and Pepco. It is primarily a trade-promotion organization to educate the public on the better use of electrical appliances, equipment and services. A nonprofit group it is headed by William G. Hills as full-time managing director. Main project at present is its display of appliances of various makes in lobby of Pepco Building.

MARKET HOLIDAY: Major security and commodity markets in United States were closed yesterday in observance of Lincoln's birthday. However, Washington banks and other financial institutions were open as usual.

ODD LOTS: The Washington Stock Exchange yesterday reported that total sales in 1947 aggregated 44,378 shares and $250,000 in bonds . . . Automotive News reported that this week's output totaled 52,839 passenger cars and 22,468 trucks, compared with previous week's 59,365 cars and 22,733 trucks . . . Biggest third-class mail shipment in railroad history is mailing by Procter & Gamble of 11 million samples of a new shampoo out of postoffice at Nevada, Iowa . . . American Rolling Mill Co. announced plans for a 30-million-dollar bond issue to finance modernization and expansion . . . A large theater chain is closing a deal to show a short movie advertising a tobacco company's wares. The advertiser will be charged a cent per moviegoer.

AUTO SHOW UNLIKELY: Chances are very slim that Washington dealers will revive the annual auto show this year. The general feeling is that the sole purpose of a display would be to stimulate buying interest and, with the present supply of new cars still far under demand, it would be unwise to hold a show. Meanwhile, the Washington Automotive Trade Association reported yesterday that sales of new passenger and commercial vehicles in January totaled 2346 here, against 1888 in the same 1947 month.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Martin R. West has been reelected president of Interstate Building Association and all other officers and directors were renamed . . . Warren T. White, public relations director of Seaboard Air Line Railway, will address the Traffic Club of Washington at the forty-first annual dinner February 18 in the Mayflower . . . Fulton Lewis, jr., of Washington will speak at the thirtieth annual convention February 24 of the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers in Chicago . . . Donald A. Duff, formerly associated with Capital Airlines and other air carriers, has been named board chairman of Challenger Airlines of Salt Lake City . . . Franklin H. Kissner has been appointed vice president in charge of finance and Oliver May treasurer of Textron, Inc.

NEW COURSES: Washington Chapter of American Savings and Loan Institute has added two new subjects to the courses offered this semester which started this week. President Joseph P. Burke, jr., said 'Law of Negotiable Instruments' will be taught by Wilbur N. Baughman, and 'Office Procedure and Customer Relations' will be handled by William E. Poulton. Membership in all classes is the highest ever recorded, Burke reported.

Rising Losses on Inventories Faced by Many Businesses

But along with the rest of the Nation they go right on eating up the food, wearing out the clothing, and digging into the fuel supplies.

And many a businessman, nurturing an incipient ulcer with worry over his inventories, hopes the rate of consumption won't be slowed down by a wait-and-see attitude while the public assesses the results of the break in commodity markets.

Inventory losses on paper have already been large for food processors. They have to buy up large stocks of wheat, say, and keep it on hand for a considerable time before it reaches its final destination on a grocery shelf in a package marked waffle mix.

Packers have to buy hogs about a month before cured bacon can reach the butcher. And a month ago hogs cost $29.45 a hundredweight and now $24.25, while bacon from the higher-priced hog has dropped 10 cents or more a pound in the last week.

Textile mill owners who bought cotton when it was higher wish they could have waited until this week. And the department store buyer wonders if the shirts he bought for his store won't look too expensive to his customers when they come shopping for Easter togs.

The merchants in the small towns worry about their inventories mildewing for lack of customers, if the farmer's income is cut much further by falling prices.

And there's another "inventory" that runs into the billions that's affected. United States Budget and Treasury officials are taking a second look in their crystal balls. They wonder whether the national income is going to be cut enough to cause a big drop in income tax receipts.

So now the taxpayer can worry, too. If total tax receipts drop, the United States Treasury won't have enough money to meet its expenditures, and Congress may not pass that income-tax-cut bill the taxpayer has been hoping for.

And in Baltimore there's an acute inventory crisis. The Maryland Department of Education has 21,000 pounds of prunes on hand and it has to serve them to the school children right away, whether they like them or not.

SEC, Kaiser In Conference On Stock Deal

By The Associated Press

Two officials of the Securities and Exchange Commission went to New York yesterday to talk to Henry J. Kaiser about the sudden withdrawal of two banking firms from a public offering of Kaiser-Frazer stock.

They are James A. Trenor, jr., director of the commission's trading and exchange division and Anthon H. Lund, assistant director.

Their division is making the SEC inquiry into the withdrawal of Otis & Co. of Cleveland, and First California Co. of San Francisco, from a public issue of 900,000 shares of common stock of Kaiser-Frazer.

"Who stood to benefit through the withdrawal?"

Information now in the hands of the commission throws no light on it, this official said.

Officials also disclosed the commission is seeking additional information on market purchases of the company's stock February 3 in preparation for the public offering.

One official said the commission will try to find out whether the company's support of the stock was "excessive." He declined to elaborate.

Kaiser-Frazer bought 186,200 shares of its common stock on the market that day at a cost of approximately $2,500,000.

School Closing Threatened by Lack of Water

Harpers Ferry, W. Va., Feb. 12 (Spl.).—A shortage of water here may force closing of the schools, according to Principal Eugene Ross.

Dr. S. G. Moore, health officer, said today that the town itself is virtually out of water, with sanitation facilities unable to function properly. He said the State Public Health Department was sending a man to look into the situation.

Many residents of the town, he said, had pumps of their own and were hauling water in buckets. The community's water comes from a spring that also supplies Bolivar, and pressure has been greatly reduced since the cold weather began, he stated.

Meanwhile, Dr. Henry P. McDonald, president of the Harper Ferry Water Co., which supplies the city, denied that the community was in a "dierful" condition. He said pipes into some homes may be frozen, but added "that is the fault of the householder, not the water company."

He said the town's source of water was low as a result of the small amount of rainfall in the fall, but declared he knew of no one who was out of water. Dr. McDonald said the "unfair" stories about the water supply were due to "an unfortunate local situation."

Ross said that the schools might be forced to close unless something is done to alleviate the situation. He explained that the schools had had a limited supply ever since the beginning of the fall term, but added that the condition had become worse since the first of January.

Dr. Moore has power to close the schools if conditions become too serious, he said.

2 Fugitive Youths Caught In Stolen Car

Two 16-year-old fugitives from the District Industrial Home School were arrested in Montgomery County yesterday in a stolen auto soon after they ransacked a Silver Spring, Md., home.

Police said the boys, who were being detained for unauthorized use of an automobile, escaped Wednesday night by sawing through iron bars with a hacksaw blade. Hitch-hiking to Arlington, they stole a Midget car in Cherrydale, police reported, and drove to Silver Spring, where they broke into the home of James F. Ervin, treasurer of the County Liquor Control Board.

Ervin told police the boys took articles which included a rifle and several knives. The loot, valued at $75, was recovered when police stopped the car after a lookout had been broadcast.

Corpl. Eugene Brown, Montgomery County juvenile officer, said the youths, both District residents, would be turned over to Washington authorities with the understanding that they would be returned to the Montgomery Juvenile Court.

Veteran's Baby Dies From Fall

Laurel, Md., Feb. 12 (Spl).—A year-old baby, son of a GI college student, died at his home in Oakcrest today of a hemorrhage resulting from a fall from his crib two weeks ago.

The child, James Harrison Knox, was pronounced dead in the office of a Laurel physician only a few minutes after he was found by his father, Philip H. Knox, lying in his crib in a semi-conscious condition. Knok told police the child fell from the crib two weeks ago and was taken to Prince Georges Hospital, where examination showed he apparently suffered no injuries.

Dr. James I. Boyd, Prince Georges County Medical Examiner, said the hemorrhage probably was caused by the earlier fall, and issued a certificate of accidental death.

The father is a student at Strayer's Business College in Washington.

Ancient Script Placed in Age of Moses

Baltimore, Feb. 12 (AP).—Deciphering of 3500-year-old inscriptions believed to be in the writing used by Moses was described today by Dr. William F. Albright, professor of Semitic languages at Johns Hopkins University.

He returned by plane this week from Egypt, where as a member of the University of California's African expedition he had studied the ancient writing. It is many centuries older, he reported, than any other script known in our ancestral alphabet.

"Although I have no way of proving it," Dr. Albright said, "there is no doubt in my mind that this was the script used by Moses."

The site of the study was an ancient turquoise mine. Translation of the script showed it had been worked by slave labor under Egyptian rule, he said. The mine is located in the lower Sinai Peninsula.

It was discovered in 1904, but not until the recent study was it shown the writings had been done by Canaanites and not Bedouins. Dr. Albright, the first to translate them completely, placed the date of the inscriptions at 1500 B. C., centuries before the Israelite exodus from Egypt.

He found the script on gravestones and vaults. It casts much new light on the birth of our alphabet, he said.

The Canaanite script passed through the hands of Phoenicians and Greeks. It was steadily refined and elaborated in the process.

The 28 characters he found, Dr. Albright declared, were for the most part traceable through later alphabets.

He said he hoped to form an expedition to excavate the mine itself later on.

Va. County Bill Puts 10% Top on Used Car Price

Richmond, Va., Feb. 12 (AP).—If House Bill 169 becomes law a used car could not be sold in Tazewell County for more than 10 per cent above its original price as a new car.

And an auto dealer could not add accessories to the car unless the purchaser specifically requested them in writing.

The House Roads Committee reported favorably on the bill today, causing one lawmaker to remark: "Dr. Witten had better get ready for an increase in Tazewell County population."

Dr. Jack W. Witten, patron of the bill, declared that nowadays "they give you the car and sell you the accessories." He emphasized "it's a purely local bill," adding that if it were not, "there would really be a howl."

The committee vote was 9 to 5 in favor of the measure, which applies only to counties between 41,300 and 41,900 in population and having an area between 1518 and 1529 square miles. That is the lawmakers' way of describing Tazewell County.

Postlude

Szigeti's Recital Wins High Praise

By Paul Hume

What a musician Joseph Szigeti is, and what a magnificent violinist!

His recital, with Joseph Levine giving sterling assistance from the piano, made last night one of Constitution Hall's memorable occasions. It was twice memorable: in what was played, and in the manner of playing. Washington heard for the first time the latest violin sonata of Sergei Prokofieff, who was only yesterday rebuked in his native land for writing "formalistic" music.

We heard also sonatas of Bach and Debussy, and shorter music from Schubert, Veracini, Paganini, Bartok and Hubay. The generous encores were of the same peerless metal as the main portion of the concert, including writings of Mompou, De Falla, Szymanowski and Kreisler.

Everything on the program was approached from the vantage of one who immerses himself in the finest music, and gives to it the most complete devotion of spirit, utilizing a technique which knows no problems.

The Prokofieff sonata turned out to be a work of unique beauty, stemming from the piano and violin sonatas of this versatile writer, but having a quality of newness he always infuses into his masterworks. Its harsh dissonances and broken lines constantly gave way to almost brazen lyricism of familiar tones, and Szigeti played it as if every subtlety was an open book to his illumned mind. We deeply appreciate Szigeti's giving us this fine opus.

His DeBussy sonata was revealing in the restraint which filled both piano and violin parts, as Levine enhanced the velvety piano line. And in the encores, as in the earlier groups of the evening the violinists's tone changed at will from a thing of crystal to one of veiled mysticism.

It happens that Szigeti is one of the artists whose great records we have known for years but whom we had not previously had the privilege of hearing in person. We will not willingly miss his future concerts here.

Frostbitten Farmer Too Ill for Surgery

Luray, Va., Feb. 12 (Spl.).—Jacob Deavers, aged Rileyville farmer who was forcibly removed from his mountain home yesterday, is still in too serious condition to undergo surgery for frozen feet, doctors said today.

Deavers resisted sheriff's efforts to remove him and his 65-year-old wife from their two-room house after neighbors reported that he was trying to starve Mrs. Deavers. Mrs. Deavers spent the night in the jail and today was removed to the home of her sister, Mrs. Jim Foster, here.

The couple was found without adequate food or clothing in the house and the sheriff was forced to bring Deavers to Luray handcuffed. Mrs. Deavers explained the $2773 which they had in a Luray bank was "for our old age."

Eve-of-Death Transfers Are Held Inhevitances

Baltimore, Feb. 12 (AP).—Funds transferred from either a husband or wife to a joint account in contemplation of death still are subject to the Maryland inheritance tax, Richard W. Case, assistant attorney general, disclosed today.

In an opinion printed in the Daily Record, Case said "the rule was early established in this State that the full value of a joint bank account held by husband and wife is subject to the inheritance tax if the account in question was established in contemplation of death."

Phone Hearing Asked

New Market, Va., Feb. 12 (Spl.). Stockholders of the Farmers Mutual Telephone System of Shenandoah County have petitioned the State Corporation Commission for a public hearing on proposed rate boosts. In their petition, 129 of the shareholders requested that the hearing and audit of the books be held in Woodstock on or before March 1.

Board Urges Repeal of Md. Jim Crow Law

Baltimore, Feb. 12 (AP).—A commission which has studied the Negro question in Maryland reported Governor Lane today the State is making "progress in the intelligent, sympathetic and thorough understanding of minority problems."

However, the report adds:

"The complete solution of the problem awaits the distant future."

The commission was appointed by former governor Herbert R. O'Conor in 1942 and was later established permanently by the General Assembly. Today's report was the first in five years.

As a starter, the group recommended the Mary.and "Jim Crow" law be repealed. It also suggested an all-Negro board be appointed for the Cheltenham School for Boys.

Have More Opportunities

The commission said it had found:

1. Evidences that Negroes now have more chances for gainful employment than formerly, but that they have lost some of their gains in industry and agriculture since the war;

2. That resistance against movement of Negroes into new areas to establish homes is "as strong as ever. There still seems to have been but little progress made with this toughest of Negroes' problems."

3. There is a need for "adequate facilities" for training of Negro doctors, and for medical treatment of Negroes;

4. That in 1946 and 1947 "the death rate for tuberculosis of the colored race was almost four times that of the white race, the rate for pneumonia more than twice that for the white; the rate for syphilis nearly 10 times that for the white."

Newspapers Sympathetic

5. That one of "the most tangible indications of interracial progress" is found in the "improved relationship existing between the police and the large sections of the large community," particularly in Baltimore City.

6. That Maryland newspapers on the whole are "extraordinarily sympathetic to the cause of intergroup understanding."

Throughout the report, mention was made of appointments of individual Negroes to State and municipal boards and probate agencies.

Freeze Halts Unloading Of Chrome Ore Cars

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 12 (AP). Frozen ore today prevented unloading of some 400 cars of chrome ore at stockpiles at Point Pleasant. The cars were reported jamming sidings between Letart and Point Pleasant. Another 120 cars of the ore, used as a hardening agent in steels, were reported enroute from Baltimore, Md.

WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1948

Mrs. Miles Shows How

You Can Serve Big Meals, Keep Food Budget Low By Careful Planning

By Lucia Brown

ONE HOMEMAKER who has managed to keep grocery bills low and the quality of her meals high during this winter of cloud-dwelling food prices is Mrs. Milton E. Miles of Kenwood.

During November, December and January the cost of food for her family of seven has ranged between $98 and $140 a month—$21.80 to $31 a week—despite considerable entertaining during the holiday season. Now that food prices are toppling, an even better record for February may be in the offing.

"She's just naturally a good cook," friends say in discussing the Miles big, delicious meals and small, attractive food bills. But Mrs. Miles says it isn't so. Good cooks are made, not born, she believes, and early training in home economics pays off in dollars and cents in the job of running a home.

The low cost of food for the Miles family can't be explained by featherweight appetites. The family group of seven is made up entirely of adults and teen-aged boys. Mrs. Miles' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jerman, live with her and her husband, who is a captain in the Navy. Then there are the three Miles boys—Bill, 18, Murray or "Boots," 16, and Charles, nicknamed "C-Going," 13—all of whom are athletically inclined and past masters at the art of packing food away.

Lack of finicky appetites does help a lot in keeping costs down, though, Mrs. Miles says. A Navy family, the Miles lived for a number of years in China and the Philippines, where the boys developed cosmopolitan tastes for food and now eat practically anything.

Buying in Quantity

Buying in large quantity and canning fruits when prices are low makes a lot of difference in food bills, too. When you have a family of seven, Mrs. Miles points out, you can buy apples by the bushel, oranges by the crate, flour by the 100 pounds, and cheese by the 5-pound brick with no fear of wasting any of it. She cans a great deal of fruit, and puts up jams, jellies and preserves.

"I buy every piece of up-to-date kitchen equipment I can afford, too," says Mrs. Miles.

The whole Miles family—including Pete and Paddles, a pair of 6-toed pet cats—love the kitchen. Such gadgets as a potato peeler, an electric food mixer, chopper and slicer, and an electric dish washer lure the boys into taking an interest in all sorts of kitchen jobs. A pressure cooker enables Mrs. Miles to cook inexpensive meats in delicious ways and other contrivances make it possible to cut down waste and use up every smidgin of food she buys.

Food Costs for Week

The cost of food last week for the Miles family was about $23.58, Mrs. Miles estimates. This was one of this winter's lower weekly food budgets. It provided food for six of the family for a week, and for Bill, who is now in the Navy and stationed at Bainbridge, Md., on the weekend. Several members of the family including the two younger boys, who attend St. Alban's School, ate lunches away from home, but there were guests at various meals during the week which helped make up for this.

Mrs. Miles, a home economic graduate from Cornell and Columbia and nutrition chairman for the District Red Cross, guarantees that a well-balanced diet for a family such as hers for a week can be provided from the market list in the box at the right.

Mrs. Miles' Menus

The menus to follow show what Mrs. Miles served from Friday to Friday and tell a little about how it was prepared. Weekday luncheon menus are not given—although food for them is included on the market list—because they were quite simple, generally consisting of soup and crackers, or leftovers, or perhaps a sandwich and milk.

FRIDAY

Breakfast

Orange Juice — Oatmeal
Eggs — Toast
Coffee — Milk

Dinner

Shrimp Creole
Rice — Peas
Boiled Grapefruit with Honey and Sherry

For the shrimp Mrs. Miles used a recipe for Arnaud's Shrimp Creole from a New Orleans cookbook. Ingredients are as follows:

1 chopped onion
2½ pounds cooked shrimp
1 cup tomato paste
3 cups liquid in which shrimp was cooked

Mrs. Miles always buys fresh green shrimp and shells them before cooking. It's easier then, she says, to get the shells off and to pull the black vein out all in one piece. After shelling the shrimp she simmered them for 5 minutes in 3 or 4 cupfuls of water, to which ½ lemon, 1 bayleaf, and 2 teaspoons of salt were added. After cooking she let them cool in the liquid.

In making the creole, she browned the flour in the salad oil, then added the chopped onion and the shrimp. The tomato paste (which she canned last summer) went in next. This simmered together for about 15 minutes, or until all the "gravy" adhered to the shrimp. Three cups of the shrimp liquid were then added, a cup at a time. Each was allowed to hit a boil before another cup was added.

The creole shrimp was served on rice, prepared as they cook it in China so that every grain stands apart. Since Mrs. Miles wanted to have rice left over for another dish next day, she used 1½ cups of rice and 6¾ cups of water.

SATURDAY

Breakfast

Orange Juice
Fried Corn Meal Mush
Brown Sugar or Homemade Syrup
Coffee — Milk

Lunch

Fried Rice With Soya Sauce
Raw Carrot Sticks
Milk

Dinner

Veal Scallopini
Noodles
Seven-Minute Cabbage With Caraway Seed
Junket, With Jelly Garnish
Tea — Milk

The luncheon dish of fried rice

Harris & Ewing

"HOW about a little bigger helping of that?" grins "Boots" Miles, hungry after an afternoon of practice for his school's wrestling team. His mother, Mrs. Milton E. Miles, always remembers to include extra amounts of food for her tall teen-age sons in her weekly market lists, sees that their plates are heaped high at mealtime

Harris & Ewing

"C-Going," youngest son of Captain and Mrs. Miles, gets a big kick out of operating the potato peeler in the kitchen and incidentally doing his bit in helping to feed the family. He and his brother, "Boots," are both Washington Post carrier boys which, together with school activities and various hobbies, helps bring them to the table with man-sized appetites every meal

Mary Haworth's Mail

On Honeymoon 15 Years Ago, Man Rapped Wife About Her Background, Then Sulked for Week After She Flared Up; Same Spat Is Still On

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My mother died when I was in my first year of high school and it was necessary for me to drop out of school to keep house for my father and the younger children.

That was a good many years ago and now I have been married for 15 years. My husband is kind and generous and we are very much in love. He is the youngest of five children, all college graduates and all married to college graduates, except him.

All our quarrels have the same beginning. We went to Europe on our honeymoon and when we were dressing for dinner the last night on shipboard I said how wonderful it all was and how happy I was. He said it must be a great treat for the daughter of a cop, and that I must forget my background.

Lost His Tongue Three Weeks Ago

I HAD the best father in the world and I told him so; also I lost my temper and said some nasty things about his family. He sulked for a week and when I apologized he lectured me and treated me as if I were a servant, as he usually does if we clash.

There have been about five or six such spats and finally I decided to try to control my temper and take what he says, in order not to be humiliated afterward. The last time it happened I didn't argue; but when he said things I couldn't stand, I left the room and went to bed. That was three weeks ago and he hasn't spoken to me since.

He comes in for dinner and we eat in silence, because when I talk he doesn't answer. Several nights he didn't come home for dinner, which is served at 7; but came in about 8:30 and went to bed. It is getting on my nerves, having two meals a day in silence with him, or talking to myself.

I really have nothing to apologize for, unless I say I was rude in leaving the room when he was talking; and I would appreciate your advice on what to do. C. S.

Man's Down On Himself

DEAR C. S.: A person who demeans and vilifies others, scorning them as inferior for this or that reason, is thereby projecting (or proclaiming) an embittered sense of his own inferiority to standards he adulates. So with your husband in relation to you.

If he were approximately mature emotionally, were at peace with himself, had basic self-esteem, etc., he would sensibly discern, cordially extol and quietly rejoice in the treasure of your companionable qualities and solid virtues, such as they are, and, of course, they exist, or you couldn't have stayed together in a spirit of love through 15 years of his illogical tantrums.

His ideals of worth are all worldly and snobbish, it seems, to judge by his shockingly rude outburst on the honeymoon; and his hateful attack on your self respect—which he started then and has kept up since—signifies morbid dissatisfaction with his life-showing.

Resents Wife's Self Respect

DOUBTLESS he married you for love, but even so, uneasily felt that he did himself a bad turn, got cheated or hooked, in losing his head to a girl whose background couldn't, per se, advance him socially. The less a man thinks of himself at heart, the more he wants—if ambitious at all—to prop himself up and deck himself out with social panoply of "consequential" associates and material trappings.

Your self respect is a form of strength, a wellspring of your capacity to be blithe and life-lov-

'Mariquita From Madrid' At Home at Cuban Embassy

By Marie McNair

HAVE YOU MET Mariquita Perez who has come to the Cuban Embassy to live?

Blonde and blue-eyed, she was born in Spain, but came to Washington by way of Havana, where she's all the rage.

Guessed it yet? Well, Senorita Perez is a walking doll who belongs to little Elisa, daughter of the Ambassador and Senora de Belt. And the two are the very best friends.

Marquita's birth in Madrid has created a flourishing industry, for her wardrobe—and she has an extensive one—is duplicated in every detail for her live little mothers. Everything is handmade, exquisitely embroidered and trimmed with the finest of materials.

When a ski suit arrived at the embassy recently, marked for Mariquita, from Elisa's doting grandmother in Havana, Elisa promptly demanded to know of her mother when she would get her own ski costume.

In Madrid the shops for jeunes filles and Mariquita are located side by side, with well-stocked shelves of frocks and hats for each. They say there's even a hairdresser in Mariquita's shop employed to keep her golden locks in shape.

When the boat bringing a new shipment of clothes arrives in Havana, Mariquita fans are at the store when the doors open the next day.

They have tried to give Mariquita a brother. His name is Juanine. "But he has no soul," Elisa Belt's grandmother writes "and nobody likes him."

TOWN TOPICS

Mme. Garin, wife of Vasco Garin, who was Counselor of the Portuguese Embassy here and now has the same job in Ottawa, is expected to blow into town on Monday and will be staying with Mrs. John Paterson at her new house on 34th st. Before she leaves for Canada she'll spend a few days with the Counselor of the Portuguese Embassy and Senora de Rocheta, whom she knew before they came to Washington a couple of years ago.

Evelyn Paterson has planned a cocktail party to welcome her vivacious visitor on Monday, and on Februrary 22 Mr. and Mrs. Lee Murphy will give a supper party for her.

Lady Reading Honored at Press Club Tea

Reminiscences ran riot at the Women's National Press Club's tea yesterday honoring the Marchioness of Reading.

Mrs. J. L. Blair Buck, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, past president of the federation, and Mrs. Martin Vogel were among those recalling events and experiences shared with Lady Reading during visits to England. Former Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins was another long-time friend of Lady Reading's present at the informal event held at the Washington Club.

Miss Ruth Cowan, club president, dispensed with a receiving line, and with the honor guest strolled from group to group.

Mrs. Turck Feted At Luncheon, Tea

MRS. FENTON TURCK, who is visiting Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, was entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Mayflower by Mrs. Fred Britten, and later in the afternoon Mrs. Frank Morrow had Mrs. Turck and Mrs. Dougherty and a few of Mrs. Turck's old friends for tea in the Palladian Room of the Shoreham.

Mrs. George Barnett was among Mrs. Britten's guests.

Reilly Not Only Protected FDR From Lugers, Dirks, But From a Sultan's Harem

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

"REILLY of the White House" is one of the speakers scheduled next Tuesday for The Washington Post's Book and Author Luncheon. He's the Secret Service guy who guarded President Roosevelt during the four hair-raising war years, and has penned a most informative account of same.

REILLY

We tried to lure Mike into writing a column. He resisted our blandishments firmly but agreed to drop around, give us some inside dope on his pet subject—assassination!

First, just a few words about Reilly, who's a handsome hunk of Irish from Anaconda, Mont. Smart with the pigskin, he collected an athletic scholarship at Denver's Regis College, turned up at George Washington's Law School but left before snagging a degree.

He took to investigating frauds for the Farm Credit Administration; was transferred to Interior where he smelled out oil scandals, shifted to the Secret Service in 1935, four months later was assigned to the White House where he stayed put until FDR's death, when Reilly joined the Navy. He's a jiu-jitsu expert, a crack pistol shot, a student of plain, fancy and middling assassination.

A Leaf From Huey Long

GUARDING a President, says Reilly, is 95 per cent advance preparation, 5 per cent being prepared for the unexpected. Once in the White House he went at his job scientifically. He had the smartest agents toil in the Congressional Library, prepare a monograph on assassinations of all prominent people since Lincoln. Reilly drew up charts showing how the President must be protected in crowds, on informal rides.

He correlated a lot from football. The President, for instance, is the ball-carrier; the Secret Service men's task is to keep any possible tackler at a safe distance. He learned that an attempted assassination of President-elect Jackson paralleled Huey Long's. The killers stepped from behind pillars; Long's bodyguards, instead of surrounding him, were grouped behind.

President Garfield was shot in the back in the crowded 6th st. railroad station. President McKinley's assailant concealed a pistol in a bandaged hand. Yugoslavia's King Alexander and France's Louis Barthou were killed because they were guarded by mounted police only. So President Roosevelt was never exposed to uncontrollable crowds, no one could approach with hands in pockets or bandage wrapped. Motorcycle police were not counted as adequate protection.

Protecting a Playgoer

LINCOLN'S assassination was equally preventable. Booth was a known Lincoln hater. Lincoln's guard was either in the wings or down the alley for a drink. When President Roosevelt went to the theater, the building first was given a microscopic inspection, then the audience was studded with agents. As an added precaution, all Secret Service men were sent to see the show a day previously. If they had seen the play, reasoned Reilly, they would keep their eyes on the President, never let them wander toward the stage.

A Geiger counter became standard Secret Service equipment. When the President visited away from the White House, his bedroom was checked with the instrument. To avoid time bombs, no package was ever delivered to the White House. They were sent to a garage for X-ray.

Once a peculiar package arrived, ostensibly from the British Embassy. X-ray showed dark masses, bits of wire. It was carried to the country, a rope was tied around it and flung over a branch, then, with agents safe in a foxhole, it was dropped to the ground. Nothing happened except a dull smashing sound. Poking in the mess, the Secret Service men found broken phonograph records, a complete set of Churchill's speeches sent by the Prime Minister to his pal, the President!

Sacred Cow Spotters

FLYING to the Casablanca, Tehran, Yalta conferences were terrific headaches to Reilly, who always preceded the President. Arriving a few days before the Yalta conference, a plane following Reilly's was hit by an overenthusiastic Soviet gunner. Terrified that the Sacred Cow might become a target, Reilly used all his diplomatic finesse, finally persuaded the Soviet commander to permit Gen. Ira Eaker to place a noncommissioned American airman in each gun emplacement, just in case identifying the President's plane proved puzzling to our Slavic allies.

Everyone wondered why President Roosevelt moved from our embassy to Stalin's headquarters during the Tehran Conference. Reilly explains that previous to Mr. Roosevelt's arrival no less than 32 Nazi parachutists were seized in the neighborhood, and six were apprehended afterward. The British and Soviet Embassies were cheek-to-jowl, ours some distance away. While a cavalcade of cars, supposedly including Roosevelt's paraded down the main street, Reilly spirited the President down a back alley.

Funniest experience was at Casablanca, where the hotel requisitioned for presidential use was enclaved with barbed wire. The Sultan of Morocco's harem was a hair's-breadth away, and for security reasons should have been in the inclosure. But rather than risk a diplomatic catastrophe, Reilly zigzagged the wire, separated Roosevelt from scores of luscious Oriental beauties!

It certainly was a dog's life for "Reilly of the White House!"

Cutting the Food Budget

is a Chinese one that can be made with almost any meat and any vegetable, plus rice, chopped onion, and egg, Mrs. Miles says.

"One or two leftover sausages, a bit of chicken, even liverwurst can be used," she says. "I cut it in slivers the way the Chinese do. In making this dish I first brown chopped onion in a little fat in a large skillet. Then leftover rice is added and browned a bit. The meat and leftover vegetables (a few green beans and a little celery, for instance) go in next. Then I make a little 'well' in the middle of the mixture, pushing back the rice to the sides of the pan, and pour in two lightly beaten eggs. These I scramble without disturbing the rice mixture. When they are done I add the whole thing together and serve it immediately with soya sauce."

The 7-minute cabbage was cooked without water and seasoned with caraway seed. Here's how to prepare it: Chop cabbage fine. Heat a sprinkling of caraway seed in a heavy saucepan with margarine or drippings, then put in cabbage. Cook, uncovered, with two or three stirrings, over a low heat about 7 minutes. This method brings it to the table green in color and delicious and fresh in flavor.

In making the dessert, junket tablets were used. Just before serving, each bowl of vanilla junket was centered with a spoonful of homemade jelly.

SUNDAY

Breakfast

Dinner

Cherry Pie

Supper
Rolled Oat Spice Drops
Hot Cocoa

Mrs. Miles makes the syrup served with the waffles as follows: 2 cups water, 4 cups sugar, 1 cup corn syrup, and 1½ teaspoons maple flavoring.

The succotash for dinner she made with frozen lima beans and canned whole kernel corn. The result is that the succotash tastes very much like fresh vegetables.

While dinner was cooking, Mrs. Miles baked the oatmeal spice drop cookies for supper and also for the cookie jar, which she keeps constantly filled.

MONDAY

Breakfast
Orange Juice
Cooked Whole Wheat Cereal
Creamed Codfish
Toast
Coffee Milk

Dinner
Pork Chops Baked in Sour Cream
Canned Tomatoes
Baked Potatoes
Slaw
Peach Upside Down Cake
Tea Milk

Mrs. Miles uses evaporated milk and vinegar in baking the chops instead of the sour cream.

The potatoes were baked in the oven at the same time as the chops. (They're less likely to shrink when baked at this moderate heat than in a very hot oven, Mrs. Miles points out.) Extra potatoes were baked at the same time for use in meat pie next day. These were taken from the oven before they were entirely done so that they wouldn't be too mealy for use in the pie.

TUESDAY

Breakfast
Orange Juice
Oatmeal
Toast Egg
Coffee Milk

Dinner
Individual Veal Pies
Cauliflower
Peach and Cherry Gelatin with Whipped Cream
Tea Milk

The veal pie was made with the remainder of the pastry left from Sunday's cherry pie, the potatoes left over from Monday night, fresh veal, carrots and onions. Stock from the veal was saved to use in soup later.

The leaves on the outside of the cauliflower she cooked along with the rest of the head. Next day, she put them through a seive and used them in making soup for lunch.

The gelatin was made with cherry juice left over from the can of cherries used in the pie and the half a can of peaches left from making Monday's upside down cake.

Top milk was whipped to use on the gelatin.

WEDNESDAY

Breakfast
Orange Juice
Whole Wheat Cereal
Eggs Toast
Coffee Milk

Dinner
Scalloped Potatoes and Sausage
Spinach
Mince Meat Brownies
Tea Milk

The scalloped potatoes were prepared in the usual way in a casserole, then covered with sausage meat patties just before being put in the oven. Baked in a moderate oven, the flavor of the sausage goes all through the potatoes and makes a delicious dish.

The mince meat brownies were made by the following recipe with dried mince meat, which is considerably cheaper than the canned kind:

Mince Meat Brownies

1 cup brown sugar
1 egg (or 2 tablespoons of dried egg, mixed with 2 tablespoons water)
1 cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ package dried mince meat

Mix ingredients in the order listed. Bake in square, greased pan at 350 degrees F. for 25 minutes.

THURSDAY

Breakfast
Orange Juice
Oatmeal
Eggs Toast
Coffee Milk

Dinner
Split Pea Soup
Hot Popovers
Apples Baked With Mince Meat and Ginger
Tea Milk

The split pea soup was made with the jellied stock in which the veal for pies was cooked on Tuesday. The rest of the package of mince meat opened on Wednesday was sprinkled over home-canned apples and a little ginger syrup (from a jar of preserved pears) was also poured over them before they were baked.

Your Questions on Homemaking

Can you help me plan a kitchen shower I want to give a friend? I would like some ideas on games, decorations, and how to present the gifts to her. We have used all the games in the two books, "Bridal Shower Games" and "Bridal Shower Fun," since there have been a number of showers around this section recently. J. A. W.

I haven't the two books you mentioned at hand, so am not sure whether there's a party along the following lines described in them. Here is one idea for a party of this type, as well as a few general suggestions.

First, learn if you can the color scheme your shower honoree will follow in decorating her kitchen. You can then use these colors in the details of your party and also pass the information along to those buying gifts.

From a double sheet of notepaper (in one of the colors chosen by the bride), cut out invitations in the shape of coffee pots—either the old-fashioned kind, a modern drip coffee pot, or a percolator. Be sure that the handle comes at the folded edge of the paper so as to make a hinge. Use other colors chosen by the bride in writing out the invitation or decorating it. On the outside fold, you might write the words "Kitchen Shower." On the inside, write the invitation in the usual way.

Decorate living room and dining room with brass or wooden trays or brightly colored vegetables and fruits—carrots, squash, celery, apples, etc.—in keeping with the kitchen idea. Ask your prospective guests to deliver their gifts unwrapped to you a day or so before the party, if this is possible. Wrap each gift carefully in the package. For the hostess' gift to the honoree, you might use a wire dish drainer. All the gifts could be packed into this and covered well with an assortment of paper plates, cups and saucers. If paper plates are lined around the sides of the drainer, the paper cups and saucers may be stuck all over the assembled packages with small pieces of colorless, gummed tape, giving the effect of a full drainer of dishes.

As for entertainment, one appropriate contest would be a potato-carving match. Provide each person with a small Irish potato, about the size of a golf ball, and an ordinary teaspoon. The object is to carve a kitchen utensil of some kind. The most original and best carving should receive the prize. An elaborately wrapped measuring cup or can opener would be a good prize.

Another contest you might have would be to have guests guess the identity by smelling, or simply by looking, at six different spices. Place a small quantity (say, two teaspoonsful) of each spice in a small separate dish. Use small cards or pieces of paper to number the containers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6, placing the cards in the center of each little dish. Be sure to keep an accurate record as to which number corresponds to each spice. Pass the dishes among your guests so that they may guess the kind of spice in each and then write the name opposite the proper number on a card given them. A small prize can be given the person with the most accurate list.

Finish the games with one in which the hostess is blindfolded, and choose this opportunity to set before her the drainerful of gifts.

Can you tell me how I might go about having my lovely lace tablecloth stretched to its original size? I washed it once and, although I did the utmost blocking and stretching, it seems considerably shrunk. H. P. M.

Look in the yellow pages of the telephone book under "Laundries" for a company doing custom or hand work. I am told that such companies are equipped to put your tablecloth on stretchers and do a very good job of restoring it to its original size and shape. One such firm which does a lot of this work can be reached by calling Woodley 7800.

If you have curtain stretchers which are large enough, the same job can be done at home. Set the stretchers to the original size of the cloth, then when the cloth is washed and thoroughly rinsed, attach it to the pins of the stretchers. Fasten all four corners first, then the center of each side, then work each way until it is fastened all around.

Is orange juice squeezed the evening before just as nutritious the next morning as orange juice squeezed just before drinking? I have four young children, and am skeptical about getting the juice ready the night before, but it would certainly save time in the morning to have it ready. M. H. B.

The acid in orange juice tends to protect its ascorbic acid (vitamin C) content during storage. Because of this, orange juice for breakfast can be prepared the night before without appreciable loss. Place it in a glass container, cover tightly and store in the refrigerator.

Since beads are not worn so much now, how can I use a number of strands that have accumulated through the years? I have all colors, shapes and sizes. Many are imitation pearls? L. S. A.

Perhaps some of the smaller beads are the type which could be used for decorating blouses and dresses. Also, lovely beaded evening purses could be made of the smaller imitation pearls. Directions for making the beaded purses can be bought at the needlework department in most department stores. Patterns for sewing beaded designs onto dresses, blouses and hats can be purchased at the pattern counters of department stores. The larger beads would give hours of entertainment to shut-in children for stringing. If there are no such children among your acquaintances, why don't you put the beads in appropriate boxes, a good assortment in each, add large-eyed needles and heavy thread and take or send them to the wards at Children's Hospital?

ing, a crux of equilibrium, that is foreign to his make-up, and it draws his spleen like a magnet when he is most upset by his nagging undertow of self-condemnation.

He projects, or tries to unload, his inferiority feelings on you, tries to involve you in a flagellating process; and you certainly don't owe him any apology for vigorously disputing such injustice or walking out on the spiel after 15 years of it.

The best insulation against his present pouting is simply to know it for what it is, a neurotic display of infantilism, a derivative of his rearing and not your fault. If he can't—or won't—curb or cure it, that's unfortunate. But the fact that he throws it around doesn't make him a candidate for kid-glove treatment. Why not show him this discussion and say, "Look baby, what's our next move? Do we speak or forever hold our peace?" M. H.

La Tausca Art To Be Shown

The Director of the National Gallery of Art and Mrs. David E. Finley and Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Phillips are among the prominent art lovers who have been invited for the cocktail party and preview of the paintings in the third annual La Tausca Art Competition at the United Nations Club tomorrow from 5 to 7.

Others who are expected to attend are Hudson Walker of New York, director of the American Federation of Arts; Mrs. Adelyn Breeskin, director of the Baltimore Museum of Art; Thomas Colt, jr., director of the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts in Richmond, and Mrs. Colt; John Alexander Pope, associate director of the Freer Gallery; Thomas Parker of New York, director of the American Federation of Arts, and Mrs. Parker.

Because of limited space at the club only 30 of the paintings will be on exhibition tomorrow. These will include the prize-winners. The second section will be shown from February 27 through March 7.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

We Grow a Different Breed of Cab Drivers Here

It was wet and nasty, and the residue of ice made the street doubly treacherous.

The big Buick with the New York tags stopped for a light and a taxi skidded to a stop behind it, hitting its rear bumper a pretty good lick.

Both drivers got out, and saw that the damage was minor. The hacker spoke up promptly:

"It was my fault, mister. I guess I must have been thinking of something besides my driving. I'll pay for your damages."

The New Yorker groped for words and finally managed to say:

"No, this one's on me. It's worth it. After living in New York for 15 years it's a real treat to meet a civilized cab driver again."

PESSIMISTS

When we took a flyer
And prices went higher
They feared for the Nation
And shouted "inflation."

Now hear them all bumbling
As prices go tumbling.
They make an impression
By shouting "depression."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Three kittens, a little more than half-grown." (20 E. Patton rd., Indian Head, Md.; phone 2111, extension 97).

MISCELLANY

Mrs. Adele W. Watkins of Ashton, Md., recently donated her fifteenth pint of blood to the Red Cross . . . The Children's Theater of Washington is presenting the three-act ballet "Cinderella" at 8:15 tonight, 2:30 tomorrow afternoon and 2:30 next Saturday afternoon (Roosevelt High School; tickets at Snow's Concert Bureau) . . . In answer to several inquiries: The "Em Tee" who recently contributed that "empty-headed jingle" is Margaret Thompson of 243 N. Barton st., Arlington, Va. . . . Mrs. Norma M. Turner of 2106 Maryland ave. ne. got her identification card back before she realized that she had lost it. The finder was good old Anon, who writes so many letters to the editor . . . The District Court's Charles R. Johnson sympathizes with the bachelor who told us about his apartment-hunting troubles the other day, and suggests that we form an organization to be known as "SFEELL-ABWDWGMY." (That stands for: Society for Expeditious Encouragement of Landlords Letting Apartments to Bachelors Who Don't Wanna Get Married Yet).

Let the single fellows promote that one. I like my happy home too much . . . Wonder if any of Washington's "informed sources" are sufficiently well informed to tell us the name of the Walking Man. I'm sure he's not in the Federal Government — Klutz would have had it in his column by now.

PUTTING HIM TO THE TEST

"Now that Walter Haight is your Outdoors Editor," writes W. M. O'C., "you can put the big lug to good use. Send him outdoors in skating season so that he can be the first one on the ice."

Presumably if the ice is not thick enough, Walter will quickly become the Swimming Editor.

RUSSIAN BEAR

The radio highlights in a recent edition of The Washington Post included Moussorgsky's "Night on a Bare Mountain."

Lois White of Leonardtown, Md., asks: "Shouldn't it be 'Night on Bald Mountain' instead?"

For an authoritative answer, I went to our Paul Chandler Hume. He says he'll settle for either "bare" or "bald," but "bald" is more common.

The reason for this seeming indecision among the experts is that the title was originally written in Russian, and the translators can't agree on whether the Russian word compares more closely to our "bare" or our "bald." Says Hume:

"Either word will do, just so you don't call it 'Bear' mountain."

QUESTION OF THE HOUR

After listening to several dozen learned radio commentators discussing the pros and cons of rationing, I've made up my mind about the need for controls.

But their varied pronunciations has given rise to a new doubt in my mind:

That faces the Nation?

CONGRATULATIONS, PETE

Another former newsman has decided that he'd rather be rich than happy.

The Rollin P. Dickerson who was listed among the successful bar examination candidates Tuesday is the same Pete Dickerson who was formerly a WINX reporter and newscaster.

I can just picture his first court trial. The guy he's defending on a murder rap will take the stand, and Pete will turn dramatically to the jury and say:

"Ladies and gentlemen, we're about to bring you the real behind-the-scenes story of this murder. But first—a word from my sponsor."

SUGGESTION

Do not slip on the ice, hit your finger with a hammer, drop your eyeglasses or catch your pants on a nail today.

Whenever people do these things on other days, they say: "Oh, darn the luck."

But when they do them on Friday the 13th, they say: "Oh, darn the luck. You might know this would happen on Friday the 13th."

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—Among my souvenirs:

A JUDGE'S NUMBER which I started to dial one Sunday night in the Stork Club when Martin Gabel, the director, and Arlene Francis, the actress, asked me to find a judge to marry them the next morning. Walter Winchell entered the room. We exchanged greetings and I told him why I was phoning. "Where are they?" he asked . . . "In the Cub Room," I told him. "Go in and congratulate them" . . . "Not yet. And please hold off on your phone call for a while," said Winchell. "I want to talk to them first—because I've just finished broadcasting that they won't marry until they get to Hollywood next week."

A CLIPPING reporting Greer Garson's emergency operation in a Boston hospital. I had met Miss Garson a few days earlier, and she pumped my hand in earnest congratulation when she heard that I had just become the father of a fourth son . . . Miss Garson later told me that her operation had been such an emergency one that there was no time to wait until the two surgery rooms were available. She was rushed to another room, and when the operation was over she opened her eyes and asked: "Where am I?" The surgeon told her: "In the obstetrical room" . . . "Something told me," she replied, "I never should have said hello to Leonard Lyons."

COLUMNS written by New York correspondents for foreign newspapers containing deliberate lifting of stories I had written. These local correspondents have the easiest jobs in the newspaper business. Their sole equipment is scissors, and gall . . . One Swedish correspondent recently met me and expressed his thanks. "I get all my Garbo and Bergman stories from you," he confessed. "After all, I couldn't approach them" . . . Another correspondent, one I'd never met, telephoned me and said that he had received a threat of a libel suit on a story he had lifted from me—and would I please reveal to him the source of my information.

A PROGRAM of a Gridiron Dinner in Washington, where tails are required dress. I don't own a full-dress suit, and I had no time to rent one. I borrowed the suit from George Jessel, and found a piece of violet-colored velvet sewn around the buttonhole in the lapel. I asked Jessel what it represented. "My girl sewed it on," said Jessel. "I don't remember why. But don't touch it" . . . I tried to cover it with a carnation, at the Gridiron Dinner. Only one man, a Senator, noticed it and asked what kind of decoration it was. "Legion d' Jessel," I told him . . . "Oh, of course," said the Senator. "Now I recognize it."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Democrats Alienated by Truman

By Drew Pearson

Anti-Truman resentment among the Democrats is now so deep that some are actually talking about trying to dump him.

Douglas

What Truman has succeeded in doing is alienating both wings of the party—the Southern Democrats and the Northern liberals. This was something that Roosevelt, despite the kicking around he gave to some leaders, was careful never to do.

But now Truman has rubbed Northern liberals the wrong way by ousting such Roosevelt appointees as Marriner Eccles, James Landis and John Fahey. Simultaneously he has made Southern leaders boil over with indignation at his civil-rights message.

In fact, the only people Truman has pleased are the Republicans.

Result of all this is that some Democratic leaders are even talking among themselves about finding a new candidate. Admittedly they don't think the chance is great; for it's almost impossible to block the renomination of a sitting President. However, some of them have been quietly discussing a boom for Justice William O. Douglas, while others talk about a draft-Eisenhower move for the Democratic ticket. After all, the first and only political speech Ike ever made was at a Jackson Day dinner at the age of 18.

Meanwhile Henry Wallace has told friends that he would yank his third party out of the running if the Democrats nominate Eisenhower, Douglas, Judge Thurman Arnold or any other Roosevelt Democrat.

Note—What Democratic leaders fear most is that Wallace's third party will carry so much of the labor vote that it will be impossible for Truman to carry New York and Illinois.

Republican Revolt

Tax Chairman Harold Knutson would not be vacationing so serenely in Florida if he knew about the revolt brewing among his own Republican colleagues on the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee.

For many months junior Republicans on the committee have been grumbling at high-handed Harold's way of running it. Particularly, they have resented Knutson decisions to investigate farm cooperatives, which even the committee's second-ranking Republican, Dan Reed, of New York's dairy district, labeled as "inspired in Wall Street."

The Republican rebels are now doubly irked over a footnote buried in the official report on the income-tax-reduction bill. Although the Republicans read over what they thought was the final draft of the report, they now find tucked into the report a footnote which reads:

"They (small business) are being bankrupted by competition of tax-free cooperatives, exhorbitant Federal taxes and the straightjacket Government regulations, like the wage-and-hour law.

"Congress (must) take prompt action to eliminate the cause for this crushing misfortune . . ." Small business' biggest enemy, monopoly, wasn't even mentioned in the report.

Several Republicans were outraged, especially genial Representative John Byrnes of the Wisconsin dairy country. He insisted on calling a secret caucus of Republican Ways and Means members—even though Knutson had gone to Florida. Despite the secrecy, here is the story of what happened.

Knutson Criticized

If Chairman Knutson had been present it would have given his face a more fiery sunburn than that he is getting while escaping the fuel-oil shortage under the Florida sun.

"Here is just another instance of the mismanagement of the committee under this chairman," complained Republican Hal Holmes of Washington. "I think we should insist upon a meeting of the full committee to outline a program. We should not be given short notice to pass on just whatever the chairman decides should be brought up for consideration."

Wisconsin's Byrnes, however, would not be diverted from the distressing footnote. The committee experts were called upon to explain where it originated. Their only answer was that the chairman had insisted that it go in.

"I shall take the floor of the House to disclaim responsibility for the attack on cooperatives and wage-and-hour laws," threatened the Wisconsin Congressman.

However, Noah Mason—Chicago Tribune spokesman—had no fault to find. "The only thing wrong with the footnote," he said, "is that it doesn't go far enough."

Finally, New York's acting chairman Reed called a halt to the turbulent meeting with the suggestion that they "sleep on it."

"If we just keep quiet," said Reed, "the 'thing' may pass by unnoticed."

Note—Where the footnote originated is still a well-kept secret, but it's common knowledge that Knutson, though elected from Minnesota, gets his tax advice from Wall Street.

Of all my friends

There are the friends who say hello . . . Wherever we may meet . . . And those who share my office or . . . Who live across the street . . . There are the friends who send me cards . . . When they are out of town . . . And those who ask me now and then . . . If things are up or down . . . But when I contemplate them all . . . The only ones worth while . . . Are those who give me courage with . . . An everlasting smile . . . Who never seem to leave my side . . . No matter where I go . . . As long as they can help my heart . . . To understand and grow . . . As long as I attempt to find . . . A better way to live . . . And share with them the friendship they . . . Are more than glad to give.
